BELL HAD GOOD LEAD

Nominated For Governor of Vermont on the First Ballot Montpelier, Vt., July 1.-Charles J.

Bell of Walden was nominated for governor on the first ballot by the Republican state convention here. Although the campaign conducted by the various candidates extended over three months, the delegates settled the contest in short order and completed all their business in about three hours. The only other contest in the convention was won by Charles H. Stearns, who was named for lieutenant governor on the first ballot by a vote of 358 to 317 over J. A. Mead of Rutland.

The vote for the gubernatorial nomination was: Charles J. Bell, 373; Z. S. Stanton, 181; J. A. DeBoer, 132.

For secretary of state, F. G. Fleetwood was nominated by acclamation and for state treasurer J. L. Bacon was similarly chosen. Horace F. Graham was named for state auditor without opposition.

The platform strongly endorsed President Roosevelt; recommended that the franchise conditions in the south be investigated and advised that the present liquor license law in Vermont be given a further trial.

Michigan Republicans' Choice Detroit, July 1.-In the state Republican convention, in addition to the name of Fred M. Warner, who was nominated for governor, Homer Warren and George B. Horton were placed in nomination. Before the first ballot was finished, however, it was evident that Warren had received a large majority and Horton movel that the rules be suspended and the unanimous vote case for Warner, which was done. A full state ticket was named.

The platform indorses the platform adopted at the national convention in Chicago; endorses Roosevelt and Fairbanks, and expresses confidence in a memorable victory for the state ticket and "our fearless leader and typical Republican, Theodore Roosevelt."

Tammany Favors Cleveland

New York, July 1.-Leader Charles F. Murphy of Tammany hall has come out flat-footed for Grover Cleveland for president. He says that Cleveland is the strongest candidate in the Democratic party, and that New Jersey will in all probability be the first at the convention to break the Parker line in favor of Cleveland. "In making this statement," said the Tammany leader, "I do so after a great deal of reflection. There is sentiment in politics as well as practice, and when the name of Cleveland goes before the convention there may be an entirely new story to tell.'

A HEAVY DIET.

What the Pikes In Tipperary Waters Like Most as Food.

There is a professional fisherman of my acquaintance in Tipperary who kills many pike during the winter months, for which he finds ready sale in the town. He told me of one customer of his who was in the habit of so beating him down in price that he felt justified in resorting to somewhat questionable means to increase the weight of his fish. In the manner of the winner of the stakes in the cele brated "Jumping Frog" sporting event he would introduce some weighty sub stance into their interior, stones, bits of iron railing, etc.

Once he went so far as to stuff two old handless flatirons he had picked from a refuse heap down the gullet of who, having weighed it carefully and after much haggling, paid him a frac tion less per pound for it than he might have perhaps obtained elsewhere. Meetaware there was trouble in the wind by the opening remark, "What do pike feed on, Paddy?" "Och and indade your honor, but there's mighty little that comes amiss to thim lads," he answered. "Frogs and fish, sticks and shtones they like well, but they would give their two eyes for flatirons."-English Country Gentleman.

The Value of a Sunny Soul. The world is too full of sadness and sorrow, misery and sickness. It needs more sunshine. It needs cheerful lives which radiate gladness. It needs encouragers who will lift and not bear down, who will encourage, not discour-

Who can estimate the value of a sunny soul who scatters gladness and good cheer wherever he goes instead of gloom and sadness? Everybody is attracted to these cheerful faces and sunny lives and repelled by the gloomy, the morose and the sad. We envy people who radiate cheer wherever they go and fling out gladness from every pore. Money, houses and lands look contemptible beside such a disposition. The ability to radiate sunshine is a greater power than beauty or than mere mental accomplishments. - Suc-

Japan Would Reject Offer of Mediation In Far East

HAS MANY ADVANTAGES

Cannot Rest on Present Laurels or Push Forward Without Commanding Strategical Base -- Washington's Good Offices Ready When Request Is Made

London, July 1.-The news from Washington that steps were believed to have been taken looking to mediation between Russia and Japan creates great surprise here. The British government not only has taken no part in such measures, but apparently is not yet ripe for any offer of mediation, but to quote a person in Premier Bal-

"Great Britain has kept the door open for any such contingency. It is not likely that this government would be acceptable in the role of arbitrator, but it would at the right time use all its influence to urge the belligerents to accept the offer from a suitable mediator. There seems to be no reason for thinking that the government would not fill that role suitably, but Russian opinion is always a rather unknown

From the highest official sources here and from the Japanese legation comes the positive statement that nothing whatever has resulted from the in terviews between King Edward and Emperor William at Kiel that in any way was connected with the Russo-Japanese war. There seems to be no doubt that responsible ministers seriously warned King Edward that he must not initiate any step in that ai rection with his imperial nephew. The Japanese legation, it appears made discreet inquiries as to whether or not this advice was carried out and it is stated there that there is every reason to believe the war was not dis cussed at Kiel, except in the most informal way.

It is pointed out also at the Japanese egation, which is ignorant of any news oncerning a movement towards mediation, that the present moment would be the most inopportune, so far as Japan is concerned, for any such step. Japan, it is maintained at the legation, must first secure some such strategical point as Liao Yang before she is in a position to maintain such advantages as she already has won in Manchuria. Without a commanding strategical base, Japanese officials Chicago ............36 here believe, their forces would be unable either to rest on their present Pittsburg .......31 laurels or to push forward.

Whether this is accomplished by a decisive battle or by the retirement of the Russians, the Japanese here say, mediation cannot be dreamed of until that phase of the struggle is settled one way or the other. Subsequent to the Japanese achieving or failing in this objective, it is thought that mediation may possibly be feasible, but DeGuichard, here last night, Walthour Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister, reiterates that the terms Japan and was thrown against the railing. was willing to accept prior to the His body struck two supporting pine hostilities cannot possibly be consid- posts, three by six inches, with such ered now.

NO MEDIATION YET

Expectation, However, That Opening Will Present Itself

Washington, July 1.-While the officials here are satisfied from their private advices that the recent visit of King Edward to Emperor William was not brought about by a purpose to initiate a movement toward the restoration of peace between Russia and Japan, there is reason to believe that some very careful and discreet inquiries as to the opportuneness of some such overtures at this time have emanated from Washington.

The state department will continue to maintain the friendly position it has so far held toward both Russia and Japan, standing ready to mediate and extend its good offices to the full whenever the belligerents indicate their willingness to accept them. It cannot be said that the situation is sensibly changed from what it was a month ago, saving the fact that there is a more optimistic feeling in official quarters that there will soon be an opening for diplomacy to exercise its peaceful methods in the far eastern struggle.

Crisis Draws Nearer

A Mysterious Explosion

St. Petersburg, July 1.-After the submarine boat Delphin, which sank in the Neva off the Baltic shipbuilding yard on Wednesday, causing the loss of an officer and 20 men, had been raised an officer and three sailors approached the manhole for the purpose of ascertaining if all the water had been removed, when another explosion oc curred. The officer and sailors were injured, but they are out of danger The explosion, while somewhat of a mystery, is generally attributed to the flooding of the accumulators.

Russia Loses Torpedo Shop St. Petersburg, July 1.-As the result of the receipt of news of a fire which took place at the torpedo works "Down with Judge Emmons," and at Cronstadt, this city was filled with hurled a stone at the figure. The cry Official opinion here is that the time is the wildest rumors. The torpedo was taken up, the din made by the mechanism shops were almost wholly destroyed, together with 20 Whitehead | dummy at once became the target for a torpedoes. Five of the torpedoes had perfect avalanche of missiles of al war heads attached and they exploded, which added to the fire and excitement.

Nearly Two Thousand Slain Tokio, July 1.-A report received from General Oku says that after the fighting at Telissu (Vafangow) on June | the dummy down and carried it off. 15, he buried 1854 Russians. The trophies taken by the Japanese at this engagement consisted of 16 guns, 46 wagons, 958 rifles and other things.

the faculty of imparting his knowledge, or did not think he was getting on fast enough, he soon resigned it to embrace a good opportunity to go into business. John Sisson had managed to pick up some knowledge of civil engineering, though it was said he had failed to take his diploma. The truth is John, from the time he was in school, was infatuated with an outdoor life and was better satisfied with building a culvert or a henhouse on his father's place than in study. He was always called crack brained from certain impossible suggestions he would make with reference to ways of doing things. I am not romantic and see no sense in a girl choosing a man who gives no promise. I had long looked up to Marshall Kingman and the wonders he would do. He made a mistake by going into business. Those who took him in, expecting he would fill a certain department to their profit, found to their cost that he had no head for an administrative position. The friend who had given him the opportunity told him one day that what he was trying to do was beneath his acquirements and recommended him to leave business and find something nearer the lines on which he had been educated. When Marshall came to me and told me this, thinking, as he did, that the man had paid him a compliment, the poor fellow's deficiencies came out plainly to me. He had shown in his tutorship that he had not the faculty for imparting knowledge to others. Now it was evident that he had not the faculty for using it in a practical field. I could not advise him; I could only sympathize with him. He wrote several books after this, but they were not on practical subjects and were not largely read. He is now doing hack work for a publishing house. Being a practical woman, I could not but listen to John Sisson, who pleaded his cause very deferentially and modestly. He said that what he was about was not a high grade of work and that I deserved a more intellectual man, but he hoped I would take pity on him, and he would return it with a life of devotion. I considered the matter for several days and then became his af-fianced wife. Fifteen years have passed and have brought a great change in my estimate of people's attainments. My husband astonishes me every day by the number of seemingly impossible things he can do and the unusual methods by which he does them. He is the most prominent man in his state, and no project of moment is undertaken without his having first been consulted. The difference between him and Marshall Kingman was that Marshall had great ability to absorb knowledge and

Contest--Platform Gossip

St. Louis, July 2.-Practically the only feature of political interest associated with the approaching Democratic convention discussed in the hotel corridors is the possibility of an attempt to stenpede the convention to former President Cleveland.

The movement in the interest of Cleveland, so far as it has taken shape, is directed against the candidacy of Judge Parker. So far no headquarters cast into the air by what they took to have been established in Cleveland's in- be the monster's fins. This rose fully nine feet above the water. circumstance has led to the conclusion that a systematic campaign has been organized in New York or Wash-

Two distinct lines of operation have developed in the preliminary skirmishing. One is a scheme to rush the nomination of Judge Parker on the first or second ballot and the other is to scatter the vote, to prevent an early nomination with a view of naming Cleveland or Gorman. The friends of Gorman and Cleveland are working to hold the convention for several ballots in the hope that their candidate will be named. There is no alliance between the Cleveland and Gorman people, but it is to the interests of both that the Parker strength be disintegrated as soon as possible.

There are a few men here-men of the old Cleveland guard-who are watching every point and who are in close communication with Cleveland's supporters. They are using the race issue on the southern men, and with all delegates they use the argument that Cleveland is the only man the Democrats can elect.

The friends of Parker have met the situation boldly and apparently are welcoming it. They express the opinion that the serious discussion of lowers that he is a winner, and thus closed. prevent a stampede to Cleveland or anyone else.

With which evasive answer the major turned to his paper and refused to converse further on the subject.

As I said, there were only three of us in the club when the major came in. He seemed nervous, and called the boy to bring him come hot buttered rum. The night was bitterly cold, and the steamer LaLorraine, from Havre, Channing, Wilton and I had been waiting about, wishing that the storm would cease. It did not, so we waited longer. Then the major came.

"Hello," he said, and passed us to give his order at the desk. Then he sat down at a table and began to write rapidly. He called the boy again, and asked that he ring for a messenger. The messenger appeared. The major handed him a note and some coins and told him to take a cab.

"Must be in a hurry," suggested Channing.

"I am." said the major, "for if that note doesn't get where it belongs within an hour it will be all up with Kem-

He sat down with us and began stirring his rum thoughtfully.

"Great stuff, rum!" he said. "I've been thinking for a long time that I'm going to spend my declining years down on the cape somewhere. I shall have a thatched cottage, some nasturtiums growing in a wrecked dory on the lawn, and I shall sit on the beach, dressed in a sou'wester and oilskins, scanning the horizon for incoming luggers. Each lugger will be laden with hot buttered rum.'

The major sipped his drink meditatively.

"You fellows want to hear a love story?" he asked.

"Yes, let 'er go," said Wilton. We settled back in our chairs, prepared to listen, for it was an unusual thing for the major to volunteer a story of any kind. "I shan't tell you the end of the story till the boy gets back," he began. "Is the boy the hero?" inquired Chan-

"Not exactly, but he bears an important message to the hero," said the

Then he went on, and none of us interrupted him for some minutes. He talked slowly and picked his words carefully.

"It was this way," he began. Then he went on. "This man found that he was forgetting to do his work. He was thinking about her most of the time, and he began to lose confidence in his ability to win cases. He lost some that he should have won. Then he began to reason with himself, and he suddenly discovered that he couldn't told her he loved her and found out what she thought about it. Mind you, he was old enough to be her father.

"So one night he went to her house and was prepared to tell her what he wanted to. They sat together before the library fire. Then the man began to talk. 'I have thought, Dorothy,' he said, 'that it is about time you were married.' Then the young woman came over and laid her hand on his shoulder. 'I have thought so, too,' she said.

"The man went on talking. 'Is there any one you care for particularly?' he took some time to get these things up, asked. 'Yes,' she said, 'but we quarreled after we had been engaged two days, and-I know I ought to have told you about the engagement; but, Uncle myself for a little time yet.'

"Then the man tried to tell her how much he loved her, but somehow he couldn't. He just asked her who the man was that she had become engaged to. She told him, and told him, too, that the quarrel didn't amount to anything and that she wanted him to come to luncheon with you, Gregory"-and the major turned to me-"and me tomorrow at 1 o'clock."

The major stopped. "What do you mean?" I asked.

"Wait till the boy comes back," said the major.

THE DECLARATION.

How It Was Drawn, Debated and Finally Adopted.

On the immortal Fourth of the year 1776 the Declaration of Independence was adopted by the Continental ngress. It was thirty-nine times before that body until 't was finally adopted. Entire separation from England was not at first thought of by the colonies. New England wished it, but the southern states were against it. The seat of war having in 1776 been changed from the north to the south caused the south also to change her views. The North Carolina convention took the first step toward independence by a resolution to concur with those in the other colonies in declaring independence; this occurred on April 22, 1776. Virginia on May 17, 1776, prepared the title of the document by directing her representatives to propose in congress a "declaration of independence."

Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Sherman and Robert C. Livingston were the committee appointed to draft the Declaration. The draft was formulated almost entirely by Jefferson. Before July 1 Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey had instructed their delegates to vote against the Declaration. These instructions were rescinded. South Carolina came over to the majority. Delaware's vote, at first divided, was cast in the affirmative.

The Declaration was therefore adopted by the unanimous vote of twelve states, New York alone not voting, on July 4, 1776. The New York convention afterward ratified the Declaration, and the engrossed copy was signed on Aug. 2. The Declaration sets forth the rights of man, and the colonies ought to be free and independent states."-New York Tribune.

A Fourth of July Party.

Living in a country town, my inventive genius was called into play as my turn came to entertain the euchre club July 4. I carried out the color scheme of red, white and blue in decorations and refreshments. When my guests arrived the ladies received liberty caps made of red, white and blue tissue paper and the gentlemen tall white paper "Uncle Sam" stovepipes with broad bands of the red, white and blue, and as each game was won I scored it with tiny flags stuck in each one's cap. For the ladies' prize I gave a pretty white silk sofa pillow embroidered in flags. The gentlemen's prize was a set of poker chips, red, white and blue, on each of which was a miniature flag. The booby prize was a big "baby waker" firecracker. It as they were homemade, but it made a gay scene and added fun, as the gentlemen looked patriotic and the girls piquant in their headgear.-Mrs. Billy, honest, I wanted to keep it to James C. Watson in Good Housekeep-

Manufacture of Firecrackers.

Four-fifths of the crackers consumed in China are made by the families of those who sell them, these people, of course, receiving no wages. Of the paid work a very large proportion is done by women and children, who are paid by the piece. It is estimated that thirty women and ten men can make 100,000 crackers per day, for which work the women will receive 5 cents each and the men about 7 cents each. An apprentice is bound for four years and during that time receives only his note. The major opened it and read board. At the end of that period he it. Then he handed it to me. This will receive, if he is a fairly good workman, 150 cash per day, or 7 cents in United States money. An expert at the trade receives 200 cash per day, or 10 cents gold.

Of late the Quincy High school has become an institution of which we are proud. It was not so a few years ago. Then it was not a stepping stone to college, but now many go directly from this school to Harvard, to Technology, to Radcliffe and other colleges, and they graduate with honors. They would have even better chances if the High School building was what it should be, and the teaching force was adequate.

While we have wavered some in the past as to what was best for Quincy, the arguments of Dr. Hallowell have convinced us that the School Committee know best what are for the interests of the city, and that the present High School building should be enlarged forthwith.

The wedding on Thursday the 30th of Florence E. Bisphman of Dorchester to Mr. Charles Parker Slade, Harvard, '98 of Quincy was quite the society event, and in spite of the depressing weather

> -The Banker and Tradesman says: 'The announcement that five savings banks in New York city will probably pay 4 per cent. dividends for the six months ending July 1 has excited interest, not only as bearing on the savings bank situation itself, but as a sign of the general investment situation. If the interest rate in the broadest sense is rising, the savings banks should be among the first to feel the change. The explanation officially given, in the case of one savings bank that increased its rate, was that the banks were today receiving 4 1-2 per cent. for mortgages that used to yield them only 4, and that this enabled them to declare the higher rate. It was stated that for nearly a year the day. No extra charge for postage. banks had been receiving this higher return on real estate mortgages."

The "Night Before" Was Unusually Noisy.

If Boston had a quiet "night before" Quincy did not. It was quiet in some sections but in others it was noisy, more so than usual. This was particularly true as regards South and West Quincy and Brewer's corner. There The damage was slight. were plenty of drunks about but very few arrests.

The celebration commenced early in the evening, in a small way, by the occasional explosion of fire crackers. As evening drew on it became more noisy and at midnight it was going at before extinguished. The loss ull blast. There was however but little real damage done as compared with other years.

The first real trouble took place at outh Quincy where there was a large crowd on the streets. Before quietness was restored one young man had his head cracked by a policeman's club and had to be taken to the City Hospital. It was in the vicinity of 12.30 when

Officer Goodhue arrested Forbes Craig, jr., and had him at the police box waiting for the wagon. He was quickly surrounded by a large crowd, some of whom attempted to rescue the prisoner. Among the crowd of onlookers was a young man named Daniel Sugrhue, who was in company with a lady.

While things were getting warm Officer Donovan came to the assistnce of Officer Goodhue. The crowd then turned on him and after trying to get at his revolver they attempted to place a barrel over his head. Officer Donovan then drew his club and swinging it in a circle in front of him ordered the crowd to keep off.

As he swung his club Sugrhue came within the danger zone and got a stunning blow on his head which put him out of business. It was at first thought by a physician and removed to the City all right this morning. This incident however quieted the crowd.

There was also a rough crowd at Brewer's corner. They vented their Weymouth as well as Quincy. spite by hurling rocks at the patrol wagon. Two hit the wagon making big dents in the panels and one hit the driver in the leg.

All available burnable property-and Atlantic playground Sunday evening and at 12, in the prese ce of bundreds of people, the match was applied and flames worthy the lower regions burst out on all sides. It was a glorious onfire, and it started the fun going at Atlantic for the night. No malicious damage was done, for all the boys surely had a "corking" time.

MANY ALARMS.

It was a busy night for the firemen and they were kept on the jump from 11.30 Sunday night when the first bell alarm sounded until morning. Between that time and 2.35 Monday morning there were seven bell alarms and the constant clanging of the bells, the shrieking of the fire alarm whistles, punctuated by the explosion of fire works made sleep almost impossble.

The first alarm came from Box 47 at Frove street.

Box 25 came in next at 12.45. This was for a fire in one of the two old est houses off Sea street, near the City stables. This building was destroyed. In the building was the wagon used as a small pox ambulance. This wagon was not burned but no one knows what became of it. The night man at the City stables was early at the fire and he discovered that the second building had been saturated with oil and also set on fire. This fire he put out by pulling off the burning boards. Box 62 sounded at 12.48 and was for a fire in the water pipe box of the street.

The firemen had an opportunity to get a much needed rest on the Fourth, for after returning from the fire at 2.30 A. M. they were not again called out until 8.38 P. M. when there was an alarm from box 71. This was for a slight fire on the roof of a house on Mill street, occupied by John Coffey.

At 10.52 P. M. there was an alarm from box 25. This proved to be another fire at the old McKenzie and Patterson stone sheds on Canal street. This time the fire was started in several places and did considerable damage estimated at $300.

The alarm from box 45 at 11.06 P. M. was for a fire in the house on Bryant avenue owned by the Quincy Quarry Co. and occupied by Michael Scanlan. It seems that Mrs. Scanlon went upstairs with a lamp which she left in a bed room. While she was out of the room a minute the lamp in some way overturned setting fire to the bed. The fire was confined to this room and caused a damage of about $50.

The alarm from box 136 at 7.10 this morning was for a fire on the roof of one of McDonnell's houses on Water any loss. The central station apparatus was called out on a still alarm at 9.45 on the evening of the Fourth for a fire on the roof of the blacksmith shop of the Mitchell Granite Co. at South Quincy.

Office of Sprague Bros. Ice

A safe in the office of the Sprague Bros. Ice Co. on Adams street was blown open by dynamite about 10.30 last night, and $200 in money taken. The office building was badly wrecked, part of the safe door being blown any great mercantile building but a through the roof.

People seated on the piazza of houses nearby heard the explosion and remarked upon the heaviness of it. They thought it was some celebraters exploding dynamite, and the fact that the safe had been blown open and robbed was not discovered until this morning when the men reported for work. An examination of the premises showed that wedges had first been driven into the panel of the door, and the opening thus made filled with dynamite. The burglars left their kit behind them in their departure. It consisted of a jimmy, cold chisel and hammer.

It had been made possible by generous gift and he expected before the first let the final contract. He then intro Mr. Chase spoke briefly. He was reminded by the stars and stripes of the venerable town in which we reside. It was interesting to recall with the noise of the celebration the old training field nearby. He supposed their ground had been turned and watered. It was embarassing for such a poor farmer as he was to handle a shovel. He was not to dig for oil, mineral, church, library or sort of department store house for the body, mind and spirit. He then turned the first sod.

Cheers were then given for President Chase, Secretary Gay and the President of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Work was commenced this morning raising the dwelling house on the estate preparatory to its removal to Canal street. The moving will be done at night when ready.

> Miss Laura DeLory aged 21 years, was the unfortunate victim yesterday afternoon of a stray bullet probably fired by someone celebrating. Miss DeLory was visiting her sister Mrs. John Frazer at 162 Water street. She was seated at a window in the rear of the house. Suddenly a faint report of a pistol was heard and at the same instant Miss DeLory felt a sharp pain in her left breast. In an instant she realized that she had been struck by a

Dr. McLennan was called and ordered her removed to the City Hospital. The bullet entered the left breast just below the nipple but what course it then took is not known.

At the City Hospital Dr. Jones, Dr. McLennan, and Dr. Welch were unable to located the bullet and Dr. Lund of Boston was sent for. The wound bled but little and from its size it was thought to have been made by a 32 calibre revolver. The physicians have but little hopes for her recovery.

Just who fired the shot has not as yet been learned. There are several ouses in the rear of that occupied by Mrs. Frazer but it is a question whether the bullet came from there or from Presidents avenue.

The physicians succeeded in locating the bullet late Monday night and removed it. This morning Miss DeLorey was resting comfortable and there is a chance for her recovery.

LIPTON CUP RACE Lives of Three Men and Two

Sloop Yacht Little Rhody Wins Much-Coveted Trophy

Covered the 330 Miles From New York to Marblehead In Less Than 59 Hours--Nearest Competitor Arrived Nearly Three Hours Behind Small Craft

Marblehead, Mass., July 5.-Of the little fleet of boats that sailed from New York for this port Saturday afternoon on an ocean race of 330 miles for a cup offered by Sir Thomas Lipton and valued at 100 guineas, the sloop Island Yacht club, Providence, crossed the finish line at 9:48 o'clock last night, the accepted winner of the trophy.

When the Little Rhody sailed into Marblehead barbor she was alone and had covered the distance between Gravesend and this port in 58 hours, 48 minutes, elapsed time. Her log shows that despite a heavy northwester during the first 24 hours, she carried a small balloon jib and at times a spinnaker. The only light weather experienced was when the boat was furthest out in the Atlantic, off the Nantucket South Shoals lightship. Except for the light weather at that time the little sloop had a continuous "wet sheet, a flowing sea and a wind that followed fast," there being scarcely any windward work, and that was experienced in getting out of New York

The Little Rhody took the lead off Coney Island at 11:30 o'clock Saturday rereon, situated on the southwest side of Phipps reet, in said Quincy, adjoining land of Costello, ship at 4:50 that afternoon, and sped morning, passed the Fire Island lighton through Saturday night before a westerly wind at a rate of nine knots an hour. At 9 o'clock Sunday morn ing, when due south of Martha's Vineyard, the wind blew strong from the southwest. The Nantucket lightship was sighted at 7 o'clock Sunday eventhe little craft was carried two miles out Cape Cod at 10 o'clock Monday night.

> Just before dark Monday night those on the Little Rhody sighted three of the other racers eight miles astern. The wind increased all Sunday night and Tuesday morning, but still from a fav orable quarter, the southwest.

The Little Rhody was abreast of Pollock Rip lightship at 10:40 o'clock Tuesday morning. She passed in by Highland light at 3:25 o'clock in the afternoon and on reaching Marblehead learned that four of her competitors passed Highland light two hours and 25 minutes after her.

The Little Rhody is only 22 feet on the water line and 34 feet over all, being the smallest boat in the race with one exception. She is the most modern of the fleet, and was built this year from the design of George Owen. She is a keel boat with an overhang that is not very long, and was built for the 22-foot class.

The Newasi, owned by A. H. W. Johnson of the Larchmont Yacht club, was the second boat across the line. She arrived at 12:40 o'clock this morning, 2 hours and 52 minutes behind the Little Rhody. The Newasi was a scratch boat, and allowed the Little Rhody 2 hours and 49 minutes, so that she was beaten 5 hours 41 minutes, corrected time, by the Rhode Island boat.

AWFUL TRAGEDY OF THE OCEAN

Sinking of the Danish Steamer Norge In the North Atlantic

STRUCK A SUNKEN ROCK

But 128 of 774 Souls on Board Known to Have Been Saved--Lifeboats Smashed In Attempt to Launch Them--Three Boats Got Away, While Those Afloat -- But Twelve Minutes Elapsed She Sank--Strings on Life Preservers Said to Be Rotten

London, July 5 .- Of the 774 souls on board the Danish steamer Norge, which went down 290 miles from the Scottish mainland, 128, including Captain Gundel, are known to have been saved. One of the children died in a lifeboat which brought others to safety. For the missing 646 souls small hopes are entertained. The enormous death roll which was feared with the first news of the wreck has been decreased by 102, that number of survivors, after many privations, having been landed at

The horrors of the wreck itself grow with each survivor's account. Captain from the view of those who were Sundel's statement, which reads like an affidavit from the dead, for he went down with his ship, maintains that the Norge struck on a sunken rock 18 miles south of Rockall.

The majority of the 26 who were Liverpool, from where they will sail on the Saxonia, which leaves today for Boston.

Vessels are searching in the vicinity of Rockall for any more survivors. The hope lies in Captain Gundel's statement that seven boatloads got safely away.

No tragedy of the sea has had more appalling consequences and none has occurred in a shorter time. The passengers were suddenly aroused from their sleep, terrified by the contact of the bows of the ship with the solid granite, followed by a grinding, rasping sound as if the hull was being shored over huge rocks. Then silence as the clanging bells brought the engines to a stop. Those of the passengers who were standing at the time the steamer struck the rock were thrown against the bulkheads or on the decks and had not recovered their feet when a stentorian voice gave the terrifying St. Louis ............ 4 10 order: "All hands on deck! Hurry, or you may sink!" Immediately there was a rush for the narrow companion ways and men, women and children pushed and struggled to reach the deck, where the boats swung from the davits. Many persons, retaining their presence of 10,000. mind, seized life preservers only to find in some instances that the strings were for Captain Gundell, commanding, who had immediately gone to the bridge, gave the order to the engineer to reverse the engines. Some men of the safely to the boats, they heroically returned to their stations below. Slowly the ship backed off and as she gained way it was found that water was pouring into her hold. This announcement, called our in Scandinavian. and presaging death, added to the supreme fright and agony. The passengers who were piled in the boats were the fortunate ones who were toescape, while the unfortunates, whosaw death near, clustered in the vicinity, seething, struggling masses, some on their knees, praying, surrounded by children, others supplicating aid from any one and shricking for permission. to enter the boats, elbowing and fighting their way to the places from which the boats were being lowered.

The sound of grinding ceased, and the bow of the Norge yawed as the steamer returned to deep water. The sea rushed hungrily into the huge rents made by the rocks in the iron hull. Swiftly the vessel began to sink by the bows. Without waiting for orders, without Fourth of July athletic games here paying attention to their proper manning, the occupants began to lower the boats. The starboard lifeboat began ting the 16-pound shot. Coe's distance slowly to fall, when to the horror of was 48 feet, 6 inches, beating the record | those on board, the stern tackle failed while the bow tackle ran free. Soon the boat was almost perpendicular. Those who were in it clung desperately to the sides and seats until a great wave came towering along and struck the boat, smashing it against the side of the ship. The occupants of the boat who were not killed by the impact were critical. Fighting occurs daily in this thrown into the water. The crew and vicinity. Raisuli is only two hours passengers on deck had no time to spare from Tangier. Yesterday he attacked to assist the few who had a chance to escape but lost it.

This time the tackle ran smoothly, but and joining the freebooting bands.

the hope of escape of the passengers on board was blasted. The moment i touched the water waves picked up the small craft as if it had been a feather and dashed it against the side of the ship, in spite of the frantic efforts of the passengers to fend it off. The crash was heard on deck. Then the sea swallowed more victims and pieces of wreckage slowly drifted towards the

The upper deck of the Norge at the time of the disaster to the second boat was only a few feet from the water and it was apparent to everyone that only a few minutes more and she would plunge beneath the waves. In the final crisis those who were able to remember clearly what happened say that the shricks and sobs died away and that the quiet was only broken by the curses of some men whose fear found vent in blasphemy.

Suddenly one man threw himself overboard and another followed his example. Still another jumped into the Vainly Begged to Be Rescued | water and soon around the ship hundreds of persons were struggling in the sea, having preferred death in the open From Time Ship Struck Until | than to being submerged with the ship. Others determined to stand by the ship, hoping against hope that she would remain affoat.

Three boats successfully reached the sea. The passengers frantically pulled away from the doomed ship, passing by poor wretches who were still afloat and who vainly begged to be taken on board, while from the ship came long, despairing cries. The women in the boat which reached Grimsby hid their eyes, but the men who were sitting facing the Norge say they saw the captain still on the bridge and the passengers on deck in attitudes of resignation. While they looked the Norge plunged forward, her stern shot up in the air and she disappeared. The swimmers in the vicinity of the ship were drawn into the vortex, around which they swirled like chips in the maelstrom. But 12 minutes elapsed from the time the ship struck until she sank.

A fine Scotch mist which was falling at the time shut out the other survivors brought to Grimsby. The latter, so soon as their boat was clear of the scene of the wreck, devoted themselves to thoughts of their own safety. A jacket was tied to an oar, which in turn was fastened in the bow of the boat, landed at Grimsby have arrived at and a sailor took charge of the boat. Men and women were put to work keeping the boat afloat, as a hole had been stove in her bow when it was lowered from the ship. An examination of the water cask showed that it did not contain a drop of water. There were some biscuits, however, and these were eaten by the shipwrecked people during the 24 hours from the time the ship struck, at 7 a. m., June 28, until they were picked up by the Grimsby trawle

Lives Lost---Steamer Austrian Damaged.

Boston, July 6.—The immense grain

Three lives were lost—those of sailors ported. of the steamer Austrian, which was lying at pier 1, and who, with 34 fellow-seamen, jumped overboard to save themselves from the flames which had communicated to their vessel. Olga Olson, James Flynn and Patrick Meehan are the victims. Most of the crew swam to the shore, but 11 of their number who were more or less singed and bruised were rescued by boats and taken to a hospital.

Before the fire on board her could be gotten under control by the fleet of tugboats that had hauled her out into the stream all the Austrian's upper works had been burned to her decks The steamer arrived Monday and had discharged a part of her cargo, this portion, which included $30,000 worth of Scotch whiskey, being burned in the freight house.

The fire started during a heavy thunderstorm when a bolt of lightning struck the northeast end of the freight house No. 2 in which was stored a quantity of hay and in an instant the lames shot in either direction, quickly communicating to houses Nos. 1 and 3 and from the latter to the big elevator building further west.

So rapidly did the fire gain headway that the fire brigade of the company were forced to run for their lives The elevator has a capacity of 2,000,000 bushels, but as near as can be figured it held not over 100,000 bushels of grain when the fire broke out, largely wheat.

Panic In Providence Theatre

Providence, July 6.—During a performance at the Empire theatre a small sized panic was caused by a boy in the gallery shouting "fire." A rush was nade for the exits, and during ne excitement 12 women fainted. An ambuance was called and police reserves were sent to the house. The crowd was finally pacified and no one was eriously injured. When it was known that the alarm was without foundation the audience resumed their seats.

Yale Students Drowned East Northfield, Mass., July 6.-Two Yale students, William H. Goodwin of Burnside, Conn., and Ralph W. Armstrong of Hayesville, O., were drowned while bathing in the Connecticut river. Goodwin got beyond his depth and Armstrong attempted his rescue. Neither could swim. Both were attending the Y. M. C. A. students' conference here.

Blew Top of Head Off Bucksport, Mc., July 6.-Louis Rich, aged 35, a well known hunter and guide, came in from a hunting trip with one hand badly cut by an accident. He applied some strong carbolic acid to the wound and, apparently crazed by the pain, placed the muzzle of his rifle in his mouth and pulled the trigger. The Accidental Electrocution Biddeford, Me., July 6.-John Bearce, aged 35, met instant death by stepping on a live electric light wire which had fallen to the street during a severe storm. Lightning set fire to the city hall, damaging it to the extent of $2500. Several other buildings were struck and set afire, causing small RED ASH EGG, losses.

FRENCH MAY QUEENS.

A Pretty Custom Which Is Still In Vogue In Some Villages. An ancient custom which still ob tains in many villages in the south of France is a pretty variation of the chocoing of the May queen with which we are so familiar. The mayor and six of his political officers choose from among the village maidens the most beautiful girl. As soon as the choice is made known the queen, dressed in white even to a long white veil and la wreath of white roses, assemble with her parents and all the villagers in front of the mayor's house. Here he and six friends, dressed in frock coats and top hats, form in procession the mayor and queen leading, and march to the church, where there is a short ceremony. They then march back to the mayor's house, where a favored few are entertained at luncheon When h proposes her health he enumerates her virtues, kisses her on both cheeks and hands her an envelope which contains the prize, $200 in money. But the cere mony does not end here. They form in procession, the band leading this time and in a sort of "follow my leader game walk through the village, up lanes and over hills for three hours That evening a ball is given at the inn, where the queen dances first with the mayor and his six friends and afterward with the lads of the village, and so the celebration ends. The queen's white veil, with the veil and wreath are carefully folded away and are blown up with dynamite. Wilson's brought out again only when she becomes a bride.

Last Doubt Removed Regarding Action of Democrats

HIS POSITION UNSHAKEN

Delegates Hustling to Get Seats on the New York Jurist's Band Wagon--Senator Bailey Will Measure Strength With Bryan In Expected Clash Over the Platform--Democrats Anxious to Organize Winning Coalition Against Parker Find Bryan Without Influence--Vice Presidential Gossip

St. Louis, July 6.-In the struggle for the nomination for president, which has been a free-for-all contest, the prospect is that Alton B. Parker of New York, the candidate of the conservative forces, will win handily. Where, a week ago, were doubt, uncertainty, sparring for position, parleying for time, factional scheming and manipulating to overthrow the favorite, is now the foregone conclusion that the field will come in a poor second.

Not only does it appear that the control of the nomination for first place on the ticket will be in the hands of those Democrats who were in the minority in 1896 and 1900, but that they will select the nominee's running mate and dominate the platform on which the race will be made.

In defiance of such handicaps as were created by the ambitious friends of Gorman, Cleveland, Olney, McClellan and favorite sons who had followings that divided the conservative column, this element which advanced the claims of Democratic rehabilitation struggled against the combined opposition of Bryan, representing the ruling Democratic force in the last three presidential contests, and the personal cam paign conducted by Hearst.

Through the week the Parker force received material accessions, one candidate after another who threatened to cap the strength of the conservatives being eliminated until the opposition is now confessedly in the minority and seemingly too unorganized to present a fighting front. The band wagon seats are in such demand that a nomination is confidently predicted on the second ballot and the surprise would be small if the first was decisive.

Upon slender threads of various kinds the Parker opposition has hung its hopes, while the Parker men have been moving forward with calm assurance in the other matters connected with the convention. A story was current that David B. Hill, flushed with the fruits of victory, would undertake to force upon the convention a platform so radical that some of the southern delegates would break away from New York's candidate. But the illusion was dispelled. Hill will not be chairman of the resolutions committee, but John A. McMahon of Ohio or Senator Bailey of Texas will be chairman and Bailey has been selected to cross swords with Bryan in the debate over the platform on the floor of the convention.

Not the least of the efforts of the anti-Parker men has been directed toward preventing a stampede by delegations, whether bound by instructions or otherwise. It is the rank and file that is pressing for band wagon seats, and anxious to be on the winning side they been ordered here from Sydney. are aware that these delegates cannot be held together very long in the face of the Parker forces.

With an almost solid south lined up for him, with New York and Pennsylvania for him as well as votes in many other sections, it is very difficult to convince the average delegate how Parker can be defeated under these conditions, and he is anxious to participate in the nomination of a successful candidate. The anti-Parker men held a meeting in the room of Senator Pettigrew last night and discussed means to hold enough votes to prevent the nomination of Parker. Besides Pettigrew there were present Towne from the Tammany delegation, Handy from Delaware and Tarpey from California. A committee was appointed to take charge of the anti-Parker movement with a view of uniting upon a program of action. It was claimed by those present that more than 400 delegates were rep resented in the meeting who would not vote for Parker and that they would be able to hold them until the New Yorker was defeated.

would swing his strength to this or to that candidate and the Democrats who were anxious to organize a winning coalition investigated and found that outside of the Nebraska delegation the former candidate had no following save a few scattering delegates who were bound by the unit rule and instructions. Many visitors called at the Nebraska headquarters during the day and admired the plaster cast bust of Mr. Bryan on the mantel, but these callers were not the men who are in

It is expected that there will be clash with Bryan over the platform, but that document is expected to be a conservative utterance. Mr. Bryan is to be accorded a respectful hearing, but the dominant element in the convention, it is freely asserted, will not temporize or attempt to placate or conciliate him. The forces which adopt the platform and name the candidate for president will also name the vice president and this element has allowed it to become known that no concession to the minor ity, no vote catching expedient is to be adopted in choosing the nominee for second place. At the meeting of the Nebraska delegation W. J. Bryan was appointed to To Liverpool, represent the state on the committee or resolutions. There was some discussion on the position the state shall assume on the platform. Mr. Bryan's To Dublin, contention will be for the reaffirmation of the Kansas City platform, but the To Scandinavian Points, delegation recognizes the improbability of securing such a stand. The discussion was therefore devoted largely to the consideration of what to do in that event. No conclusion was reached, but the tendency is to accept the situation if fairly liberal declarations can be secured, as it is believed that there can be.

So much attention has been given to the presidential nomination that no conclusion has been reached regarding the vice presidency. Several names have been mentioned and one or two active candidates are in the field. The friends of former Senator Turner of Washing ton believe that he may be nominated Several northwestern delegations from the inter-mountain country are to be thrown for Parker in anticipation of reciprocity from those most interested in Parker's nomination.

Thus far no sign has been given by the leaders that a candidate will be sought on the Pacific coast. In fact some men who will add strength to the ticket in Illinois and Indiana are wanted, and if a satisfactory man can be found in either of these states he will undoubtedly have good support The suggestion has been made that D. S. Rose of Wisconsin might be selected. but that state refuses to have him considered for fear that anything of the kind might be considered as disloyal to E. C. Wall as presidential candidate. B. F. Shively and J. W. Kern of Indiana and D. R. Francis of Missouri have been mentioned in connection with the second place, but no effort has been made to secure consideration for any of them.

Awful Crime of Three Brutes Burlington, N. J., July 6 .- With her husband away delivering milk, Mrs. Elsie T. Biddle, the young wife of a farmer, was washing dishes when she heard a knock at the door. Responding to the call she was confronted by three masked negroes, who, holding a revolver to her head, demanded her money. She was forced up stairs and produced $13. Her hands were then tied behind her and two handkerchiefs stuffed in her mouth. With her 1-year-old babe by her side, Mrs. Biddle was criminally assaulted by each of the negroes. They then left the place. Hundreds of armed men are in pursuit of the perpetrators.

WATSON IS CHOSEN

Georgian Nominated For President by Populist Party

Tibbles of Nebraska Selected Out of Field of Five Candidates For Vice President--Platform a Reaffirmation of Omaha Document of 1892

Springfield, Ills., July 6.-Thomas E. Watson of Georgia for president and Thomas H. Tibbles of Nebraska for vice president was the ticket nominated by the Populist national convention. The names of William V. Allen of Nebraska and Samuel W. Williams of Indiana were also placed before the convention for president, but before the list of states had been completed in the rollcall, their names were withdrawn and Watson was nominated by acclamation. Former Senator Allen made good his word that he would not enter into any scramble for the nomination and while the nominations were being made he twice instructed the chairman of the Nebraska delegation that his name must not go before the convention. In the face of this, however, he received over 40 votes.

Whether Watson will accept the nomination or not no one in the convention seemed to know, and all efforts to secure some definite information from Watson's friends failed. Watson was quoted as saying that if the Democrats at St. Louis nominated Hearst he would support him for president.

There were five nominations for vice president-T. H. Tibbles of Nebraska, T. B. Rynder of Pennsylvania, L. H. Weller of Iowa, G. N. Washburn of Massachusetts and S. W. Williams of Indiana. The two latter declined and Tibbles received practically all the votes on the first ballot. It required an entire day to adopt the short platform and nominate the ticket.

J. A. Hallett of Texas was chosen permanent chairman. The committee on credentials wrangled many hours on the question as to whether one man should be permitted to cast the vote of an entire state, when a state only had one delegate in the convention and, being unable to agree, it was referred to the convention. The delegates favoring a full vote carried the day.

The platform adopted is brief and is a practical reaffirmation of the Omaha platform of 1892. It was adopted as reported by the committee without a dissenting voice. Former Congressman Riddely of Kansas attempted to secure the postponement of the nomination of a ticket until after the St. Louis convention, but the convention promptly tabled his

After the convention adjourned a meeting of the national committee was held and J. H. Ferris of Joliet, Ills., was elected chairman and C. R. DeFrance of Lincoln, Neb., secretary.

George F. Washburn of Boston was elected treasurer of the national committee. An executive committee was not appointed, but Chairman Ferris will appoint J. A. Parker of Kentucky and J. H. Edmiston of Nebraska as members of the committee. The other five members will not be appointed for a

A GAY BENEDICK. Justice Henry B. Brown Tells of His

Runaway Match. Happy as a boy in his first love, Justice Henry B. Brown, one of the oldest members of the United States supreme court, has been spending his honeymoon with his bride at Atlantic City, N. J., says the New York World. Albeit more dignified, the justice and his bride are as loving as ever any youthful Romeo and Juliet.

To the utter surprise of family and friends, Justice Brown and his bride, Mrs. Josephine B. Tyler, stole from Washington and went to Crosswicks, where they were married.

"It was a sort of runaway match so far as I was concerned, but I have nothing to hide," said the judge. "I sought to escape newspaper comment. I didn't desire any fuss, and so I thought I'd do as some of the younger boys do-go and get married without a Student. A Japanese student of medicine was showing a group of Americans what he could do in the way of top spinning, says the New York Telegram. He took up a big yellow top shaped like a chrysanthemum, wrapped a silk cord about it and threw it down. It spun beautifully, this huge flower, and out of it all of a sudden a half dozen smaller flowers leaped and spun in their turn about the floor.

JAPANESE TOP SPINNERS. Remarkable Exhibition of Skill by

"A chrysanthemum top," said the young man. "Here is a bird top." He corded and threw down a top that resembled a gorgeous bird. This top as it spun opened and closed its wings and made long leaps to left and right in imitation of a bird's flight.

The Japanese student wound a red top as big as his head and hurled it violently straight at one of his guests. It shot through the air till it was within a few inches of the frightened young man's face, and then, as though by magic, it turned and darted back again, and held it there, still spinning.

"This is a boomerang top," he said. And again he threw it across the room, and again it shot back, still spinning,

The young man now set going simultaneously a dozen small tops of red and yellow and green paper. They looked plain and commonplace as they spun, but suddenly they began to oper out, and one became a ladder, another a lantern, a third a ship, a fourth a branch of cherry blossoms, a fifth a dancing girl, and so on.

"The Chinese," said the student, "are noted for their kites. Why is it that we Japanese are not equally noted for our tops? All over our country we spin tops, and my little exhibition here | man Atwood. would seem poor and mean beside the one that a really expert spinner could give you in Japan.'

They used to keep away from us on our approach, but afterward hung on our rear. They are keen little people and good hunters. None was over three feet ten inches in height.

A SATISFACTORY YACHT RACE

[Original.]

Royal Leighton had been hanging about Blanche Asche for a long while. Miss Asche gave him little encouragement; indeed, she seemed to be at times bored by his presistency. She was full of mischief and occasionally would give him a bit of hope just to see how crestfallen he would be when she gave him the cold shoulder. Both were rich. Leighton's taste was for horses; Miss Asche's for boats. One day when Leighton had proposed for the tenth time the lady said to him:

"I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll match my yacht Ariadne against your Oneida. If your boat beats mine I'll marry you If mine beats yours be it understood that you're not to bother me with your propositions ever after."

"But my Oneida is a tub," said Leighton. "I know nothing about yachts. You know a lot about them, and your Ariadne is the fastest boat of her class afloat in American waters.'

"It's that or nothing," Blanche re plied. "If you accept, I'll send my sailing master to you to arrange the details; if not, I shall consider any future attentions from you as the raigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Cases con. world would consider an insult from one who has refused to fight."

and pertinent illustration. When the English High school with a total average membership of over 1,200 overflowed its building, the school committee tried for three years to have the building enlarged, but the City Council, heeding local influences, erected a new building in South Worcester and opened a third High school similar to the English High school.

The cost of the English High school instruction went up the first year the new school was opened from about $52,000 to $68,000, and the next year to nearly $71,000, and the cost per pupil $61.32 in the new building. Of course there would have been some increase of cost, but nothing like what has been. The superintendent estimated that the increased cost entailed by the way taken

In the Worcester case there was some justification, for the school was large, (about 1400 to 1500) and growing, but for Quincy to make two High schools of the same kind out of 700 pupils, would be unfortunate as regards efficiency, and financially wasteful. The effect of such a division on the pupils would be to make them provincial, and it would be likely to create in the city a High school partisanship, that would furnish an opportunity for petty local politics. When a school reaches a size that makes division advisable, the best way is to divide it by the kind of instruction offered, as into a classical and an industrial school, and in this case the schools should be located near each other, if not in the same building.

I can hardly believe that Quincy, whose name stands for so much that is progressive in education, will adopt the plan of division proposed, even under the temptation of a gift.

Sincerely yours, J. W. MacDonald.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Under the stimulus of our reciprocity treaty with Cuba, it is gratifying to know that the island is improving rapidly in its industrial conditions. This is shown by the increase in the customs for the financial year just ended. The collections at Havana show an increase over 1893 of $2,897,919. The United States could afford to be at least just, commercially, with Cuba, after the sacrifice of blood and treasure that was made for her political freedom.

It is humiliating to think that when a foreigner of distinction, and a scientist of renown, like M. Santos- Courant. Dumont, goes to the expense of coming from Paris to St Louis, to add to the attractions of the fair, and fetches his air-ship with him, some jealous vandal or wantonly wicked wretch, should destroy his balloon. Along with our progress in civilization there follows a trail of crime and boodle, and graft, and diabolism, unequalled in history. The emphasis is greater because the ontrast is so striking.

What at first looked an impossible venture, the climbing of Mt. Washington by automobiles, or the "Climb to the Clouds," has been demonstrated beyond a doubt to be feasible and rather easy of accomplishment, judging from the remarkable and sensational performance by Otto Nestman who rushed little seven-horse power runabout up the eight-mile mountain road, and landed it triumphantly at the Tip Top house in the remarkable time of 48 minutes and 30 seconds, the best previous record by a twenty-horse power car being nearly two hours.

Drift of Opinion.

The best measure of litigation is usually the number of laws or statutes, and not, contrary to the general belief. the number of lawyers. Our 6.75 northern neighbors never think of calling themselves anything else than Canadians, Mexicans, Colombians, 5.00 Venezuelans, Bolivians, Chileans, Brazilians and others have their own names which usage has compelled them to employ. Americans are plainly therefore the citizens of the United States. We shall not drop the words 'United States,'' but we shall be known hereafter, officially as well as by common usage, as Americans.-

I propose to demonstrate that Hawthorne is far and away the first of our American literary men-that he alone is worthy of being included in that great list of literary luminaries of whom Shakespeare, Defoe, Addison, Swift, Goldsmith, Field and Scott are most illustrious. I shall divide what I call OLD-TIMERS IN EVIDENCE the elements of literary greatness into five classes-First, delineation of the ower of character; second, skill in story framing; third, the philosophy that underlies the work; fourth, the style in which the story is told; fifth, the fancy which decorates it. Now I place Dickens first in the delineation of character, and Shakespeare second only to Dickens; I would follow with Cervantes, Defoe, Swift, and so on, not omitting Walter Scott. - Charles Francis Adams at Concord exercises.

Mr. William Fairbairn, in an address of this country to the Democrats I before the British Association of Manchester in 1861, stated that when he first became acquainted with mechanical engineering, about 1804, there were no self-acting tools; everything was executed by hand. There were neither planing, slotting, nor shaping machines; and the whole stock of an engineering or machine establishment might be summed up in a few lathes, drills, and boring machines of rude construction. It will thus be seen that the year 1904 s quite near to the one hundredth anniversary of the first impetus given to the development of wood and metalworking machinery .- Charles Day, in The Engineering Magazine for July.

combing of our national life with the corruption of legislation bought by special privileges? Time fails to ask more. What has ancient history to do with present injustices anyhow?

Mr. Root boasts that the per capita of circulation of money among the people in the United States increased from $23.14 in March, 1897, to $31.02 in May last, and that the credit for that and the consequent prosperity following it was due to the Republican party. What a curious boast this is for those lately denying so strenuously that the quantity of money had anything to do with the value of money, of the price of other things as measured in money, or with an ascending scale of prices or with national prosperity. This was all denied but yesterday. the United States increased from $23.14 in March, 1897, to $31.02 in May last, and that the credit for that and the consequent prosperity following it was due to the Republican party. What a curious boast this is for those lately denying so strenuously that the quantity of money had anything to do with the value of money, of the price of other things as measured in money, or with an ascending scale of prices or with national prosperity. This was all denied but yesterday.

The Financial Panics

Mr. Williams reviewed financial legislation and said that the fact of a gold basis was accomplished not by the Republican party, but by the dogged persistency and indomitable will of Chinese Expulsion Policy

A Hydra-Headed Monster

Then there is cunningly concealed in the republican platform the hydra-head of a yet worse form of special legislation, viz.: By direct subsidy, taking money out of the treasury ann handling it over to a special class, in this case the class of shipbuilders and ship owners.

It will be noted also that the Republican party was not quite brave enough to say "cut loud" what it wanted and intended by the usual false statement this time in linuendo, that the English merchant marine—the most prosperous of all—is dependent upon subsidies. Every dollar paid by the English government to owners of private ships is paid for carrying the mails and is paid to the lowest bidder and foreign ships are permitted to bid.

Chinese Expulsion Policy

I quote again from the Republican platform: "We refused to palter longer with the miseries of Cuba," and declared war against Spain. Bad history again. Democrats demanded the recognition of belligerent rights and independence for Cuba day in and day out. The Republican speaker constantly refused them even as much as parliamentary recognition. The Republican president was thoroughly out of sympathy with their wishes. Finally treachery and cruelty unprecedented led to the blowing up of the Maine and her crew. Public opinion would no longer be restrained. "Remember the Maine" became a battle cry. It was not "the miseries of Cuba" at all that led the Republican party to fall into line with the public demand and fight Spair. Hearing the echo of that cry of "Remember the Maine" and amidst the universal excitement and anger, the Republican speaker and the president both stood out of the way, as well they might, and the former advised armed intervention. It is unpatriotic to pretend that even this, long delayed as it was, was in any proper sense a Republican measure. Democrats voted for it as fully as Republicans. Democrats enthusiastically and unanimously gave the president of the U. S. $50,000,000 to spend enthusiastically and unanimously gave the president of the U. S. $50,000,000 to spend in his discretion. They did this and voted for the act of intervention, not because it was a Republican president or because it was a Republican measure, but because the American government was at last pursuing proposition to repeal the fifteenth amendment.

Their duplicity is shown in this: they wish to maintain the fiftenth amendment which forbids the negro, for racial reasons, from being disfranchised and yet, on the pretense that he is for racial reasons disfranchised, they would have the negro not counted as a basis of representation in the southern states, where he chiefly resides. It is not the white man, as a white man who is injured by a recurrence to the tendency of force bill—he can and will always maintain himself—it is business, commercially and industrially the white men of the south will not be much more injured by this sort of agitation than northern people will be. The mercantile class would be the first to suffer, but as they owe debts to the North and buy from the North and as nearly everything they sell is manufactured in the North, they would not be alone in their suffering. This is but the entering wedge to a new period of "southern reconstruction." How small in comparison would be the immediate and ultimate significance of a mere partisan victory either way compared with the necessary and natural results of this revived agitation.

What Democracy Will Do

What Democracy Will Do
In his discretion. They did this and voted for the act of intervention, not because it was a Republican president or because it was a Republican measure, but becarse the American government was at last pursuing an American policy, a policy which had always been Democratic.

'Americans Fought the War

Then the platform adds these words:
"We fought a quick, victorious war with Spain." Bad history again. Americans fought It. It would be invidious to state the politics of heroes, but it seems to me that I have heard that Dewey was a Democrat, that Schley was a Democrat, and it seems to mo, too, that I have heard that a Republican administration suubbed the first, tried to disgrace the second, and insulted the third.
It seems, too, that I have heard from men on the fighting line that Joe Wheeler was as much in evidence at Santiago as the president himself. It seems to me that I have heard that Young Bagley of North Carolina, the first offering of the war upon the altar of a common country, was a Democrat.

I quote from the platform again: "We set Cuba free." Bad history once more.
But for Democratic senators and representatives demanding and voting for a proviso corder. Everythis; seemed to have been convenience about a convenience of the set of intervention to the setter that we were the set of the set of intervention to the setter that it is some out a convenience of the set o

A Democratic administration once in power will put an end, so far as it can be done, and as quickly as possible, to all existing inquitous partnership arrangements between the federal government and favored special interests. It will reduce the revenues of the general government to a sum adequate to the needs of economical and constitutional administration, plus a safe working margin for contingencies which cannot be foreseen.

It will speak out unmistakably against the Republican policy of starting home development in order to feed the schoolboys appetite of national prestige and more display of strength. It will bring about the upbuilding of merchant marine and bring it about without new or additional taxation upon the people and without bounties.

hall. Announcement of the meeting places of the committees on resolutions, credentials, permanent organization and others was made and at 2:50 the convention adjourned until today.

THE PARKER TIDE

It Gathers Increased Impetus as It Sweeps Along The steady growth of the Parker

strength has continued unchecked. In the face of developments in the convention session the nebulous opposition has grown more uncertain and no one can be found to stand for any definite statement that the New Yorker will meet with opposition of a serious character when the convention is polled for first place on the ticket. Delegations that have wavered in the balance have succumbed to the Parker tide with few exceptions and these are not expected to withstand the almost assured results of the vote as. it proceeds, but will change to the Parker column before the rollcall is finished. It was reported late last night that a final anti-Parker conference had been called for an unknown place of meeting, but the New Yorker's managers, confident that they have the whole situation thoroughly in hand, were not disturbed by this conference or its possible results.

For second place on the ticket it can hardly be said that speculation centers on any one man. A half dozen names are on the tongues of the crowds that gather in the lobbies and various headquarters, but the general sentiment is that this matter should be left to ripen cation of until after the head of the ticket has

Its Form of Structure Which Permits It to Be Elastic.

Modern physics teach us that the molecules of all bodies are in a state of incessant motion: that the intimate structure of matter is, in fact, a reproduction on an infinitely minute scale of the revolving suns and planets. In gases and liquids this motion i most extensive in range, but in solids the movements of the molecules are more restrained, and they merely oscillate or rotate about a certain mean position, the range of motion being strictly governed by the attractions producing it.

If by the pull of an outside force the molecules are drawn out beyond the limit of their mutual attractions the body is broken, but within this limit it In East Bound Third Class Rates will recover itself when the pull ceases.

TEACHERS IN TRAINING

How Chicago School Applicants Prepare For a Regulation.

STOUT AND SLENDER "GET BUSY."

From Massachusetts to Kansas Applicants For Positions Are Trying to "Make Good," Though In Far Different Ways-One Teacher Relies on High Heels to Aid Her. "This may help some," sighed a tall, bowl of breakfast food with a big spoon. "No, thank you. I'm taking only two meals a day," replied a short, excessively broad teacher from Kansas to an invitation to luncheon. The tall, slim young woman from Brookline, Mass., is a candidate for a certificate to teach in the Chicago public schools. She is taking the examination being held at the West Division there being a considerable number of High school. The stout "miss" from Kansas is also taking the examination. And, like all the rural schoolteachers who came to Chicago to secure positions, they are in a quandary. They Hill "box kites" will be used, as they have just learned that the Chicago school board requires its teachers to be "of a proper weight, size and proportion, according to their several sizes, and in a good state of physical training." says the Chicago Tribune.

As soon as this requirement became known to them they set out to adjust their proportions. The tall, slender, for the purpose of having the needed pedagogical "timber" who are entered in the competition have put themselves on a "fattening diet," eating breakfast foods and taking a "tablespoonful every few hours" of cod liver oil.

The heavy, pedagogical "timber" are resorting to long walks, fasting, vigorous exercise and every known method of reducing weight.

many a west side boarding house midnight oil is burned while slender arms swing Indian clubs and dumbbells.

But the greatest fear in the hearts of the feminine candidates is not that they may fall short in any one or two of the qualifications, but that they may fail to secure classification among the "good specimens."

"I abhor being classed as a specimen, don't you?" asked one of the teachers "Oh. I don't mind that if I am classed as a good one," said the other, One of the extremely short teachers was heard to remark that she intended to wear French heeled shoes when her height was measured, but a cruel examiner dispelled her hope by explaining that the height of the heel is always measured.

The scheme of putting shot in the pocket to increase weight has been suggested also, but it, too, will fail, as the weight of the teachers is taken minus the weight of the clothes.

TIBETAN PRAYING WHEEL Grewsome Articles Used by the Natives In Their Devotions. To the Yellow God, the Black Go the White God and the Green God-Please kindly take us all up with you and do not leave us unprotected, but destroy our enemies." Such a prayer is to be found on a Tibetan praying wheel, said Mr. A. R. Wright at a meeting of the Folklore society held in London. A novel feature of this prayer wheel, which the Tibetan spends much of the time in turning, is that if turned the wrong way everything done before is undone, says the London Mail. Some of the articles used by the Tibet ans in their devotions are very grewsome. A human thigh bone covered with human skin is used as a horn for exorcising demons and to draw the soul from hell. A double drum made from two halves of a skull, the skin covering being that of a human being, is placed on the altar of certain fiend deities in the Tibetan religion.

Blind Boy a Marvel In Study, Though blinded for life by hot lead flying in his eyes while he was watching a casting being made in his father's foundry in Middletown, N. Y., Gregory J. Martin, son of James G. Martin, has by great pluck and perseverance succeeded in acquiring an education, says the New York Press. He is twenty-one years old. As soon as he recovered from the accident he began studying as best he could at home. He made such good progress that two years ago he was sent to the Batavia $15.00 Institute For the Blind, from which he recently graduated. At the end of the first year he had completed the second year's studies, and at the end of his second year he had passed the fourth year's examinations with a high percentage. He has taken the examinations for entrance to Rochester university and will enter next term.

A Bow of Corn Colored Ribbon

Kingston, N. Y., July 7.-To see Judge [Original.] A girl with an umbrelia in her hand and a reticule on her arm was vainly

"Will you permit me?"

A young man spoke the words in a well modulated voice and with a deferential tone. Then, without waiting for a reply, he dropped on one knee on the sloppy stone, regardless of the mud or the crease in his trousers, and endeavored to tie the shoestring. Alas, it was broken in the middle!

If an untied shoestring in the street is a misfortune, a broken shoestring is a tragedy. The girl, seeing the state of the case, would have been appalled but for that reliance on the sterner sex natural to women. She waited for him to get over the difficulty without in the least concerning herself about it. ken string, thought rapidly, then plungpockets. From one of them he drew a corn colored ribbon that had bound together packages of cigars; then, getting rid of the broken shoestring, he laced the shoe with the ribbon.

"There," he said, rising and standing with lifted hat; "that will serve till you reach home." The girl gave him a smile and a Thank you!" and went on her way. Grafton Hatch watched her retreating figure till it had passed out of sight. He was not conscious of the impression she had made on him; it simply occurred to him that he would occurred to him once it occurred to him again and again. Indeed he kept on thinking so till at last it became a mania with him.

Months passed before he was reriding in an open electric car. A car All the candidates are determined to put themselves in "fine condition" physically before the examination, and in lightning on a dark night. It was the girl whose shoe he had laced, and in a buttonhole of her corsage was the bow of corn colored ribbon he had used for a shoestring. The fire smoldering in Grafton

Hatch's bosom at seeing this evidence of the impression he had made burst into a flame. Hatch spent a great deal of time trying to conjure up a method of communicating with the girl who wore his colors, but could think of none except a personal advertisement, and from this he shrank. Nevertheless, after a long period of distress he tried it, but whether his ad, never met the girl's eyes or she did not care to reply, he did not hear from her.

During the following summer Hatch visited the seashore. There were a number of resorts scattered along the coast, and the place where Hatch was stopping was separated from the one adjoining it on the north by an inlet. It was not very broad nor very deep, but there was no bridge across it and unless a boat was handy there was no way to cross it except by swimming. One afternoon Hatch went with a party of friends to the inlet for crabs. The lines were baited and the crabs were hungry. One of the ladies of the party, a girl who doted on Hatch, got a crab within reach of her landing net -she was trying to land Hatch as well-but was unable to get the crab into it. She called on Hatch, who was also in the act of landing a crab, to help her. Hatch was about to relinquish his prize to hasten to her assistance when, suddenly darting a glance at a party on the opposite bank of the inlet who were gathering up their nets and crab lines preparatory to departing, he saw a sight that changed the whole current of his intentions-the girl whose shoe he had laced. And still she wore his colors. Hatch took in the situation as a general who perceives that without a desperate sortie his enemy will escape him. The girl struggling with the crab heard a splash and, looking on the disturbed waters, saw Hatch swimming in a straight line for the opposite bank. Here is another straw: It has been told in Gath and proclaimed on the streets of Askalon by the Rooseveit shouters that the trust magnates, especially those whose habitat lair is Wall street, are bitterly opposed to the president.

A change appears to have come over the spirit of their dream, if Hon. Francis L. Loomis, assistant secretary of state, can be believed. That illustrious public functionary recently "swung around the circle" in New York, and elsewhere to "survey the situation." Upon his return to Washington he delivered himself of an interview, in which, among other things, he says:

"While in New York I spent two days on Wall street, chatting with representatives of the financial interests, and I find that there is no longer any disposition to make a fight. And in accepting the situation the feeling toward Mr. Rooseveit seems to have undergone a change, and I heard many friendly comments. I confess I was surprised at the extent of this change."

How Much Longer Will New Fire Station Remain Unoccupied.

Houghs Neck people are thoroughly disgusted with the fire protection. All they have now is a hose wagon with a thousand feet of hose. This is in a building that is almost dropping to pieces. It leaks badly and every time there is a rain the floor is covered with by him will appear in next Sunday's water. Even today there is a puddle of water in the middle of the floor. What makes matters worse is that a short distance away is a fire station built two years ago that has never been occupied. This building is also showng the effect of time and neglect. The present call company are discouraged, and there is a strong talk of disbandng and letting fires take care of themselves.

Had there been a fire here on the night before the Fourth it is quite ertain that it would have developed into a conflagration. There was a plan on foot to take the hose wagon and dump it overboard and the crowd did succeed in getting it as far as the street, when Captain Littlefield appeared on the scene and put a stop to

RETURNS WANTED

PRICES Before More Changes Are Ordered on N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

Representative Fallon continues to ake an interest in his movement for ower railroad fares for Quincy stations. He has received the following letter rom the Railroad Commissioners:

Boston, June 29, 1904. Dear Sir:-In dealing with the question of fares upon the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad we are satisfied that we ought to have for consideration the latest information in regard to the suburban business upon that road.

This is the more essential for the reason that under a recent recommendation on our part certain fares have been nanged. The results of these changes have a proper bearing upon the decision of the case in which you are interested.

As the returns from the companies $6.75 are not received until September it will be impossible for us to reach a conclusion before that time.

We thought we ought to apprise you of this fact. Very truly yours,

James F. Jackson, Mr. Peter T. Fallon, Quincy, Massachusetts.

DELEGATES IN A WILD TUMULT

Remarkakable Scene Upon Presentation of Parker's Name

AN ALL-NIGHT SESSION

Martin Littleton Makes an Eloquent Appeal to All Sections of the Country to Support the Nominee of Democrats--Financial Plank Is Entirely Stricken From the Platform at the Behest of the Bryan Wing--No Indication as to Who Will Be Named For Second Place

St. Louis, July 9.-Amid the most wildly enthusiastic scenes which probably ever marked a political convention, the nominating speeches for the Democratic candidates for the presidential nomination were carried on all night.

The great feature of the session was the tremendous outburst which greeted the name of Judge Alton B. Parker when he was placed in nomination by Martin W. Littleton of New York.

The delegates actually went wild. Flags and state emblems were torn from their places, and while thousands cheered and shouted, a procession, led by the New York delegation, made a circuit of the hall. The demonstration Hasted 25 minutes.

Next came a demonstration for Hearst, following his nomination by Delmas of California. It was in many respects a most re markable spectacle. The great building was packed to suffocation, and the enthusiasm was such that at times the speakers could not be heard a short distance away from the platform.

The nomination of candidates followed the unanimous adoption of the platform. The latter was remarkable for the fact that it contained no money

The convention hall seats about 10, 500 persons, but hundreds more had been admitted. The floor and lower and upper galleries contained thousands of sweltering men and women, oblivious to the fact that the crowded condition of the hall endangered every life.

The Coliseum interior looked like a huge basin with bottom and sides formed by closely packed persons. Not an aisle could be seen. They were filled by spectators who could find no other place. Outside and in the crowds were the some, except for the fact that those within the hall were satisfied and those without were turbulent.

York. Mr. Littleton's speech immediately pleased his audience and when he concluded pandemonium reigned. Flags waved, banners were held aloft! and great as was the crowd delegates carrying the standards of the Parker states paraded through the convention, pushing, trampling and fighting all who obstructed their progress.

The scene was one of tremendous confusion. Then was enacted a scene that recalled an incident of the Democratic convention in Chicago which nominated Mr. Bryan eight years ago. Like Minnie Murray, the woman in white, who, from a gallery over the stage, led cheering for Bryan, two girls in white sprang to the front of the platform and waved flowers and flags. The young women were Misses Adele and Evelyn Heywood of St. Louis.

With renewed outbursts the immense throng cheered them until a picture of Judge Parker, on a six by nine foot and services of the strained foot canyas, detracted the thunderous cheering thousands. The cheering continued fully 25 minutes. Even then 10 minutes elapsed before the chairman dared to call the next state. Arkansas yielded to Tennessee and Senator Carmack took the platform and several services of the other peoples of the world.

THE PLATFORM

A Victory For Bryan by the Voting Out of the Gold Plank

The convention unanimously adopted a platform, without one dissenting voice. This came after a stormy session before the committee on resolutions, where Hill, Bryan, Daniel and Tillman fought the battle out with the result that the gold standard plank which Hill wanted and the income tax plank which Bryan wanted were both stricken out.

The Race Question

The Race Question

The Race Question

The Race Question has brought countless wes to this country. The calm wisdom of our countrymen.

The state of New York, harkening to the demand from every quarter of the demand from every quarter of the country, comes to you united upon one who will bring peace into our council, patriotism and power into our campaign and success to our contest. I say plain and success to our contest. I say New York is united and in saying so, I deny the charge that has been spread blown with powder.

The platform is a compromise acceptable to all of the interests involved and was adopted unanimously by the committee. It may be said in general to have been a concession to the Bryan wing of the party without in any way stuftffying the declarations of the conservatives. The absence of any pronouncement upon the financial question is most significant and discloses the utter impossibility of finding any declaration upon this subject acceptable

Following is the gold plank that Bryan forced out of the platform:

"The discoveries of gold within the past few years and the great increase in the production thereof, adding two thousand million dollars to the world's supply, of which seven hundred million falls to the share of the United States, have contributed to the maintenance of a money standard of value, no longer open to question, removing that issue from the field of political contention."

The planks in the platform which differ from those presented by the subcommittee follow:

Contempts In Federal Courts

We deny the right of any executive to listegard or suspend any constitutional civilege or limitation. Obedience to the aws and respect for their requirements are alike the supreme duty of the citizen rule the efficient. are alike the supreme duty of the citizen and the official.

The military should be used only to support and maintain the law. We unqualifiedly condemn its employment for the summary banishment of citizens without trial or for the control of elections.

We approve the measure which passed the United States senate in 1896, but which a Republican congress has ever since refused to enact, relating to contempts in federal courts and providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt.

Improvement of Waterways

We favor liberal appropriations for the approvement of waterways of the country. When any waterway like the Mississippi iver is of sufficient importance to demand pecial aid of the government such aid hould be extended with a definite plan f continuous work until permanent improvement is secured.

Ye oppose the Republican policy of rving home development in order to 1 the greed for conquest and the apperfor national "prestige" and display of month.

Honesty In Public Service

1. Large reductions can easily be made the annual expenditures of the government without impairing the efficiency of y branch of the public service, and we all insist upon the strictest economy and agality compatible with vigorous and efficient civil, military and naval administration as a right of the people, too clear to denied or withheld.

We favor honesty in the public serve, the enforcement of honesty in the bile service, and to that end a thorough islative investigation of those executive partments of the government already own to teem with corruption, as well as the departments suspected of harboring truption, and the punishment of ascerned corruptionists without fear or favor regard to persons. The persistent and liberate refusal of both the senate and ase of representatives to permit such instigation to be made demonstrates that y by a change in the executive and in legislative departments can complete sosures, punishment and correction be ained.

Executive Usurpation

3. We favor the nomination and election a president imbued with the principles the constitution, who will set his face ently against executive usurpation of dislative and judicial functions, whether it usurpation be veiled under the guise the executive construction of existing way, or whether it take refuge in the typic place of pressity or superior wis nt's pleas of necessity or superior wis- hero once.

Republicans Criticized

The existing Republican administration has been spasmodic, erratic, sensational, spectacular and arbitrary. It has made itself a satire upon the congress, the courts, and upon the settled practices and usages of national and international law.

It summoned the congress into hasty and futile extra session and virtually adjourned it, leaving behind in its flight from Washing uncalled calendars and unaccomplished tasks.

It made war, which is the sole power of congress, without its authority, thereby usurping one of its fundamental prerogatives. It violated a plain statute of the United States as well as plain treaty obligations, international usages and constitutional law; and has done so under pretense of executing a great public policy which could have been more easily affected lawfully, constitutionally and with honor.

It forced strained and unnatural constructions upon statutes usurping judicial interpretation, and substituting congressional enactment decree.

It withdrew from congress their customary duties of investigation which have heretofore made the representatives of the people and the states the terror of eviloders.

Appeal to the Country

Conducting the campaign upon this declaration of our principles and purposes, we invoke for our candidates the support, not only of our great and time-honored organization, but also the active assistance of all of our fellow-citizens who, disregarding past differences upon questions no longer in issue, desire the perpetuation of our constitutional government as framed our constitutional government as framed and established by the fathers of the re-

AN IDEAL CANDIDATE

Littleton Places Judge Parker's Name Before the Convention

Martin W. Littleton of New York, of medium height and sturdy figure, the grudge and rancor of party disconwith a full, clean-shaven face, with a tent, and, recalling with ever-increasing heavy mass of dark brown hair, tossed | pride, the triumphs of our 50 years of a back from his brow and ears, took the constitutional government of liberty stand amid ringing applause to place Judge Parker in nomination.

Mr. Littleton's manner of speaking is calm and deliberate and he uses but few gestures. His voice is full, resonant and of decidedly pleasing quality, and could be heard further than that of any speaker who had preceded him. He said in part:

"There is much talk of twisting tendons in the race of life, of running out of breath toward the open grave. The old and honored way is still the best, but not so strenuous as to strain yourself, nor yet so simple as to fall asleep. There is much said by those who sit on cushioned chairs about cowards and weaklings in the nation's life. The sunburnt farmer is just as brave as the star-crowned soldier. The man of natural peace is hero a hundred times to where the man of artificial war is

We especially denounce rebates and discrimination by transportation companies as the most potent agency in promoting and strengthening these unlawful conspiracles against trade.

We demand a strict enforcement of existing civil and criminal statutes against all such trusts, combinations and monopolies and we demand the enactment of such further legislation as may be necessary to effectually suppress them.

The Improved the monopolity tending these fears and doubts and startled dreams and vague misgivings, is many a hidden cause. But over them is one at least revealed. For Lincoln said, in the sadness of his great soul, "With malice toward none, with charity for all, with faith in the right as God gives us the wisdom to see it." And Roosevelt said, in the glory of his self-contemplation, 'Tread softly and carry a big stick.'

"And between these, the beginning We congratulate our western citizens upon the passing of the law known as the Newlands irrigation act for the irrigation and reclamation of the arid lands of the west; a measure framed by a Democrat, passed in the senate by a non-partisan rote and passed in the house against the apposition of almost all the Republican eaders by a vote the majority of which was Democratic.

And between these, the beginning and the end of Republican growth, in time and temper, is all their wild, descending flight. With all they know and feel of the country's question of their course, the Republican party yet claim every fruit of soil and sun, of brain and soul. So, on the whole, we brain and soul. So, on the whole, we may conclude that whatever the good Lord does in administering this good overcast over the country that there is dissension.

"The country, anxious to win in this great crisis, called upon New York as the battleground. New York answers with a candidate who carried the state by 60,000 majority; a man who cut his way through poverty and toil until he found the highest peak of power and honor in the state; who learned the simple lessons of Democratic faith in the furrowed field, who took them with increasing strength to the bar and finally honored them by his exalted station on the bench; a man who, throughout his career from poverty to power, never in fair weather or foul forsook the standards of his party faith or deserted the colors of his command.

"If you ask me why he has been silent I tell you it is because he does not claim to be the master of the Democratic party, but is content to be its servant. If you ask me why he has not outlined a policy for this convention, I tell you that he does not believe that policies should be dictated, but that the sovereignty of the party is in the untrammeled judgment and wisdom of its members; if you ask me what his policy will be, if elected, I tell you that it will be that policy which finds expression in the platform of his party.

"We appeal to you of the old south and the new, to join with us in this contest of the supremacy of our party. We appeal to the west, whose frontier struggles carried our civilization to the Pacific slopes; whose courage conquered the plain and forest and whose faithful labor has built beautiful cities clear through the Rocky mountains; we appeal to New England, faithful sentinel among her historic hills, in the name of all her unfaltering and brilliant Democrats, living and dead, to join us in our labor for success.

"We appeal to every Democrat from everywhere to forget the bitter warfare of the past; forget the strife and anger of the older, other days; abandon all and peace-here and now resolve to make the future record that reand peace went up and down the nations reported sewerage polution inof the earth, building their kingdom in the hearts of men and gathering the harvest of genius and toil; in which reason struck from the hand of force the sword of hate and plucked from the heart of war the germ of greed; in which conscience smote the thoughts of wrong and filled the mind with mercy's sweet restraint; in which power grew in the human brain, but refused the shelter of a glittering crown; in which the people of all lands and tongues, awakened to hope by the inspiration of our example, followed with the march of years the luminous pathway leading to a destiny beyond the reach of vision and within the providence of God. In this spirit New York nominates for President of the United States Alton B. Parker."

THE VICE PRESIDENCY

Big Field of "Favorite Sons" For Second Place on Ticket

Great uncertainty still exists cona flash of swords in its silver beams; cerning the vice presidential nominasomehow, although the constitution is tion. The same candidates which have still in force, there is a sense of failing heretofore been mentioned are still of the committee. The confusion was so great that not a word could be heard so great that not a word could be heard that the burdens of taxation shall be distributed as equally as possible.

The great climax of the convention, the nomination of a candidate for president, followed immediately upon the adoption of the platform.

Chairman Clark proceeded to the order of business without delay. Aladema was called and yielded to New York. Mr. Littleton's speech immetites the structure of the tendent of the tendent of the tendent of the support of the bama was called and yielded to New York. Mr. Littleton's speech immetites connounceally administered and solved as not to discriminate against any industry, class or section, to the end that the burdens of taxation shall be distributed as equally as possible.

We favor a revision and a gradual reduction of the tariff by the friends of the masses for the commonwealth, and not by the friends of its abuses, its extortions and its discriminations, keeping in view the ultimate ends of "equality of burdens and its discriminations, keeping in view the ultimate ends of "equality of burdens and its discriminations, keeping in view the ultimate ends of "equality of burdens and its discriminations, keeping in view the ultimate ends of "equality of burdens and its discriminations, keeping in view the ultimate ends of "equality of burdens the structure to shock right down the foundations of this republic which makes the structure tremble and all the country pauses and listens and then returns to work. Ohio men are also in doubt whether a candidate shall be presented from that state. Judson Harmon, formerly attorney general in President Cleveland's cabinet, or John R. McLean, proprietor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, have both been discussed in connection with the second place on the ticket, but no determination has been reached to pre sent either of them.

Various states intend to present "favorite sons" for the nomination, but whether they will be able to gather any strength from other sections of the country appears problematical. It now looks as if the ballots must decide who will fill the second place on the national ticket.

The western men have acquired quite a number of delegates to support former Senator Turner of Washington. Senator Culberson of Texas was mentioned, but he quickly stated that his name could not be used in connection with the place.

BRYAN WILL SUPPORT IT

St. Louis, July 9.-Members of the platform committee generally express themselves as satisfied with the work they have accomplished, some of the expressions being as follows:

Senator Tillman. "We have accomgetting a platform without any poison

Mr. Bryan. "I am fairly well satopportunity to present some matters as I desired, and I have had to make concessions in some instances in order to get what I wanted to get in others."

"Will you support a ticket on this platform?" was asked of him. "I will certainly support the platform," was Quincy, Frass. his reply; and this was said in a way to convince his interrogator that he fully expected to be able to support both platform and ticket.

Senator Hill and William J. Bryan came out together and both were smiling. Mr. Bryan said to the newspaper men: "Now, boys, be sure and get Hill's platform right," and Hill retorted with a laugh, "I think we will have to share honors on that.'

Mr. Bryan said: "We are all satisfied. We have all wanted some things put in that the committee has rejected. but on the whole the document is perfectly satisfactory. You know you can't get everything you want."

Senator Hill said: "I am perfectly satisfied. Of course there are things that I wanted in, and thought should LAWSON & BLANCHARD. go in, but in politics it is give and take, and I am taking. I should have liked to have seen an expression on finances in the platform, but the majority thought otherwise and neither Mr Bryan's plank nor mine was adopted. You will remember that the New York state convention made no mention on the financial question and so this platform is similar. We did not put in an income tax plank and we changed only slightly the tariff plank."

> "Will Judge Parker stand on the not see why not. I am said to be one said I am satisfied."

August Belmont said he was satis-Judge Parker could stand. He said: have a platform without any financial finally settled the matter and it is superfluous for any party to merely reiterate."

John Sharp Williams, who made the original draft of the platform, said: "I am delighted with it."

Despite Senator Hill's optimistic views of the situation, there were many expressions of strong disapproval in the Parker headquarters by delegates. One said: "Parker cannot stand for such a platform, and if he is nominated he will be compelled to deal with the financial question in his letter of acceptance.'

To this statement Cord Myer, the chairman of the New York Democratic state committee, said: "Something like that will have to be done, or we will not be able to carry New York."

The anti-Parker people were jubilant over the matter when they heard the disposition of the financial plank. Charles F. Murphy said: "I don't think the decision of the committee has improved Parker's chances, but, of course, nobody knows Judge Parker's views." It was said at Tammany headquarters that at a meeting of the anti-Parker forces Bryan had stated that he would willingly accept either Olney George Fred Williams had declared that he would accept Olney.

AN ARBITRARY TYRANT.

This Autocrat Exists Solely by the Will of the People.

And it came to pass that in the very height of modern times an arbitrary tyrant ruled over a great country called America. The name of this tyrant was Everybodydoesit, and all the inhabitants of the land bowed themselves to his will. Terror of the autocrat caused grown men and women to cast aside every dictate of common sense-sometimes of honesty as well. Children overstudied, wearing out precious eyesight, cramping growing organs, yet mothers whispered under their breath the name of Everybodydoesit and the evil went on. Men bought houses and European passages, automobiles and other expensive luxuries, the cost of which was out of all proportion to their income. "Everybodydoesit" was the explanation they gave.

Sorriest of all was the case of the wholesome plays, read books produced by diseased minds, they overdressed, abandoned the gentle ideals of their mothers' day and grew old before their time. "Everybodydoesit," they said.

And thus it was in all classes of society throughout the broad land. All men and women, young and old, recognized the sway of Everybodydoesit and bowed their necks to his yoke.-Philadelphia North American.

-One emphatic suggestion offered by the Slocum tragedy is that those of us who don't already know how to swim, and expect to sail in a steamer some time, should take advantage of this summer to learn. Not that in the mo ment of catastrophe, if it comes to us on the water, we can rely too much upon our ability to swim a hundred strokes, five hundred or a balf-mile. In great excitement ability is apt to yield to confusion and distraction. But while many a good swimmer has been lost in ocean accidents there are many others who have survived because they had a confident acquaintanceship with the water. Swimming is a great joy to those who know how, and while there ing, if one wishes to be foolish, there is also peril in crossing the trolley or the steam railroad track at certain times. There are certain things we all ought to know how to do in some measure, and swimming seems to be one of them. - Boston Transcript.

Former Resident Tells of Terror When War Broke Out.

CORNERS IN WHEAT AND OIL.

Excitement When Japanese Shelled the Russian Town - Faith In the Czar's Army-Submarine Boats En Route Over the Continent-Dissatisfaction of Russians Over the War.

These are but early days in the history of the great racial struggle now being waged for supremacy in the orient. Hitherto the story has been mainly told through the medium of the submarine cables, says a writer in the Englishman who has spent several months within the troubled area and from which he recently returned.

He was in Vladivostok before the outbreak of hostilities and has told me of the serenity which possessed men when war was deemed impossible, of the consternation when it appeared imminent and of the absolute terror when it actually broke out. Not the least interesting part of his story was that which shows how the love of money transcends even that of human life, how "corners" were made in wheat and kerosene and famine stared the people in the face. This latter commodity was bought up in large quantities by the Chinese traders and retailed in eight gallon cases at 5 rubles each, a little more than $2.50. The commandant of the Vladivostok forces, however, spoiled this little artifice of fixing the price of meat, wheat, kerosene and various other necessaries of life, a standard from which no deviation was allowed. "How did the populace receive the proclamation of war?" I asked.

"Well, at first the people were terror stricken. They fled in all directionsfrom the coast. Some went to Harbarovsk, others to Blagovestchensk, and not a few to Nikolskussuriski, but the hardships were many, and most of them soon returned. The chief difficulty was with regard to food. At first all was right. Then the government took all the meat, save a small quantity of pork, for the troops, and we had to live on almost vegetarian diet. Sheep will not live in Vladivostok. It is strange, but quite true. You may imagine how short we were running when I say that the Dalni-Vostok, one of the two Vladivostok papers, came out printed on brown paper, all the white paper being used up.

"I shall never forget the bombardment, which commenced on March 6. About 2 o'clock in the day Japanese shells came raining into the town. Many of them went high and struck the hills at the back of the town. Others fell in the streets, but failed to explode. One did strike a house 200 yards from where I lived; this killed an old woman who lay ill in bed. The town was saved, I think, by high sighting on the part of the Japanese gunners and to the bad ammunition. During the bombardment a number of ladies ran about the streets weeping and wringing their hands, but the real damage done was

"And how ran public opinion at this period?"

"The people pinned their faith to the Russian army. Never once do I remember their accepting a report of a Russian defeat, official or otherwise. Kuropatkin was a hero; he was exceedingly popular. Alexeieff they would not have at all. Poor Makaroff; he was a man after their own heart. I shall never forget the real grief which was exhibited when the news of his death arrived. Russian officials were very busy just about that time too I was in a restaurant on more than one occasion when a Russian officer bade us stop conversing in English. Conversing in public had to be in the Russian language or not at all. One queer thing I ought to mention was that the Chinese coolies resident in the town were refused railway tickets. As the only other way out was to walk many thousands of miles in an inhospitable country it was a capital scheme for keeping them in the place. The bulk of the manual labor in Vladivostok is carried on by the Chinese." "Had you any difficulty in getting

"None, except that they would not book me through to Moscow. My first ticket took me to Pogranichni; from there I renewed to Harbin, thence to Manchuria station, where I finally got a through ticket to Moscow.

"I left Vladivostok at 8:15 a. m. on May 18, and we went slow to Irutsk; from there, however, the express trains are again running to Moscow. I arrived at Irkutsk at about 5 p. m. on May 27. When about a day's journey from Tanhoi, the station at which passengers disembark in order to cross Lake Baikal, we stopped at a station, the name of which I forget. Standing in it was a train consisting of ten wagons, upon which were being conveyed five boats, which were, as far as I could see, Russian submarines. Each boat was loaded upon two trucks, and was, I think, about sixty feet long. been a periscope.

to the question whether the craft were within the past few months.

SCENES IN VLADIVOSTOK torpedo boats or submarines the man simply replied, 'Ya ne znieu' (I do not know). At Oby Station, which is the other side of Lake Baikal, we passed a similarly laden train, each of the vessels being identical with the first batch. I noticed also at Oby Station several large guns, possibly six inch, all going

"How did you find traveling on the Siberian railway?"

"Traveling is fairly comfortable. It would be much more so if one could have meals prepared on board. As it is, each passenger on starting has to purchase a kettle, a teapot, sugar and tea. At every railway station boiling water is supplied free."

"Is there much of what I might call 'military display' along the Transsi berian route?

"Well, from Vladivostok to Irkutsk there was a soldier to every verst (less than a mile) of railway; at each station London News, but the other day I had there were many. On an average a the privilege of an interview with an train passed us every two hours, every one of which was either a transport or a Red Cross train. A great number of them also carried horses and artillery. After Irkutsk we saw the first passenger train."

"When did you arrive in Moscow?" "Last Saturday week, and I stopped there for six days. During that time I paid several visits to various old Russian families, friends of mine. It struck me rather strangely to hear them say they had never known such unpatriotic feelings exhibited in Russia as during the past few months. Everywhere the people are discontented at the turn affairs have taken, and each of my friends was free, as free as one can be in Russia, in expressing a hope that this war would be a lesson to Russian arrogance and tend to make them more prepared in the future."

NO GUESSING BY JAPAN.

Arrangements For Army Supplies Well Nigh Perfect.

Nothing should give the friends of Japan more confidence than the way the detail of supply is being managed, says the London Mail. The arrangements are the more noteworthy because of the contrast supplied by the other side. The Russians sent their cavalry from Manchuria into Korea hampered by baggage wagons and having to depend mainly upon what they could immediately gather from the people. At every step their troops had to stop to hunt for fodder.

The Japanese have gone to work in different style. Long ago they started Korean language classes in Tokyo for picked soldiers. While some of the best Japanese officers were making their way to Mongolia to organize and train the so called robber bands therewho are now, many of them, practically Japanese irregular cavalry in disguise-others went all over northern Korea.

Men living as Koreans, speaking the language as natives, regarded by even the natives as people of their own race. were in every district. The Japanese knew not merely every road, but apparently every person.

Thus, when fighting came, they knew the land, while the Russians, living on its borders, did not. Every Japanese officer has his map of the part he is working in. The Russians, apparently, have had to make their maps as they go, for the first Russian scouting expeditions have been accompanied by taff officers who drew plans and sketched maps as they went.

The Russians have had difficulty in obtaining reliable interpreters and, if report speaks true, have been utterly misled more than once by the stories carried to them by Koreans. The Japanese have their own people trained for that purpose.-London Mail.

SWISS TRAVEL NOVELTIES.

Trunks May Be Sent by Post Throughout the Land.

Consul Washington, at Geneva, calls the attention of American travelers to the very inexpensive tickets which permit the holder to travel throughout Switzerland upon most of its railways and lake steamers at will for periods of from fifteen to thirty days, says the New York World. These tickets are obtainable at all arge railway and boat stations in Switzerland. They may be ordered through any station. A delay of from one to two days is usual, and a photograph is required. The tickets permit continuous and unlimited travel at will during the period of their validity upon most of the railways and lakes in Switzerland, and upon some fifteen of the small roads not embraced in the ticket privilege (usually funicular roads) a reduction of from 20 to 50 per cent upon usual fares is extended.

It is a useful point of information for travelers that trunks may be sent by post throughout the country and thus may be delivered at hotels to wait the arrival of owners. This is a practical plan for medium sized and small trunks and valises. The trunks must be sent to the postoffice, but are delivered on their arrival.

THE MOTHER'S VACATION. Mothers' Substitutes" Would Create a New Occupation For Women. We say everybody ought to have a vacation. No one tries to excuse this all the ingredients in the package for mak necessity. Almost every one has at two quarts of delicious ice cream. some time experienced its benefits. It package today. 13c. per package, two for 25c is not uncommon to hear that some radical change of surroundings and occupation has brought back strength supposed to be lost forever or even cured what seemed a mortal disease. .Dit those who need this change the most are the very ones who are unable to expect such a thing, much less enjoy it.

The more responsible the occupation the more constant is the personal attention and the more sure the consequent physical exhaustion and mental strain. Love for one's occupation lightens work, but it very frequently defers the necessary rest. It should be made imperative that those people who have the greatest responsibilities should include a vacation in their plans for each year.

It is unnecessary to prove that a mother holds the most responsible of all positions, and we must add to this responsibility the sewing, cooking and cleaning that fall to the lot of the average mother. But who ever heard of a mother having a vacation-a real vacation, not a trip with the children, FRANK F. CRANL but a complete separation from home ties and associations? That this idea sounds like heresy may be sufficient proof of the necessity for such a change.

But such a custom will never originate among the mothers themselves. Motherhood means unselfishness. If any mother ever longs for a change she will conceal the longing and consider it the morbid result of some nervous condition. Teach the boys a practical knowledge of household duties and family requirements that they may know their proper performance occupies seven days in the week, including holidays and many nights! The mother's vacation must be planned for and insisted upon by the father, since he is her natural protector and in most cases he holds the purse strings.

But the question, according to the author of the foregoing plea made in the Boston Cooking School Magazine, is, Who will undertake the care of the family? When dread illness comes we summon the trained nurse. At such a time the condition of the patient is much more critical than that of a family rendered motherless for a week or two. But why not educate mothers substitutes and create a new occupation for women? All over the country may be found widows and unmarried sisters who are left alone to earn a livelihood. They have no practical knowledge of anything but housework and are too old to enter upon any new occupation. They must become either servants or dependents. Many such women are well educated and fitted to become a member of any good home.

It is plain that such an occupation as the proposed would require remarkable women, women able to do and oversee all kinds of housework, to en tertain and care for children, to meet each emergency with promptness and tact, to laugh at little worries and overcome all friction with ready adaptability. The capability is the result observed in the maturity of all intelligent domestic women.

over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential. Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and com-parison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the com-pany which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Pru-dential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wana-maker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons. These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Another big vaudeville show is promised at Keith's the week commencing July 11. Among the prominent entertainers scheduled are the following: Harry La Rose and company, in a new and amusing comedy sketch, "The Sailor and the Horse"; The Mitchells, a trio of "real coon" comedians and dancers; Harry Watson, a clever comedy bicyclist; Al Lawrence, favorite mimotic monclogue comedian: Schenk brothers, two of the best acrobats who have ever visited America, and Havward and Hayward, in a specialty sketch. McIntyre and Heath, the popular blackface comedians, will hold over, making a change of sketch to "The Man from Montana." This will positively be their last appearances in the varieties in New England. The Fadettes will make an entire change of selections and the biograph will show all new motion pictures.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Another comparative novelty will be brought forward at the Castle Square Theatre next week, when the attraction will be Campbell Stratton's stage version of the well known story of "Dr Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Other versions of the story have been made familiar to the Boston public but this one has not been seen here. The productian of Mr. Stratton's play in other cities has gained much favor and he is credited with having shown rare skill in planning its scenes and situations effectively. Mr. William Humphrey is to assume the dual character made famous by Stevenson and so successfully created for the stage by Richard Marsfield. A succession of notably strong productions has been planned for during the balance of the summer season, each being given a single week. The usual free distribution of souveair boxes of chocolate bonbons is to be made at the Monday matinees until further notice.

The fire department answered two alls in the Point district on Sunday. The first alarm was from Box 72 and was rung in at 2.40 A. M. This was for a fire in the new house of George Packard on Shaw street, one of the officer new streets through the Abne new streets through the Abner Packard

The house had just been completed and was to have been occupied next week. When discovered the fire had made good headway and was burning fiercely. It seemed to be on fire all over, and made a bright illumination. after the alarm sounded, and well directed streams of water soon had it under control

The building, however, was badly damaged, the estimated loss being 1500. The cause of the fire appears to e a mystery. It is believed, however, to have been the work of tramps as ome baked potatoes were found on the

It is somewhat remarkable that a fire ould burn so long without having been liscovered as this one did. James Galagher, a member of the fire department, is the one who discovered the fire and gave the alarm. Mr. Gallagher was rowing up the river in a boat when he saw the illumination.

Not having heard any alarm and realzing that a big fire was in progress, he rowed to Hanley's wharf and ran from there to the box on the corner of Washington and South streets and gave the alarm. The illumination was also seen from West Quincy before the alarm was sounded. It will be seen therefore that the fire had every opportunity to gain the headway that it did.

The second alarm came from Box 74 at 3.25 P. M. and was for a fire in a box of straw in the rear of Jacob Peterson's store at 294 Washington street. The recall was promptly sounded.

The excursion of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers to Barre the latter part of the month offers a grand opportunity for a trip to the "Green Mountain" state. DOG'S LOVE FOR GASOLINE.

Canine Has Annoying Habit of Following Automobiles.

Samuel P. Hedges of Greenport, N. Y., has a dog that has a remarkable habit of following automobiles, says a dispatch from that town. When the dog was a mere pup Mr. Hedges used to carry it around with him in his ma chine. Later it followed closely be Mr. Hedges' machine was a steam carriage, and as the dog developed his automobile chasing bump it would follow any machine that came along propelled by steam, while it would not look at the gasoline carriages. Later Mr. Hedges purchased have been made since July 4. a gasoline machine. The dog got used to this and now pays strict attention to any gasoline machine and does not heed the steam carriages. A few days ago a big touring car from Brooklyn arrived in Greenport. The dog spied it and followed closely behind all around the village. Finally the machine started west for Riverhead, with the dog in close pursuit. In Riverhead the dog was discovered by a person who knew where it beonged. This man telephoned to Mr. Hedges, and he made a request that the machine stop long enough for him to get the dog, but the machine owners were in a hurry and started through the woods for Quogue. The dog arrived in Greenport the next day, footsore and weary. It rested a whole day and was then ready and willing to follow its bent once more.

Mr. Hedges, who does not want to lose his pet, has had a nice collar fitted to his neck bearing these words: "Send this --- fool auto chaser back to Hedges, Greenport."

Dead and Wounded Brought Into Russian Naval Base at All Hours-Godspeed of Emperor William to Russian Regiment

St. Petersburg, July 11.-Lieutenant General Sakharoff, in a dispatch to the general staff, confirms the report of the Japanese occupation of Kai Chou. He says that Russian loss did not exceed 150 killed or wounded. General Sakharoff adds that the Japanese are on the Yin Kow road.

An important point in the official account of the battle of Kai Chou is the statement in Lieutenant General Sakharoff's report that the Japanese are advancing along the coast toward Yin Kow. The wording of the original dispatch is not clear and might read equally well that the Japanese cavalry had already arrived at Yin Kow.

Captain Sekretoff's ambuscade of Japanese squadron north of Siu Yen shows that the Russian force is further east in this region than was generally

Port Arthur Hard Pressed

Chefoo, July 11.-A fair wind brought a fleet of junks from Port Arthur yesterday carrying both Chinese and Europeans. Reports which they bring of conditions at Port Arthur all say that a Japanese division from the from the marine camp, while another division from the eastward is fighting continuously and with the aid of the fleet is endeavoring to gain a position commanding the town and naval base. A Russian says that the Japanese occupied the summit of Taku Shan mountain, which is about three miles 6, with a mounted battery of artillery.

The fighting to the eastward of Port Arthur had been very heavy since July 4. The Japanese ships along the shore are shelling the Russian position in the hills. The smoke from the artillery on to make the presentation was carried the hills around Port Arthur is seen almost continuously. Dead and wounded are being brought in at all hours, and many private houses have been turned into hospitals. Only skirmishes have occurred to the northward. The main Japanese force is 10 miles away, but Japanese scouts have been seen in the gave the alarm and the fire was put vicinity of the main camps which command the principal pass to the hills directly back of Port Arthur. On the nights of July 2, 3 and 4 the Japanese the cellar and the face was covered fleet bombarded the roads from the south of the town. The forts were not damaged. No further night attacks

The Kaiser's Good Wishes

St. Petersburg, July 11.-A sensation Russky Invalid, the army organ, of a telegram from Emperor William to the colonel of the Wiborg (Finland) regiment, of which the emperor is honorary colonel-in-chief. The emperor congratulates the regiment on the prospect of meeting the Japanese and adds that he is proud his Wiborg regiment will have the honor of fighting for its emperor, the fatherland and the fame of the Russian army. In concluding the emperor says: "My sincere wishes accompany the regiment. God bless its standards."

The telegram's contents soon became widely known and formed the general topic of conversation. A considerable section of the public even deduced from the message that Germany intends before long to abandon her position as a mere onlooker with regard to events in the far east.

In diplomatic circles, while the telegram has caused much surprise and comment, it is immediately associated with the approaching commercial treaty negotiations in Berlin. lice surveillance. Moreover, it has been repeatedly affirmed that Russia desires to raise money in Berlin.

COURTSHIP IN TIBET. Customs of a Land That Never Mixes

Romance and Matrimony. W. C. Jameson Reid, writing in the Booklovers' Magazine about courtship and marriage in Tibet, says: Wives are sometimes secured by a foraging expedition on a weaker tribe and by seizing as many women as may be desired. The usual method, how ever, is this: When a warrior, surfeited with the glory of martial life, desires a wife he waits upon the father of the girl who has attracted his eye and makes an offer of marriage. The father, after weighing the matter care fully-for a refusal is likely to provoke a long and bloody feud-in turn waits upon the priests and acquaints them with the nature of the offer, at the same time paying to them a munificent bribe in order to secure the answer of the deities as to whether the marriage should be entered into. The wife seekmeantime carried a larger bribe to the lamas, who "bleed" both father and suitor to the limit of safety, when the decision of the deities is given. For a month the accepted suitor must keep the family of his favored one supplied with meat and other luxuries and must be on his guard against rival suitors. At the end of a month the chosen one is invited to a grand feast by the father of the girl, where the betrothal is sealed by each cutting a small incision in the arm and mingling the blood flowing from the wound. This function of blood brotherhood having been finished, the girl is brought forward, smeared with grease and various colored pigments, adorned in all her finery and with a rope tied around her neck as a badge of subservience. Then ensues a scene of the shrewdest bargaining, the father dilating on the good points of the girl much in the manner that a connoisseur of blooded stock would expound the good points of an animal, while the suitor. having calculated how many cattle he is willing to give, strives to secure her at the lowest possible price. The wishes of the woman are never consulted, but the bargaining goes on for days and even weeks until a final settlement has been arrived at. The requisite price having been paid, she is led to the house of her husband, where she is subjected to a severe beating in order to humble her spirit and made to run round the village loudly proclaiming the merits and valor of of her husband, meanwhile touching those objects which are supposed to have a potent influence over her wel-

Some of the excited talked of revoking the action of the convention and making a new nomination.

With monotonous iteration the clerk called the roll of states, and with monotonous regularity speakers went to the platform and uttered platitudes when the audience was waiting to hear the words of a man who had the courage of his convictions and was not afraid to let all the world hear them. And while Poe of Maryland was seconding the nomination of ex-Senator Davis, and the humor of nominating a vice presidential candidate when there was doubt about the president appealed to the audience, there was a sudden stir among the delegates. Sheehan, Hill, McCarren and a few others had been holding an earnest conference in their seats in the New York for timultuous applause. Mr. Bryan's

For 15 minutes Hill and his associates conferred, while the speakers filled time on the platform with their speeches, and then Senator Culberson, with great for the convention to talk about nominating a vice president when they were not sure about their presidential candi date.

To give time for further consideration he moved an adjourmnment until 8:30. Champ Clark, the chairman, put the question and was answered with a thunderous "No" and a feeble "Yes," but Mr. Clark, with a calmness that Tom Reed would have admired and envied, declared the ayes had it and the convention stood adjourned.

Immediately after adjournment Hill, Tillman, Daniel, Sheehan and other members of the committee on resolutions went into conference to devise means to save the situation.

While they were calmly discussing things there were more exciting discussions taking place elsewhere. The hotels that had been beginning to resume their normal appearance were filled with an excited, angry, disputing crowd, a crowd that talked of

Parker in no gentle terms; that shouted for Bryan and Hearst in savage voice, was ready for almost any act of mad impulse. Mr. Bryan was ill in bed, but his room was invaded by delegates, some of whom tore their Parker badges off and stamped upon them in their fury. It was 9:30 when John S. Williams, Senator Bailey of Texas, Senator Till man, ex-Governor Hill and the other onferees on the Parker telegram ar jived in the hall. The three first named came directly to the platform.

The managers had decided on a plan stand by the nominee and to so arrange | die. matters that the convention would indorse the course taken by Parker.

Harmony was the one thing mos of all desired, and the most popula man in the convention was put forward to let the convention know that har mony must prevail. John S. Williams in a voice that all could hear, advanced to the front of the platform, and an nounced that only one telegram had been received in St. Louis from Judge

Parker's Message He asked Governor Vardaman to read the telegram. It was evident that Mississippi's chief executive enjoyed holding the centre of the stage as he read with great unction the now famous telegram: "Hon. W. F. Sheehan, Hotel Jeffer tee had not deemed it necessary to present a currency plank in the platform as the currency question was regarded as settled, and the convention would be asked to send this telegram in reply to Judge Parker:

"The platform adopted by this convention is silent on the question of the monetary standard because it is not recognized by us as a possible issue in this campaign and only campaign issues are mentioned in the platform Therefore there is nothing in the views expressed by you in the telegram sent which would preclude a man entertaining them from accepting a nomination

Mr. Bryan at 10:20 came into the hall and his appearance was the signal appearance there at that time was dramatic in the extreme.

Early Saturday morning he had spoken in impassioned tones in that hall what everybody regarded as his vehemence, declared that it was folly valedictory, and had gone to his hotel sick in mind and body.

Once more he had been called and that he had come from his bed to that hall and that he had come against the advice of his physician.

Bryan Takes the Floor

Mr. Bryan was quite inaudible when he first spoke. His lips were seen to move, but not a word that escaped from them could be heard. His face was wan and haggard, the tremendous vitality of the man had left him. But suddenly the Bryan of old stood before his audience.

His words could now be heard and they were words that came with passionate strength from his lips. "If the question of gold has been settled we should be honest and say so. I appeal to you," he said in that tone of passionate appeal that few orators except Bryan know how to imply, "to take the voters into your confidence."

There was a ring of stinging sar casm in his voice as he described it as a manly thing for Parker to express his opinion before the convention ad- David B. Hill, William F. Sheehan and journed, but it would have been still August Belmont, the candidate's more manly if he had expressed his opinions before the convention met.

Several other delegates spoke upon the matter and it was nearly midnight when Bryan returned to the platform, his voice still further impaired.

He read an account of the comproleaders had agreed in the committee on resolutions. He undertook to show why the advocates of the old platforms had conceded for the sake of a unanimous report and to enforce his protest again, the convention being driven to an extreme. Mr. Bryan told the convention how

Henry Gassaway Davis was born in the city of Baltimore Nov. 16, 1823, and is therefore 81 years of age, by many years the oldest man ever nominated for a like office in the United States. His early education was gained in the country schools of the state, but owing to the death of his parents he was thrown upon his own resources when but 15 years of age.

Beginning as a farm overseer, and following a short term of service at country store clerking, the Democratic nominee through his own exertions has risen to become a bank president and figure of national prominence. When but 20 years old he married

Kate A., daughter of Judge Gideon Bantz of Frederick, Md., and for several years following acted as superintendent of the extensive plantation where he was employed. When about 27 years old and at the

The resolution was carried by 764.to | "the resolution of last night precluded any action until Chairman Jones issued a call for New York."

Senator Bailey of Texas said the matter should be settled at once. It was customary, he said, for the committee to meet immediately after the adjournment and elect, and a resolution was passed last Thursday to that effect by the convention.

"I guess," he said, "that we can have Judge Parker's views in a few minutes

After nearly two hours' debate, Senator Bailey offered to compromise if the committee would adopt a resolution endorsing the candidacy of Thomas Taggart for chairman of the committee. Mr. Mack agreed to this and the resolution was adopted. The committee will therefore meet in New York on the call of Chairman Jones.

TOOK NO CHANCES

Utmost Secrecy In Transmitting the Parker Telegram

It is now known that Parker's telegram to Sheehan was sent from the Western Union Telegraph office at Esopus, and the story of the precautions taken, both to keep it secret and to verify its authenticity before it was delivered, constitute a remarkable chapter in the story of this extraordinary political incident. Judge Parker's coachman, Robinson, took the original message to the West Shore station at Esopus at 11:30 Saturday and delivered to the Western Union operator there with impressive caution as to secrecy. The message was addressed to Sheehan at the Jefferson hotel, St. Louis. Very soon after it had been sent the superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph company in New York called up the Esopus operator and required him to personally verify the original telegram by a visit to Parker himself. The delivery of the message in St. Louis, it appears, was being delayed until the authenticity of the dispatch could be proved beyond

The operator called Parker's home on the telephone and insisted on talking with the judge himself (whose voice he recognized) and told him of the situation. At Parker's request the operator read the message to the judge and upon the latter's assurance that it was all right, St. Louis received word to deliver it to Sheehan.

Comment of British Press

London, July 11.-Several newspapers this morning print editorials referring to the national Democratic convention at St. Louis and all of them agree that Parker's personality is in accordance with the traditions as to candidates for the presidency.

The Standard declares that Parker's message to Sheehan is a "deed which will give Parker a place in history. Conceivably it may send him to the White House, but it will certainly make him a force to be reckoned with in American politics for some time to come." The Standard maintains that there is not much to choose between the St. Louis and Chicago platforms. The Times says: "By a single act terests in newly opened West Virginia of that courage which is so often the result of political wisdom, Parker has Mr. Davis was elected to the United placed himself among the most strik Democratic member of that body from the Unifed States. We are now assured that no matter which side shall be victorious the presidency will be filled by a statesman of courage, candor ### and high principle."

LETTERS OF RUSSIANS

Contempt of Czar's Soldiers For the Japanese.

DERISIVELY NICKNAMED "MAKAKI"

Too Small to Make a Good Target, a Cossack Wrote to His Brother-Another Calls Mikado's Men Ugly,
With Skins Like Leather-Pleasant
H. K., 28 Albertina street, South Quincy. Trip Across Siberia.

The Russian papers, meagerly supplied as they are with war news, have one source of information not possessed by the English journals-that is, the letters from the czar's Tommy Atkinses which they continually publish, says the London Sphere. Ivan Ivanovitch, as he is called, is not a good correspondent. The first thing that strikes the reader of the letters published in the Russian papers is Ivan's unbounded-and unfounded-contempt for his enemies. The "Makaki," as the Japanese are derisively nicknamed, are generally represented as undersized dwarfs who resented as undersized dwarfs who will certainly run away at the first onnew, about 7,000 feet of land. Owner is force. set of the burly Muscovites.

ing from the Yalu, thus describes his enemies to his mother in Tamboff: "I will tell you about the 'Makaki.' We see lots of them, prisoners, and they all go on to Tomsk. They are ugly and have skins like Teather and are frightfully afraid of our men. One of them was a Pravoslavni (Orthodox) Christian), and our men gave him an ikon and asked what he meant by fighting for the heathen, but he could not understand. The Japs have no language, but speak like Germans." Of the few letters which have so fa appeared from soldiers who have take part in the fighting the following i one of the most interesting. It was written by a Cossack in Mistchenko's force to his brother: "Salutes to you and Agafa. You have all heard about our fighting here Our captain, Levashin, with twenty of our men crossed the river to reconno ter 'Makaki' under their general, Ku ruse (?). We came upon them an hour after crossing the river, seven of their cavalry on a slope, with a little man no bigger than a goat at the head They fired at us, hitting one of our led horses, and then made off, we after them. When we had covered about a mile we saw about thirty of them away on our left, but they did not see us. Soon after they divided into two parties, and we rode round by a hill and shot three of them. We heard one of them screaming as he fell. When we got over the brow of the hill we saw a whole crowd of them, with two mountain guns, so we retired.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by nailing nostraid, or delivering a corn of this properties. In the properties of the court of this properties are the court of this properties. their yellow faces plainly. On the way ment. We came across another party and chased them for two versts. A last they got away, but one man could not get his horse across a gully. He got down and tried to drag his horse over, but the horse fell, and he could not get it up. He then ran on foot, but one of our men named Mirkoff from Bogoroditsa ran after him and spitted

"We thought he was dead, but when the lance came out of him he turned and, putting his rifle right into Mirkoff's face, shot him through the head. The other Japs got away. Next day we covered the same ground, but saw not a single Jap. We shall spit a good many before we have done. The difficulty is to hit them, they are so small. Judged by most of the letters the journey across Siberia is by no means the inferno it has been depicted. A letter from a private in the Samara regiment gives a rosy account of the passage: "We had a first rate time in the train, and you may tell Matvel what he missed. Any amount to eat and nothing to do except walk up and down at the stations. The only things we want are matches and books. We were kept two days on Lake Baikal, as the ice had a crack ten versts long in it, and our men were set to removing the rails on to the safe ice.

"We played cards in the train all the way from the lake to Chita, and Markoff played tunes to us on the balalaika (a sort of lute), so it was just like home, only no cows to look after. Some of our men got sick from being too long in the train and were left behind. It is not much colder here than in Russia. We are not going to Japan after all, at any rate at present, as the 'Ma-Half House, Pleasant Street, 6 rooms and bath. kaki' have attacked Port Arthur, and we shall be sent on there."

> London Society Fad. One of the tomfool fads of London just now is naming one's gown, the same as bestowing a title on one's horse or dog or country home, says the New York Press. An exceedingly smart Bond street dressmaker has started by ticketing the models. "The Kiss," "The Maiden's Blush," "The Dream of Paradise," and, curiously enough, these inane names suggest the gown. "The Dream of Paradise" is a crystal evening gown that glistens with a crisp shower of glass beads. Pink tulle finishes the "dream" at the corsage line and at the skirt. "The Kiss" is a rich pink affair of chiffon with lace and rosebuds. "The Maiden's Blush" is a pale embroidered muslin that might represent the flush of a miss seventeen years old. London women, always keen for sensation, have taken up the cue and they are naming their gowns after men friends. One peerless grass widow of the West End is calling her Trish lace frock her "Donald," and it will not be long before Newport women will be wearing "Harrys" and "Elishas" and "J. Henrys."

London, July 12.-General Oku's occupation of Kai Chow, and his dislodging of a Russian army, which he reports at upwards of 30,000, is an important advance in the scheme of the Japanese campaign. The deliberation of the maneuvering before the attack, and the force of the attack, once begun, show careful preparation.

The reported dispatch of a Japanese force along the road toward Yin Kow is in the nature of a flanking movement, and if supported in force will probably compel the evacuation of New Chwang, as well as the withdrawal further to the north of the Russian force just ousted from Kai Chow. ### Base Ball Notes.

Saturday the Quincy champions of last year will play South Quincys at Ward Three playground and a warm game is looked for.

Now that Mullane, Eldridge and Flynn are back with Quincys the team should put up the kind of ball they have in the past.

Why wouldn't a four or six club eague be the proper thing? That the public want to see local players in the game was evidenced at Ward Two on Saturday. Why not have West Quincys, St. Marys, and Quincys play a series of games for the championship? All can play fast ball and it would be a good attraction to close the season.

GREAT OCEAN HIGHWAYS.

Panama Canal Will Create a New "World's Street of the Seas."

The completion of the new Panama canal will have some marked effects upon the great lanes of ocean travel. Vessels have, to be sure, for years gone into Panama and Colon for the transshipment of their freight across the isthmus by rail. The effect of the opening of the new canal may be likened, says the London Mail, to that of the substitution of a strong bridge at a convenient place for crossing a river for a more or less uncertain ford. Such a bridge attracts wagon roads. The canal will draw toward it the commercial highways of the hemisphere. Vessels which are operated by steam can pursue an almost unvarying line. Their managers accordingly prescribe courses between various ports, known as lanes, over which practically all the shipping moves. In case of a breakdown the vessel is much sooner "picked up" on a lane than in less frequented parts of the sea. Moreover, rocks, derelicts and other obstructions may be more carefully charted and watched on the highly traveled courses.

There is usually an east and west lane a few miles apart to lessen the danger of collision. Out of Duluth, on the great lakes, there is a four track lane, two for passenger steamers and two for freighters.

Although the oceans of the world have no visible streets or crossings or signposts, in the eye of the navigator they are thus very distinctly marked. No railroad train makes so direct a line between points as the steamship; no locomotive engineer knows more exactly where he is at all times than the sea captain.

Sailing vessels, responsive to winds, tides and currents, go about more at random, yet there are enormous areas of the sea where no sail or smokestack is ever seen. Even on the steamship lanes of the Pacific one seldom spies a vessel in a trip across that ocean. Nearing the Suez, however, from either approach and it will be the same with the isthmian canal, it seems as if the ships of the world were out on parade, so plentiful do they suddenly become.

Judge Parker had no intimation of the subject matter of the platform unomination, said the authority. When he had gone for his horseback ride he realized that if he allowed the convention to adjourn without knowing his financial views, the people would regard as true Bryan's statement that Parker was tricking the convention and the party. He was not willing to profit by the nomination and thus be regarded as being guilty of trickery. It was decided to send a telegram to the convention. He returned from his ride and without consulting anyone wrote the telegram to Sheehan, which was filed at Esopus at 11:50 a.m. on Sat-

William F. Sheehan arrived at Esopus from St. Louis yesterday afternoon and was driven to his summer home near Rosemont. On the way Sheehan met Parker, who was driving. The two men alighted and greeted each other. Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Sheehan then drove to the Sheehan house in one carriage and Judge Parker and Mr. Sheehan in the other. Later Sheehan made this statement: "I am authorized to say that no telegram was sent by Judge Parker to Senator Hill on any subject while the latter was in St.

Sheehan's residence at 7 o'cloock, after which he dined.

In reply to his telegram of congratulation to former Senator Davis, the nominee for vice president, Judge Parker received the following: "Delayed in reaching home. Thanks for your telegram. Most cordial congratulations to you and the country on your nomination. I feel proud and highly honored to be associated with you on the ticket."

WHERE HONOR FALLS

Praise For Southrons For Their Support of Sound Money

New York, July 12.-Thomas F. Ryan, who was a delegate from Virginia to the Democratic national convention, has reached here from St. Louis. Speaking of the convention and its results, Mr. Ryan said:

"In one brave stroke, with the aid of the solid south, Judge Parker has reorganized and re-united the Democratic party. The fact that stands out most is the attitude of the south, for the is the south which not only emphasized and asserted the necessity for a return to financial sanity, but that it has led the way and forced the fighting.

"To see one southern state after another-by the accident of alphabet voting-standing up for sound finance, to hear their delegates leading the demand for it, was certainly grateful to one whose faith in the essential political soundness of the people of that section has been a part of his political being. There was no longer any fear to mention or to advocate the gold standard, not as some new strange thing, it is true, but as a recognition of conditions always really existent in the financial policy of our government.

"Too much honor cannot be given to men like Mr. Williams of Mississippi, who, in the convention as on the floor of the house, has shown himself a real leader; to Senators Daniel, Carmack, Tillman and many others. But the real honors must be awarded to the people of the south, without whose assured cooperation and support this auspicious result would have been impossible. When the great solid south really stands in doctrine as in votes by the side of the conservative Democratic forces Bavaria in 1829. everywhere, certainly the party is in only politically, but industrially, canimagined.

"The courage, prescience and the leadership shown by Judge Parker in the initiating of his final victory entitle him to the confidence and support of every American citizen. Never in all great campaign more auspiciously than | history has the party entered upon a upon the present one. For a candidate to have said the right word at the right moment and to have done the right act just at the time it was needed, shows that we are entering upon a campaign not of expediency, in which there are to be dodging and futile explanations, but upon one in which aggression will be the watchword."

This statement is given on the authority of G. F. Washburn of Boston, national treasurer of the People's party. Commenting on Judge Parker's nomination, Washburn said: "Next to Cleveland the Populists desired the nomination of Parker. IN HIS BIRTHPLACE

Bishop Huntington Dies From a Complication of Diseases

Northampton, Mass., July 12 .- Rt. Rev. Frederick D. Huntington, Episcopal bishop of the central diocese of New York, died at his summer home in Hadley yesterday afternoon. Death came in the room where he was born 85 years ago. The end was not unexpected, as the bishop had been in failing health for several months as a result of a complication of diseases.

Bishop Huntington came to Hadley from his home in Syracuse, N. Y., on June 20, to spend, as was his custom, the warmer months at the farm where he was born and married. The day after his arrival he attended the commencement exercises at Smith college and offered the prayer. This was his last public appearance, his rapid decline dating from a few days later.

Rt. Rev. Frederick Dan Huntington, DD., LLD., LHD., was born in Hadley on May 24, 1819. His father was Rev. Dan Huntington, a Congregational minister. He was graduated from Amherst college and soon after entered the Unitarian ministry. While a professor at Harvard in 1861 Dr. Huntington entered the Episcopal church. He was ordained priest in that year. In 1843 Dr. Huntington married Miss Hannah Sargent of Boston. Five children were born to them, all of whom survive.

Soon Followed Father Hanover, N. H., July 12.-Dr. George

P. Huntington, professor of Hebrew at Dartmouth college, died last night. As in the case of his father, Dr. Hunting-Ten's death was due to a complication of diseases. Six weeks ago he was attacked with a slow fever, which later developed symptoms of typhoid. Last night the news was received here of the death at Hadley, Mass., of Dr. Huntington's father. Soon after Dr. Huntington was told of his father's death he was seized with a severe attack of asthma. His six weeks' illness had weakened him and he was unable to resist the attack. Dr. Huntington was 64 years old. He leaves a widow, three sons and a daughter.

Savors of Mystery

Concord, N. H., July 12.-Charles E. Hooper of Everett, Mass., manager of the Concord office of C. G. Cunningham of Boston, dealing in investment securities, was found dead in his room on the second floor of the Exchange block. Shortly before midnight there was a severe explosion in the Juilding, followed by fire. When the blaze was extinguished Hooper's body was found in his room. In addition to severe burns, which would have been fatal, there was a wound in his head, made apparently by a revolver bullet. An autopsy will be held to determine whether Hooper's death was the result of his own act or was caused by some unknown visitor. The damage by fire is about $5000.

What May Happen If Packing Trade Strike Is Prolonged

THOUSANDS ALREADY OUT

Early Rise In Price of Beef Expected--Spokesmen of Strikers and Packing Concerns Each Give Their Version of Trouble

Chicago, July 13.-As the result of a stubborn disagreement, chiefly over wages for unskilled labor, an extensive strike in the meat packing industry has begun in Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Joseph, Mo., and other cities where large packing plants are located. The unanimity of the strike is complete. More than 45,000 employes are directly involved. In Chicago alone 18,000 men are on strike. The effect of the strike upon the food supply of the country and the prices of meats is being earnestly discussed. If prolonged the strike may equal the anthracite coal famine of two years ago.

The effect of the strike upon the food supply of the country and the prices of meats is being earnestly discussed, notwithstanding the announcement that the packing houses, contrary to somewhat general expectations, will continue operations without any closedown, employing whatever help may be obtainable. How much alleviation in the furnishing of supplies to the publie this course may afford is a matter of wide variation of opinion. The packers declare that hundreds of men who could not be provided with places have been applying daily for work. The walkout here was started by the employes of the killing departments at the various packing houses. The killers were followed by the workers in other departments as fast as the current work left by the slaughter ers could be cleaned up. Thus, as the workers in each department disposed of their part of the work, they threw off their aprons and departed. This consideration was shown the packers, the labor officials announced, because it was not the desire of the men to cause the employers any financial loss as a result of neglecting meat that was on hand to be dressed.

Watched by cordons of police, th strikers filed briskly out of the packing houses, carrying overalls, rubber boots, knives, cleavers and steels. The strikers were greeted by crowds of women and children, many of whom joined hands with the workmen on the outward march. Whatever the future may have in store in the way of riots there is absolutely no sign of disorder. President Donnelly of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, the leader of the strikers, said in a conversation last evening that he believed the strik ers would have little difficulty in with standing a siege of more than a year with the strike funds the unions have on hand.

Arthur Meeker of Armour & Co. said last night: "We consider the demand of the union for an advance in wages of unskilled labor entirely unwarranted by industrial conditions. We could not concede it, and proposed to submit the question to arbitration, which the union declined to do, and called a strike at all our plants. Every department is kept running, however. We have had applications from hundreds of unemployed men for positions at less wages than we have been paying, and every day expect to increase our output. We consider the fault rests entirely with the union, who not only asked what they were not entitled to, but declined to submit the question to impartial arbitration."

President Donnelly, the strike leader, said: "I wish to make it clear that we are not fighting for an increase of wages, but against a decrease. Our original demand was for a minimum of 20 cents an hour for laborers. This demand was amended after our second conference with the packers in June. We then agreed to a scale of 181/2 cents an hour, except in Omaha and Sioux City, where the scale is 19 cents. The packers, on the other hand, refused to pay more than 171/2 cents an hour and declined to sign any agreements at all except with a small proportion of the workmen. "The question of wages to skilled men was not discussed. To unskilled workmen the average wage was 181/2 cents, but when we asked that this be made the minimum wage, they cut it to 171/2 cents and 15 cents. Men could live on 15 cents if they got steady work, but in some plants men have been able to make just 13 hours a week at this wage scale. They could not live on it. No one could."

A feature of the strike that is apt to be overlooked is the fact that the strikers' organization does not include the electricians, steam fitters, firemen, engineers, car workers and teamsters. These make in Chicago alone a total of 10,000 additional men who may or may not be made idle, wholly or in part, voluntarily or otherwise, according to the development in the struggle between the direct contestants.

Price of Meat Advanced New York, July 13 .- As soon as the retail butchers in this city learned that strikes had been ordered in the meat packing plants in many of the large cities they at once began to advance the price of meat from 2 to 3 cents a pound. It is predicted that within three days there will be a meat famine in this city.

THE ONLY DAILY in Norfolk County, Fall River Manufacturers Consider the Step Necessary

CUT OF 12 1-2 PERCENT

Mills Brought Into Unity Because of Effect of Sharp Southern Competition-Question of How Operatives May Feel

Fall River, Mass., July 13.-It is proposed to reduce the price of weaving regular print cloths in the local mills from 19.8 cents to 17.32 cents a cut, or 121/2 percent. The agreement of manufacturers to bring this about has already been signed by all but one of the controlling forces in the local mills, and there is no doubt in the minds of the committeemen as to the ultimate signing of that factor in the situation, when it is made clear that the others are united.

The only difference of opinion among the manufacturers in the wage matter was whether the reduction should be one of 15 or 10 percent, and the 121/2 percent is believed to represent a compromise. It is sought to have 2,300,-000 spindles represented in the agreement, the largest total ever attempted here, and of that total, more than 2,-000,000 spindles are now secure.

The agreement is an ironclad one, and binds the mills more closely than they have ever been united, certainly in 20 years. It is only an agreement for wage purposes, however, and does not seek to control the marketing of goods in any direction. The agreement mill men were not at least convinced that independent action in this city means death to the local industry. In this connection it is of moment to know that there is no longer any difference of opinion among manufacturers as to the direct effect of a sharp southern competition on Fall River goods.

One of the committee was asked what guaranty there would be for the operatives that they would have steady work if the new scale was accepted. He said: "The mills have shown in four years that under present market conditions, where so many mills are making goods in competition, Fall tions. If the new scale is accepted I The difficulty in the solution of the shall begin to run my mills steadily.

BOUND AND GAGGED

While Room Was Ransacked Boston, July 13 .- Two unknown men committed an unprovoked assault upon Mrs. William Mattison at her home, 70 Sterling street, last night and, after robbing her of a watch and other jewelry and about $5 in money, made their escape

Mrs. Mattison, who was slightly ill, was lying upon her bed on the second floor, when two men came upstairs. They entered her room and one of them remarked: "I believe I owe you something." When she replied that she knew nothing about it, the man seized her and, binding a cloth about her face to prevent an outcry, placed her under the bed while they ransacked the room.

Mrs. Mattison, when found an hour later by a caller, was completely prostrated, and it was some time before she could give a connected story of the affair. She was unable to give any description of her assailants that would aid in their identification.

Neglect of Duty Charged Nashua, N. H., July 13.-City Mar shal Eaton was given a hearing before the police commissioners last night on charges preferred against him of neglect of duty, preferred by Ellen Provost, matron of the Protestant orphanage, who alleges that she was assaulted by two strangers and that two children were kidnapped from the institution. She claimed that she reported the matter to the city marshal, who refused to take any action. The city marshal testified that he had refused action in the matter upon the advice of the city solicitor, who considered the case a civil one. Decision was reserved.

Autoists In a Smashup

Perkins, his host, was badly hurt through the collision of an automobile in which they were riding with an electric car. The automobile was overturned, throwing both occupants out and partially beneath their machine, which was badly smashed. The trolley car was not badly damaged.

Dr Eastman Found Guilty

Alfred, Me., July 13.-Dr. Charles A. Eastman of Old Orchard and Boston was found guilty of manslaughter last evening in having caused the death of Miss Edith McIntire of Boothbay Harbor. Miss McIntire, who was 24 years of age, died from the effects of an illegal operation. Counsel for the defense filed exceptions and these will be argued before the full bench. Judge Emery fixed Eastman's bonds

Finally he fell exhausted on the floor and was saved from further injuries by friends. He was taken to the relief station and patched up. The police have not caught the other man.

lecision that Broker Chester E. Hooper met his death from the force of an explosion, the official investigation has shed no light on the tragedy which occurred at the Exchange building. Dr. Conn, medical referee, expresses little hope that the exact cause of Hooper's death will be revealed, and County Solicitor Dudley holds a like view.

Medford's Long Petition

Medford, Mass., July 13.-That Medford citizens appreciate the value of a first-class postal service is shown in the interest taken in the petition now being circulated favoring uniting the Medford office with that of Boston. In two days the petition received 2000 signatures. The committee is confident of sending to Washington a petition more than 100 feet in length.

Looking Into Burns Mystery

Athol, Mass., July 13.-State Officers Murray and Rhodes have come here to investigate the circumstances connected with an anonymous letter received from Wendell, bearing upon the disappearance of Frank J. Burns, the missing jewelry salesman. Every possible clue tending to clear up the mystery of Burns' disappearance is to be thoroughly investigated.

Old School Official Deposed

Boston, July 13.-Edwin P. Seaver, for 24 years past superintendent of Boston's public schools, was defeated for re-election at a meeting of the school board last night by George H. Conley, a present member of the board of supervisors. Conley received 13 votes to 10 for Seaver, all but one member of the school board being present and the Golden Rule mayor, died last evening as the result of a complication of diseases. The death of Mayor Jones has caused the greatest sorrow all over the city. Although many did not believe in his ideas on sociological problems, everybody loved and respected him. Jones was born in Wales in 1846.

Renting Mansions For a Night. The latest fashion in London is to give balls and parties in houses hired for the evening, says a cable dispatch from the British capital. The idea was started by Lord Temple, who let his beautiful house, Chandos House, in Cavendish square, to a well known African millionaire for $500, the giver of the party undertaking to leave the house in perfect order. Lord Temple's example has now been followed by Mr. and Mrs. Lowther, who have let their house to Mrs. Flower, Lord Battersea's sister-in-law, for a ball. Motor Cars For Old Jewels. "Many people are selling their jewels just now to buy motor cars," is the statement made by the manager of a well known jewelry establishment, says the London Mail. ### BRYAN'S POSITION

Says He Will Support Parker and Gives His Reasons

IS NOT FULLY SATISFIED

Thinks Parker Fully Committed to the Side of Financiers-The Nomination, He Says, Was "Secured by Crookedness"

Lincoln, Neb., July 13.-W. J. Bryan has given out a statement in which he says he will vote for Parker and Davis for the following reasons:

"First-Because the Democratic ticket stands for opposition to imperialism, while the Republican ticket stands for an imperalistic policy. On ths question, which was the paramount issue in 1900, and which must remain an important issue so long as an attempt is made to hold colonies under the American flag-on this issue the convention was unanimous, the platform emphatic, and I have no doubt that the candidate will carry out the platform.

"Second-Mr. Roosevelt is injecting the race question into American politics and this issue, if it becomes national will make it impossible to consider economic questions that demand solution. The election of the Democratic tcket will put a quietus upon this attempt and permit the race question to work itself out without the bitterness which Mr. Roosevelt's conduct has engendered.

"Third-Mr. Roosevelt stands for the spirit of war. His friends present him as a man of blood and iron. He believes in strenuousness and inculcates love for warlike things. The Democratic ticket stands for peace, for reason and for arbitration, rather than for force, conquest and bluster.

"Fourth-The Democratic platform declares in favor of the reduction of the standing army, and as this plank was unanimously adopted there is reason to believe that a Democratic sucess on this subject will bring some advantage to the people.

"For these four reasons I feel justified in supporting the ticket, but I shall not misrepresent the situation or appeal for votes for the ticket upon false grounds. A Democratic victory will mean very little, if any, progress on economic questions, so long as the party is under the control of the Wall street element. On the money question Mr. Parker is as thoroughly committed to the side of the financiers as Mr. Roosevelt. Nothing good can be expected of him on the money question.

"On the trust question the Demoeratic platform is very much better than the Republican platform, but the nomination of Parker virtually nullifies the anti-trust plank. Unless in his letter of acceptance he commits himself to attempt anti-trust legislation, we need not expect him to pursue a different course from that pursued by Roose-

"So far as the labor questions are concerned we must await Parker's letter before we shall know whether the laboring man has anything to expect from his election. The labor plank as prepared by Parker's friends on the subcommittee was a straddling, meaningless plank. In the full committee planks were adopted in favor of arbitration, the eight-hour day and against government by injunctions; also a plank on the Colorado situation. If Parker is silent or ambiguous on these subjects it will mean that the financial influence back of him will not permit him to take the labor side on these disputed questions.

"On the tariff question some little progress may be hoped for, but the Parker men on the committee were necessarily in favor of a very conservative tariff plank and it remains to be seen whether Parker will carry out the positive and definite plank which was submitted by the full committee. This is the situation.

"Judge Parker stands for enough things that are good to justify me in giving him my vote, but the triumph of | fantry, stationed at the Plattsburg barthe Wall street element of the party denies to the country any hope of relief on economic questions. I have nothing to withdraw of the things I have said against the methods pursued to advance his candidacy. It was a plain and deliberate attempt to deceive the party. If Parker had sent to the Albany convention the telegram that he sent to the St. Louis convention he would have had very few instructed delegates from the south, and no possible chance for the nomination. But he and his managers adroitly and purposely concealed his position until the delegates had been corralled and the nomination assured. The nomination was secured by crooked and indefensible methods, but the Democrat who loves his country has to make his decision upon conditions as he finds them, not upon conditions as he would like to have them.

His friends attempted to secure a gold plank, which was overwhelmingly defeated in the committee. After the party had rejoiced over the harmony secured by the omission of the question, and after he had secured the nomination, he injected his views upon the subject at a time when he could not be taken from the ticket, without great demoralization. "While the fight on economic questions is postponed, it is not abandoned. As soon as the election is over, I shall, with the help of those who believe as I do, undertake to organize for the campaign of 1908, the object being to marshal the friends of popular government within the Democratic party to the support of a radical and progressive policy to make the Democratic party an efficient means in the hands of the people for securing relief from the plutocratic element that controls the Republican party and for the time being is in control of the Democratic party. This plan of organization will

e elaborated soon." Parker's Stand Pleases Hill

Albany, July 13.-David B. Hill last night gave out the following interview on Judge Parker's declaration for the gold standard:

"I am gratified that the convention so enthusiastically endorsed the brave and manly stand of Judge Parker and that the whole country has so favorably received it. The party is in the position in which I wished it to be having endorsed the present gold standard. The financial question is now entirely out of the campaign and the Republicans are powerless to drag it in. The road to a successful campaign has been cleared."

Telegram Has Gone Astray

Esopus, N. Y., July 13.—It is beginning to be a source of some wonder as to what has become of the telegram to Judge Parker which was formally adopted by the St. Louis convention Saturday night. It has not yet reached Esopus, and Parker knows its tenor only from the press bulletin which was telephoned to him that night and from the newspapers of the next day.

Judge Parker has sent to former President Cleveland a letter in reply to the latter's telegram of congratula tion and commendation. The letter is of considerable length, but its contents have not been made public.

Davis Has Nothing to Say

Elkins, W. Va., July 13.-Henry G. Davis, Democratic candidate for vice president, still refuses to give any interviews. Since Sunday he has been working almost continually clearing up his business affairs for the campaign. On Saturday he will leave for Bedford Springs, Pa., where he has been every summer for 50 years.

Disappointed Lover's Novel Suit Montreal, July 13.-Jerome Interoscia, former Italian consul at Montreal, has entered suit against Vincent Bonelli, a wealthy merchant of Vicksburg, Miss., who has a summer home in the mountains at St. Agathe. Internoscia alleges that he was engaged to marry Bonelli's daughter, and that the engagement was broken off through the efforts of the defendant. Internoscia makes no demands for injured affections, but sues for the amount of money expended during his courtship. His principal charge is for 465 hours that he spent in Miss Bonelli's com- 3440. pany at the rate of $2 an hour.

Y. M. C. A. WORK.

School Department Enrolled More Students Than Eight Universities. The Y. M. C. A. recently concluded its international examinations and received full reports of its educational work. The students the last year number 82,344 in the principal branches in North America-a larger number than is enrolled in the eight largest universities. This is an increase of nearly 2,000 in the association's enrellment. There were 147 different subjects. These association schools, held mostly at night, have been making a steady advance. They have secured the best teachers obtainable and the classes run from the simpler studies for working boys to technical subjects, such as steam, mechanical and electrical engineering, automobile handling, design and construction and textile and other forms of industrial design. A large proportion of the students are men and apprentices from the skilled trades. Association evening law schools have been authorized by Ohio and Massachusetts legislatures to grant the degree of LL. B. to the graduating men, who are taking the highest rank in the state bar examinations The appreciation of the men for these classes may be seen from figures showing the amount paid for tuition, which last year was $118,240 and the year previous $84,096, a tuition fee of $3.65 per man, in addition to the membership fees of the association. The associations of North America expended $271,-000 for these classes and other features of education work during the year.

.446 Forty per cent increase is noted in the enrollment of railroad men, many .179 of whom take the courses in air brakes and steam engineering, firing, time eards and other subjects related to their business. A class for apprentices, for brick masons and contractors is conducted at Detroit, the employers paying for the tuition of their men.

A Wonderful Spring.

An Arkansas farmer, describing to a tourist some of the wonderful properties of the mineral springs of that state, said, "Do you see that spring over there, stranger?" He said that he did, whereupon the farmer added: "Well, that's an iron spring, that is, and it's so mighty powerful that the farmers' horses about here that drink the water of it never have to be shod. The shoes just grow on their feet nat'rally."

Lived for two Hours After the Accident.

Nicholas Areneus, aged 50 years, of Break Neck hill, was killed this morning at the Gold Leaf quarry where he was employed as a quarryman.

From what can be learned the unfortunate man was at work on a car which was being loaded with granite for shipment. From some unknown cause, the car suddenly began to move, and a heavy block of granite toppled over onto him, crushing his leg and hip, and causing internal injuries from which he died two hours later.

Word was sent for a physician and the ambulance but through unfortunate delays it was some time before either arrived. He leaves a family.

Although HAIR MATTRESSES made over and my heart was beating like a hammer and my hair curling, I took up the lamp and went through every room in the house, finding nothing, of course. After returning to the kitchen I lighted two of the candles and placed them in the lower rooms and then forced

Another Story of Killing of Thirty Thousand Japanese

RUSSIA FEELS ANXIOUS

No Doubt of an Attack on Port Closing In on Kuropatkin

London, July 14.-There is published this morning a rumor that Port Arthur has fallen, but it is discredited and lacks confirmation of any sort.

St. Petersburg, July 14.-A special dispatch received from Mukden last night repeats the story of a Japanese repulse at Port Arthur with the loss of 30,000 men. The dispatch says:

"News has been received from reliable sources that the Japanese third army, on the night of July 11, attacked Port Arthur and was heavily defeated, an immense number being killed by Russian mines. The total loss is about 30,000."

St. Petersburg for further details of the reported disaster. It has developed that the official report which was at first supposed to emanate directly from Viceroy Alexieff was not specifically fathered by him, but was given out as a report reaching his headquarters from "Jahanese sources." What these sources are has not yet been explained the official estimate.

London, July 14.- There is no confirmation and there probably will be none of the story of the blowing up of 28,000 to 30,000 Japanese by Russian mines during an attack Sunday on Port Arthur. There is no reason to doubt, however, that if there was an attack on the fortifications near the fortress, mines were employed by the Russians, but not with the disastrous effect stated in the dispatches.

comparatively close formation which the Japanese use when assaulting, it I sult would empty the magazines of Port Arthur and more. In fact, it would take an able-bodied earthquake to do the damage alleged to have been done.

it may be that, taking advantage of the plosion of mines, the Russian garrison made a sortie and inflicted heavy losses-but not of 30,000 men.

The unusually well informed military critic of The Russky Viedomosti believes that Kuropatkin is deliberately surrendering his southern positions like that of Kai Chou, for the purpose of drawing on the Japanese into the open country at or above Ta Tche Kiao, where the Russians will be able to deploy large forces and to derive full advantage from their superior cavalry. He attributes General Oku's advance to the necessity of helping General Nodzu, whose divisions are stalled in the Chapan and Dalin passes on account of transport difficulties and to the stubborn resistance of General Zaroubaieff, commander of the fourth Siberian army corps, whose forces will have to be cleared out before a southern advance is made.

Arthur, but Mines Could Not Inflict Loss Alleged--Japs Are

There is great anxiety throughout

The Novoe Vremya, in an editorial, expresses its mistrust in the rumon that the Japanese lost 30,000 at Port Arthur. The editorial says: It was with misgiving that we published the story. The official statement which was subsequently given out credits the report to Japanese sources. Under any circumstances it will be exceedingly difficult to arrive at the truth. Our communication with Port Arthur is occasional and accidental. The Japanese are not apt to disclose their losses, even should they be only one-tenth of Steadily and cautiously, says a dispatch from St. Petersburg, General Oku's army from the south and General Nodzu's army from the east are closing in upon Ta Tche Kiao, where General Kuropatkin is reported to be intrenching. About 130,000 men are involved in the movement. The next few days will determine whether and to what extent Kuropatkin intends to make a stand at Ta Tche Kiao, the possession of which by the Japanese could compel the immediate evacuation of

New Chwang. The outposts of the armies are scarcely 15 miles apart. The slowness of the advance is apparently due to the natural difficulties in the way of a rapid movement of the Japanese eastern flanking columns.

General Sakharoff reports that Kuropatkin is massing his troops near the Pkhanlin pass and moving out by both roads upon Hai Cheng. Heavy pressure from this quarter would render Ta Tche Kiao untenable. All the Japanese energies now seem to be concentrated at Ta Tche Kiao and Hai Cheng. The operations to the north which throughout may have been feints have been suddenly suspended.

"JOHN SMITH'S" RECEIPT

Athol, Mass., July 1+ .- The state police who are investigating the supposed murder of Frank J. Burns on the night of Dec. 17 last state that they have what is believed to be an important clue

Acting upon the information conveyed in the letter received by Officer Jacques, the officers went to Warwick and interviewed John Atwood and his daughter, Mrs. Sadie Cutler, who were mentioned in the letter as having seen and talked with a man whom the anomymous writer declared to be Walter E. Atwood gave to the police a minute description of a man who called on him on the night of Feb. 13 and sold him for $25 a horse and sleigh worth at least $150. The man, Atwood said, gave the name of John Smith, and gave him

The stranger then, according to Atwood, went to the house of his daughter, Mrs. Sadie Cutler, to whom he paid $1 to be driven to Orange, where he caught a train. Smith said he was going to Maine "to meet the body of a soldier friend." Both Atwood and his daughter noticed that Smith had of sale, and will compare the writing with that of Walter E. Smith.

EIGHTEEN KILLED

Misplaced Switch Causes Railroad Disaster In Illinois Chicago, July 14.-Twenty persons were killed and about 70 injured last night in a railroad collision at Glenwood, 23 miles south of Chicago.

A SAMPLE AMERICAN YOUTH

Characteristics of a Rhodes Scholarship Winner.

New York has cause for self congratulation in the representative that the state has chosen for the Cecil Rhodes scholarship at Oxford in the person of Warren Ellis Schutt, Cornell, 1905, says the Illustrated Sporting News. The sturdy Ithacan will be as splendid a type of American manhood as will be sent abroad to the English university by any state in the Union.

Schutt's career is thoroughly interesting. He is the son of a prosperous farmer, who lives six miles from Itha ca. Young Schutt got his primary education at a country school near his home, and then won a four year scholarship in the Ithaca high school in a competitive examination. Instead of moving into Ithaca to live, or even driving to and from school with one of his father's teams, as he might easily have done, Schutt walked to and from During July and August the high school each morning and night. In this way he prepared for Cornell university. His first year in college he continued to walk to and from his home. His scholarship continued to be of the same high stand ard as in high school, and he took all the prizes and scholarships to which he was eligible, ending up with the Cecil Rhodes scholarship at Oxford univer

In his sophomore year for the first time Schutt entered college athletics. There the trainer took him under his care and developed him into the greatest cross country runner in the country It was here his twelve miles of daily walking to and from his home counted in Schutt's favor in the physical condition of the athlete. He ran in Cornell's victorious cross country teams against Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Pennsyl rania On the track team h the two mile intercollegiate run and lowered the time. Last May he duplicated the feat and was subsequently elected captain of Cornell's 1905 track team. This position he will, of course, resign upon his going to England. He is only twenty years old, stands more than six feet in height and weighs 165 pounds.

Unitarian Minister's Plan For Sending Sermons by Mail.

A CHURCH FOR ALL SOULS

Rev. Walter Reid Hunt Will Try to Reach and Organize Those Who Might Remain Permanently Outside of Any Christian Body-Sermons Will Be Varied From Time to Time.

Spiritual comfort is now to be dispensed through the mails after the manner of correspondence schools. The "Church of All Souls," which is the formal title of this decidedly new cen-Batteries, Patten and Kittridge; tury idea, has its headquarters at Or-Sievers, Howell, Pelty and Sugden. ange, N. J., says the Brooklyn Eagle. It is the idea of a Unitarian clergyman, who proposes to put heart and soul .671 into a work which he believes to be needful and feasible. It is to be a "postage mission"-an endeavor to reach and organize those who might otherwise remain permanently outside .412 of any Christian body.

> The idea is to mail a printed sermon to every member of the congregation each Monday morning. Every fortnight a pastoral letter is to go to the members of the flock wherever they may reside-whether it be under the balmy skies of California, in frozen Alaska or the wilds of Texas, or even Kalamazoo, Mich.

The man behind the idea is the Rev. Walter Reid Hunt, pastor of the First Unitarian church of Orange, N. J. The Rev. Mr. Hunt has youth, energy, culture and a determination to succeed. His new project will not affect his church organization, but is rather supplementary, if not independent of it. But the work is not to be necessarily confined to those outside existing churches. The "Church of All Souls" will welcome all who accept the religion of Jesus, without regard to creed, color, nationality or previous condition of servitude. If they will, those who have heretofore been Quakers, Methodists, Presbyterians, Bap-.629 tists, Seventh Day Adventists and all the others may form a community of interest that will reach from San Francisco, Cal., to Eastport, Me., and from thence around the habitable globe.

No. 82 Hillside avenue, Orange, N. J., where the Rev. Mr. Hunt resides, is the center from which the details of the idea will be diffused. It is a charming little home, set upon the summit of a characteristic and most picturesque American suburb. Going up the neatly paved entrance way, one is closed in on both sides by carefully trimmed lawns, with here and there a bush of wild flowers sheltered beneath the broad leaves of a majestic tree. Through the overhanging branches one gets a glimpse of patches of blue sky, and the air is filled with the fragrance of the new grass and the flowers. The impression is one of complete restfulness, and that thought is heightened when the visitor is ushered into the living room, which breathes refinement from books, pictures and every detail of furnishings. The surroundalert, clean cut countenance and the compact figure of the Rev. Mr. Hunt. His high forehead, large nose, aggressive eyes and well formed chin prepare one for the crisp, quickly spoken sentences which drop from his lips.

"The idea," he said smilingly, "is still

.500 in the formative period, although the .475 actual work has already begun. The thought was conceived through a .328 friend in Massachusetts and first found expression in a vague sort of way at one of the meetings in our church in Orange. We have there a cheerful letter department, which conceives as its work the writing of letters and sending of literature to the 'shut ins' in all parts of the country. It was felt that the good that was being done in this limited way could be broadened if it was systematized and organized on practical lines. The chief idea is to reach those who live in the remote and sparsely settled country districts and who could not, even if they desired, attheir own homes can attend religious services with the same system that would be followed in a church. Our Paris, July 14.—The civil tribune of contemplated printed programme of although separated by many thousands of miles."

The slight publicity already given to the idea was a little premature, but Mr. Hunt accepts this good naturedly and He has written several preliminary let-

SHEEP IN INDIA.

They Are the Favorite Beasts of Burden In Mountainous Regions.

In Tibet and among the mountainous part of India sheep are employed as carriers. The mountain sheep of these districts, true to its nature, is remarkably sure footed and can carry loads of twenty-five pounds, or even more, over steep crags and precipitous paths where hardly any other animal could find a footing.

In the inner ranges of the Himalayas the yak cow and the hardy mountain sheep are the favorite beasts of burden. Sheep withstand the intense cold of the higher parts of Tibet much more easily than the yak and can better face the stony roads. Sheep carrying from seventeen to

By Collision of Electric and an Express Wagon.

There was quite a serious accident Thursday evening on Willard street near the Milton line. Just who was to blame has not been determined. It seems that one of Abbott & Miller's express teams, driven by Angus Beaton was on the way from Boston with a load of long iron bars, so long that they hung over the horses' heads. As the 8.35 car from Quincy approached the team the protruding iron bars struck the dasher, bending it in. They also barely grazed the motorman's head and the heads of several passen-

Motorman DeCoste stuck to his post and shut off the power. Among the passengers on the car were Miss Bertha McConnell of 112 Thorndike street, Brookline, and Mrs. E. B. Redonnitt of 22 Blake street, Hyde Park.

There is a difference of opinions as to whether these two ladies jumped from the car or were thrown out. Some say they jumped out, while the two ladies say they were thrown out. Miss McConnell received a broken leg and was removed to the Hospital. Mrs. Redonnitt was injured about the head and was removed to her home. The motorman and driver of the team escaped uninjured.

One of the horses was badly injured and was shot by Inspector McKay.

> London, July 15 .- The announce ment of Paul Kruger's death is the main feature of all the papers here. It is accompanied by lengthy sketches of his career. All the papers devote editorials to the former president's demise, refraining from anything denunciatory and speaking generously of his remarkable characterictics.

Paul Kruger was born in 1825, in Colesberg, Cape Colony, and was christened, according to the Boer fashion, after names found in the Bible, Stephanus Johannes Paulus Kruger.

IN IMMINENT PERIL

New Chwang Expected to Soon Fall Into Hands of Japs

London, July 15 .- The Daily Chronicle's Tokio correspondent says that on July 14 the Japanese occupied Yin Kow and that the 300 Russians who were in the town escaped with difficulty.

Lloyd's agent at New Chwang says Japanese scouts are within six miles of that place, while General Oku with 50,000 men is approaching Tashichiao. With Oku and the Taku Shan armies converging on Hai Cheng to the north of Tashichiao, the strength of the Russian defense of the latter place is of Will and Native Keenness likely to be slight, unless they have a much larger force than it has been possible to credit them with.

With the Japanese in Tashichiao and Yin Kow, New Chwang is in imminent peril, and if the apparent plan of the Russians to permit the Japanese to roll up their right flank till such times as Kuropatkin is ready to strike is carried out, the early fall of this place may be expected.

St. Petersburg still is trying to persuade herself that the unconfirmed rumor of the loss of 30,000 Japanese before Port Arthur is true. Before Port Arthur's fall 30,000 troops may bite the dust, but that number was not blown up by mines, nor was that the casualty figure of any single assault on the outer works of the fortress.

Casualty Figures Cut Down

St. Petersburg, July 15.-The absence of a dispatch from General Stoessel, commander of the military forces at Port Arthur, regarding the reported disaster to the Japanese last Sunday night, is generally attributed to the delay in communicating official news, owing to the absence of the czar.

Private dispatches from Russian sources in the far east confirm the reports from Mukden and Chefoo. According to a usually reliable source, the Japanese losses were 2800 and the Russian losses 1800.

be avoided, rather using fine brown paper to prevent blotting if time of the ink's drying cannot be allowed, for sand takes away the good color of the ink, and, getting into the backs of books, makes them break their binding."

The sand that was used for blotting in the past was, the Chicago antiquary says, very clean and white and fine, and it was called silver sand. It was kept in a cruet with a perforated lid, the grand basin. Good clear maps of like a salt cruet, and thence it was sifted over the wet writing. An odd tion grounds and several handsome thing about it was that the ink never engravings of important buildings are seemed to stain it. It could be used over and over and it remained to the end as white as snow.

BATTLE STANDARDS.

So Ancient That Their Use Is Mentioned In the Bible.

The custom of carrying flags or stand-1490 B. C. We find in Numbers ii, 2, about hotel capacity and accommodathat "every man of the children of tion facilities. This is a very con-Israel shall pitch by his own standard venient-sized, comprehensive outline with the ensign of his father's house." Each standard of the twelve tribes thus distinguished was supposed to have stone in Aaron's breastplate which bore the name of that tribe. Under the folder is sent out on application at any generic name banner are included many species, such as standard, ensign, pennon, flag, etc. These have been used Lancaster, Pa., July 15.-John from earliest times and in all countries to direct movements of troops.

The earliest Roman standard was a bundle of straw fixed to the top of a spear. This was succeeded by figville, arrived here last night in the ures of animals, such as the borse and custody of officers. By every warlike people the banner has been regarded as an emblem of national honor, in defense of which each soldier was at all times ready to die, while banners and flags taken from the enemy have always been special trophies of victory to which places of honor in public buildings have been assigned.

BOOTS AND SPURS.

Quaint Account of Hungarian Cavalry In Olden Days.

A contemporary manuscript account of the diet of Ratisbon, held in 1630 by the Emperor Ferdinand II. on the occasion of the landing of Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden in Germany, mentions as a remarkable fact that the Hungarian cavalry who rode through the streets to the ceremonial wore their spurs on their boot soles.

It is difficult to credit that these spurs were fixed on the flat of the boot. for thus shod the horsemen could nei-Sydney, N. S., July 15.-The Do- ther walk nor stand, especially when do this you need ask few questions as project from the fore part of the military boot, which is a portion of the

The same manuscript adds that the Hunga- | the belly, pushing with their legs and rian horses had their manes, tails and feet painted red.

Ancient Drinking Guilds.

It is gravely said by an authority that the Dutch guilds, the most ancient their origin in the drinking guilds, diving and steeplechasing in grand case of the Greeks and Romans, exalt | water and pop down on the ice exactdrink to the rank of a deity, made it a ly like some one coming up through a kind of civic dignitary. These drink trapdoor on the stage and dropping guilds and drink brethren existed from on his feet. The penguins collect in the earliest times until the latter part enormous numbers and are sometimes of the sixteenth century, when their seen marching about like a regiment held that men who worked together drank together and thus formed the primitive club which developed into the guild.-Notes and Querles.

CITY BREVITIES.

This is the last week of eight-cent checks on the Old Colony street railway system.

A scene of picturesque character greeted the early arrivals from Boston was a recognized convenience of the at Atlantic Thursday evening. Near the elm on Sagamore street a band was that year there was issued a book called waiting for an electric car to Squantum, and an organ grinder was dispensing his wares to make expression for the silent Two Second Hand Double Tip Carts. band, while a monkey amused quite a group of children and older persons.

A Handsome Exposition Folder. An attractively printed and extremely artistic folder describing the St. Louis exposition has been issued by Mr. A. S. Hanson of the passenger department of the Boston & Albany railroad. The cover design is a dainty scheme in colors, embodying the picturesque statue of St. Louis and a gondola on the city of St. Louis and of the exposiamong the embellishments. This publication also contains much specific information-for instance, the appropriations made by the various states showing Massachusetts in the $100,000 column with Ohio, Virginia, Texas, Oregon, Kentucky, New Jersey, Connecticut, Arkansas and Minnesota. It ards in battle dates back at least to also contains much general information of the World's fair, which, with its total expenditure of $50,000,000 is one been of a color to correspond with the of greatest expositions in some respects which has ever been attempted. The of the company's ticket offices, and is one of the handsomest of its kind.

WAIT FOR AN APPETITE.

You Should Never Eat Simply For the Sake of Eating.

A prolific cause of chronic indigestion is eating from habit and simply be cause it is mealtime and others are eating. To eat when not hungry is to eat without relish, and food taken without relish is worse than wasted. Without relish the salivary glands do not act, the gastric fluids are not freely secreted, and the best of foods will not be digested. Many perfectly harmless dishes are severely condemned for no other reason than they were eaten perfunctorily and without relish and due insalivation. Hunger makes the plainest foods enjovable. It causes vigorous secretion and outpouring of all the digestive flu ids, the sources of ptyalin, pepsin, trypsin, etc., without a plentiful supply of which no foods can be perfectly di gested.

Wait for an appetite, if it takes a week. Fasting is one of the saving graces. It has a spiritual significance only through its great physical and physiologic importance. If breakfast is a bore or lunch a matter of indiffer ence, cut one or both of them out Wait for distance and unr hunger and then eat slowly. If you

THE PENGUIN.

It Is Awkward on Land and a Gymnast In the Water. A kind of penguin, the adelie, is laugh provoking bird. Adelies are most inquisitive and at times are in such a hurry to follow up a clew that they will scramble along the ice on using their flippers alternately like the paddle of a canoe. They get over the ground at an astonishing rate, and it is hard work to overtake a penguin when it takes to this means of locomotion especially when it doubles. In the of workingmen's organizations, had water the penguin is perfectly at home, which, although they did not, as in the style. It can jump clean out of the excesses led to their suppression. It is of soldiers in Indian file, all acting in Decorator, Paper Hanger, Glazier, Etc. untson. A much larger penguin, the emperor.

weighs sixty or seventy pounds and stands well over three feet high. It possesses the most extraordinary muscular powers in its flippers. When presented with the end of the skee stick stockings as now worn, but made long the emperor gives it such a smack that and were often drawn up even to the one's hands tingle. QUESTION OF "THE MAN"

Party Leaders and Trainload of Friends and Admirers Pay a Visit to Judge Parker--National Chairmanship In Doubt

Esopus, N. Y., July 15.-Judge Parker prominent leaders here, including Senator McCarren of Brooklyn, Congressman Bourke Cockran and August Belmont.

"It is only a question of the majority of campaign funds will not play the part it has played in the past two campaigns. This time it is more a question of the man than of any issue and the decision lies with the people absolutely. The sordid element will not be so much a feature as in the past.

"The minute I saw the gold dispatch, and I was with Sheehan when he re ceived it, I said it was the right thing under the circumstances."

Asked about the Bryan utterances McCarren said that Bryan had pledged himself on the platform in the convention to support the ticket and that he believed Bryan would do so. This was

FORCED TO ACCEPT

Davis Nominated For Governor of Maine Against His Will

Waterville, Me., July 15 .- Mayor Cyrus W. Davis of Waterville was nominated for governor of Maine at the state Democratic convention, although when his name was presented he protested against the proceeding, and announced his withdrawal. Samuel W. Gould of Skowhegan, who headed the Democratic state ticket two years ago, was a candidate, and when Davis addressed the convention to announce his position with reference to the nomination he said that he was bound to support Gould and should vote for him. Nevertheless, the delegates declined to relieve Davis, and, although he had relinguished his place as chairman of the convention, they nominated him for governor by a vote of 377 to 80 for Gould.

On motion of Gould the nomination was made unanimous and Davis, after conferring with the party leaders, announced that he would accept it. No other state officers were nominated, as there is no lieutenant governor in Maine and the other places are appointive. The platform reaffirmed and endorsed the platform of the national convention at St. Louis and declared for the submission to the people of the question of retaining the prohibitory amendment in the Maine statutes.

Doukhobors on the Move Winnipeg, Man., July 15.-The Dominion government will leave nothing undone to stop the second pilgrimage of the Doukhobors in search of the Messiah. The pilgrims number about 60. The children are being conveyed in carts drawn by men and women. They are traveling through the Dauphin district. Three constables have been sent out to arrest the leaders.

Hobnobing With Austrians Trieste, July 15.-Rear Admiral Barker and the officers of the American battleship squadron were entertained at a banquet last night by Rear Admiral Von Jedina, who proposed the health of President Roosevelt and also toasted the American navy. Admiral Barker returned thanks and proposed a toast to the health of Emperor Francis Joseph.

traces of blood were taken from the here last evening and sent to Chief Shaw of the district police for analysis. The building where the stained boards vere found is about 50 yards from the building of the Fullerite community, which adjoins the Bennett Hill schoolhouse, where Walter E. State Detectives Murray and Rhodes

Guilty on Fifty Counts

Boston, July 16 .- Everett Abbott, former treasurer of the American Marine Transportation company, was sen tenced to the reformatory at Concord by Judge Pierce, having pleaded guilty to the first of the 50 counts in the indictment charging him with larceny. The count to which the defendant pleaded embraced the total amount of the larceny, namely $6068. The other counts merely detailed the various thefts. He came here from San Francisco without requisition papers, which circumstance, coupled with his previous reputation, resulted in leniency being shown to him.

Two Murderers Convicted

Belmont, N. He made a desperate effort to put the brunt of the crime on Antonio Giorgia, who was previously convicted. The jury returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. Both men were sentenced to death.

Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett of Wash ington, vice president of the Wo men's National Council of the United States, is known on two continents through her labors as general superintendent of the Florence Crittenden missions, established nearly twenty years ago by a wealthy citizen of New York in memory of a daughter. She is a woman of fine intellect and remarkable executive ability, and after her husband's death, a number of years ago, the founder felt that in her he had found the one woman of all the world fitted in every respect to assume charge of the Crittenden missions for unfortuate women. These now number sixtysix in this and other countries and care annually for about 4,000 girls, finding permanent homes for them and extending continued protection. The national headquarters and training school for those who are placed in charge of these missions are in Washington, under Mrs. Barrett's direct supervision. She has studied methods of rescue work in most of the European capitals she frequently visits the missions throughout the United States and Canada, making personal inspection of their work. Mrs. Barrett was a delegate at large and secretary of the woman's board of the Atlanta exposition in 1895, was sent abroad to represent its interests and was also a representative of philanthropic work at the Paris exposition in 1900. She founded a medical college and training school for nurses in the south and inaugurated and built a home for women, where an are constantly cared for. Every woman who is responsible for the home and household duties is or should be quite as much of a business woman as her office sister.

False Lovers.

He is a callous individual who after breaking a girl's heart will congratulate himself upon having got out of his engagement. He is the type of the false lover, for he will promptly go and make love to some other girl. He is always in love with some one in his own short lived fashion. Believing himself to be truly in love, he sets about making the girl return his affection, and after much wooing she may give him the love of her life. Once engaged the false lover gives up much of his love making, and his weak affection dies completely out. He has not intended to be hard hearted. It is only that he does not feel so keen upon marrying as he did. He begins to picture some other ideal, and before long things have come to such a pass that he feels he must jilt the girl he has asked to marry him, must throw her over and be free again. Hard it may be for the girl, but if she only could see it in the right light how thankful she should be that she has escaped. For a loveless husband is far, far worse than the inconstant lover.-McCall's Magazine.

This fact is not hard to understand." Nurses are often literally angels of mercy, gliding into the sickroom, gently but firmly disthe patient by their very calmness. While a nurse's personality does count for something with the patient, still many of those little qualities which appeal to him so strongly are as mechanical as a rule in mathematics.

Pianos and Plants.

A growing plant should be kept in the room with a piano, says a piano tuner. As long as the plant thrives the plant will. The board is forced into the case so tightly that it bulges and in Japan, China and Mexico, and up in the center and, though the wood is supposed to be as dry as possible when this is done, it contains some moisture and gathers more on damp days. When this moisture is dried out the board flattens and finally cracks.

Conviction, Sentence of Forty-Nine Years Each, and Start to State Prison All Accomplished Within Half an Hour

Mount Holly, N. J., July 16 .- Aaron Timbers, Jonas Sims and William Austin, the three negroes who confessed to criminally assaulting Mrs. Elsie Biddle of Burlington, were sentenced to 49 years each in the state prison at Trenton, after a record-breaking trial. The three men arrived in Mount Holly at 1:15 p.m. Less than half an hour later they had pleaded guilty, been given the extreme penalty for their crimes by Judge Gaskill, and were on their way to Trenton to begin their long sen-

When the men, handcuffed to three detectives, stepped from the train there were at least 1000 persons congregated about the railroad station. Company A, N. J. N. G., quickly opened a passageway, and within five minutes the criminals were in the courthouse. Judge Gaskill had ordered that the curious be excluded from the courtroom and in consequence only the newspaper men and the guardsmen were admitted.

When the negroes were brought before the court Judge Gaskill appointed counsel to defend the men. A brief consultation was held between counsel and the three men and it was announced that they would plead guilty. Judge Gaskill accepted the plea and in pronouncing sentence said:

"The sentence of the court is that for the charge of rape to which you have just pleaded guilty each of you be confined in the state prison at hard labor for the term of 15 years; upon the charge of robbery, 15 years; upon the charge of assault with intent to kill an officer, 12 years, and upon the charge of robbing the house of William Streaker, seven years, making a total of 49 years."

Trenton was reached at 2:30 and the men had begun their sentences at 2:45 Judge Gaskill last night explained the swift methods employed in sending the three negroes to the state prison. He said: "The rapidity with which the cases

FOLLOW FALL RIVER

What Many Other New England Mills May Decide to Do

Boston, July 16.-The latest move of the Fall River cotton manufacturers, who are to reduce wages 121/2 percent on July 25, is of considerable interest in mill circles here. The cotton manufacturing industry is still in poor shape and the margin of profits is exceedingly smail on most lines of goods. Some of the milis are obliged to store goods in face of a light demand at profitable fig-

With Fall River on a lower basis for saving, there is no question but that some of the other New England mills will be obliged to reduce wages. The print cloth mills usually follow the Fall River basis and competition is such that the price paid for weaving is no smallsized factor in the market. Whether the fine goods mills will be forced to revise their schedules cannot be stated with accuracy, but it is understood that those in New Bedford and at some of the other southern New England towns will consider the wage question at an early date.

At the present time, none of the New Bedford mill men will know what will be done, but the feeling is that there is only one thing to do, drop wages to the level of Fall River in order to be able to compete with the mills there. Whether the rate of cut will be similar. 12½ percent, or 10 percent, is something that cannot be forefold, but within a few days the treasurers will discuss the matter and come to a decision.

OLDEST CLOCK IN ENGLAND.

Erected In 1320 In One of the Towers of Peterborough Cathedral.

Peterborough cathedral has the oldest working clock in England. It was erected about 1320 and is probably the work of a monastic clockmaker. It is the only one now known that is wound up over an old wooden wheel. This wheel is about twelve feet in circumference, and the galvanized cable, about 300 feet in length, supports a leaden weight of three hundredweight. which has to be wound up daily.

The clock is said to be of much more primitive construction than that made by Henry de Nick for Charles V. of France in 1370. The clock chamber is in the northwest tower, some 120 feet high, where the sunlight has not penetrated for hundreds of years, and the winding is done by the light of a candle.

The gong is the great tenor bell of the cathedral, which weighs thirtytwo hundredweight, and it is struck hourly by an eighty pound hammer. The going and the striking parts of the clock are some yards apart, communication being by a slender wire. The clock has no dial. The time is shown on the main wheel of the escapement, which goes round once in two hours.-London Chronicle.

THE TOWER OF HUNGER.

A Famous Prison of Pisa Long Since Destroyed.

"The Tower of Hunger" was a name given to the tower of Gualandi, in Pisa, celebrated because of the reference made to it in Dante's "Inferno."

Ugolino, count of Gherardesca (1220-89), was the head of a leading Ghibelline family in Pisa. Deserting the Ghibellines, he went over to the Guelphs. Afterward he returned to his own side and joined that uncompromising faction which regarded Archbishop Ruggieri as their head, until dissensions arose between him and them after he had killed the archbishop's nephew in a quarrel.

In the summer of 1288 Ugolino was seized by the Ghibellines and sent a prisoner to the tower of Gualandi, with his two sons and two grandsons. Here they were kept till March, 1280 when the door of the tower was fa tened, the keys thrown into the tion. The tower, which was ever a

A LESSON IN ASTRONOMY.

You Can Study It and Perform a Trick at the Same Time.

With an eggshell and a breakfast plate our boys and girls can perform a little trick that will interest and instruct at the same time.

The next time you eat a boiled egg moisten the rim-not merely the edge, but all the raised part-of your plate and place the empty eggshell on the wet surface.

The shell should be broken off evenly all around so as to form a little cup. Now, if you hold the plate up and tip it slightly, the egg will not merely slide but spin along the rim, and by continually altering the inclination angle of the plate you can make the shell spin all the way around it. I do not mean that it will spin rapidly like a top, but that as it goes around the plate it also revolves slowly about its own axis in the same direction. Now this, you know, is just what the earth does in traveling around the sun, so here you have an easy and pretty lesson in astronomy at the breakfast table.

It is not exactly nice to muss with one's food, but in this case it may be allowable to make a daub of egg yolk in the center of the plate, with rays streaming out all around to represent the sun.-New York Mail.

THE HORSESHOE.

How a Peasant Taught His Little

Boy a Good Lesson. A peasant was going on a journey with his son Thomas. "Look," said the father, on the way, "there is a horseshoe lying in the road; pick it up and put it in your pocket."

"Oh!" said Thomas, "it is not worth the trouble of stooping down."

The father picked up the iron without saying anything more and put it into his pocket. In the next village he sold it to the smith for a few farthings and bought some cherries with the money. They both traveled on. The wide there was no house, no tree, no spring to be seen, and Thomas was almost fainting with thirst. His father now let drop-as if by accident-a cherry. Thomas picked it up as eagerly as if it were gold and put it directly into his mouth. After awhile his father let another cherry fall, and Thomas stooped down as eagerly for that. In this way from time to time his father let him pick up all the cherries, and when Thomas had devoured the last, he turned round to him laughing and said, "See, now, if you had been willing to stoop down only once for the horseshoe, you need not have stooped down so many times for the cherries." -From German of C. von Schmid,

A Robin's Queer Home.

Although any member of the bird tribe is apt to do this, the robin is the most frequent violator of the laws of bird propriety. A robin if it followed the laws laid down for it by nature would build in some shallow hole or depression in a grassy knoll. Some are content to do this, others are not. For example, one robin chose an old tin kettle that was lying on one side under a hedge. This was in full view of the passers by and in constant danger from marauding cats and dogs. But it was waterproof and extremely convenient, so the robin chose it in saucy defiance of inquisitive visitors. Another robin chose a still stranger nesting place, and where do you suppose? In church!

The Smallest Church.

Until very recently the little church in the village of St. Lawrence, on the Isle of Wight, was the smallest church in existence. It was built nearly 900 years ago and was probably at first only used as the private chapel of some wealthy family. It was twenty-five feet long, seven feet high and eleven feet broad. It held only twelve people. Not long ago it was slightly enlarged and is no longer the very smallest church, although it is still quite small.

Such a small band of women could not afford to care for two houses even if they could have secured the friends to purchase the Dorothy Q. house. They gave a delightful entertainment at the house one evening when Miss Elizabeth Porter Gould of Boston read from her book on John Hancock.

This keeping of the house before the public has at last led to its preservation, and it is now in good hands, having been purchased by the Massachusetts Society of the Colonial Dames. #### INVESTING MONEY.

Be Sure of Your Scheme Before You Don't tie yourself or your money up.

Don't risk all your savings in any scheme, no matter how much it may promise. Don't invest your hard earned money in anything without first making a thorough and searching investigation. Do not be misled by those who tell you that it is "now or never" and that if you wait you are liable to lose the best thing that ever came to you. Make up your mind that if you lose your money you will not lose your head and that you will not invest in anything until you thoroughly understand all about it. There are plenty of good things waiting. If you miss one there are hundreds of others. People will tell you that the opportunity will go by and you will lose a great chance to make money if you do not act promptly. But take your time and investigate. Make it a cast iron rule never to invest in any enterprise until you have gone to the very bottom of it, and if it is not so sound that level headed men will put money in it do not touch it. The habit of investigating before you embark in any business will be a happiness protector and an ambition protector as well.-Qrison Swett Marden in Success.

In "Romeo and Juliet" the servants of Capulet and Montague begin a quarrel by one biting his thumb at the others. Where Convicts Ever Wear Shrouds and Sleep Beside Coffins.

Entombed in a grim castle on the outskirts of Lisbon are some of the most miserable men on earth. These are the inmates of Portugal's deadly prisons of silence. In this building everything that human ingenuity can suggest to render the lives of its prisoners a horrible, maddening torture is done. The curidors, piled tier on tier five stories high, extend from a common center like the spokes of a huge wheel. The cells are narrow, tomblike, and within each stands a coffin. The prison garb is a shroud. The attendants creep about in felt slippers. No one is allowed to utter a word. The doors are unlocked, and the halt a thousand wretches march out, clothed in shrouds and with faces covered by masks, for it is a part of this hideous punishment that none may look upon the countenances of his fellow prisoners. Few of them endure this torture for more than ten years.

Valuation Less, Tax Rate More.

Taunton's bigh tax rate of last year will be exceeded this year. The assessors announced yesterday, says the Globe, that the tax rate for the coming year would be $21.60 per $1,000, as compared with $20.40 last year, an increase of $1.20. Increased appropriations and no corresponding increase in taxable property are given as the reason for the higher rate. The incorporation of the New England cotton yarn company took away $200,000 in personal property and the largest increase was $80,000 in machinery at the Huber-Hodgman press company's plant. But eight new buildings were erected during the year. The number of assessed polls is 8,523, as a gain of 20 over the property sbrank from $4,915,275 to $4,766,050, a difference of $149,225. The value of buildings is $10,743,490, Extract from the Revised Laws of Massaan increase of $110,785, and of land $5,228,665, a decrease of $775. The total valuation is $21,585,931, a shrinkage of $2,210 from 1903. How the Czar Treats His Soldiers. How the Russian government treats its soldiers is interestingly told in an article by Isador Ladoff in Harper's week leaving the boys in the charge of Weekly. The author served with the czar's troops for some time, and his No better outing can possibly be knowledge of the methods and pracmonth in camp, more boys are sure to personal experience. The injustice and cruelty with which the Russian soldiers are treated is almost incredible. Their pay is only 22 cents every two months; the noncommissioned officers get 33 cents, and out of this the men are required to pay for keeping their uniforms, boots, etc., in repair. Their food consists of sour cabbage soup, ous headache, sourness of the stomach, and | black gruel, suet, meat and rye bread, which is prepared in an uncleanly way and repulsively served. Besides this the soldiers have to endure the most excessive oppression, bullying, cruelty that the tendency to it should be given and injustice from their superiors. Altogether, says Mr. Ladoff in conclusion, the army is nothing less than "a school of demoralization."

STILL FAR APART

BOTH FOR ARBITRATION

Hitch Appears to Be on Reinstatement of Men Who Quit Work--Allied Trades Unions Restless and Many Strike

Chicago, July 16 .- Negotiations for peace in the stockyards strike are practically at a standstill and the strike will continue until one side or the other abates something of the demands made up to the present time.

Both sides are anxious for a peaceable settlement, but the stumbling block to a final adjustment is that neither side is prepared to allow the other to dictate the basis of the arbitration. Yesterday afternoon the packers considered Donnelly's reply to their proposition of Thursday, but it proved unsatisfactory and the union officials were notified that it would be impossible to reach an agreement along the lines suggested by Donnelly.

In their answer to Donnelly the packers declared themselves willing to arbitrate, but stipulated that the arbitration should include the entire scope of the strike and not be subject to the restrictions or limitations of any kind.

This communication of the packers was identical with the one sent yesterday by them to Donnelly and to which his counter proposition of vesterday was a reply. With the reply of the packers was sent a note to Donnelly notifying him that they would be ready for his answer today and that if he desired another conference with them they would be pleased to meet him in another effort to reach a basis of arbi-

No arrangements have as yet been made for another conference, but the reply of the unions to the last note of the packers will be sent today, after which Donnelly will leave for St. Louis, where he will address a mass meeting of strikers on Sunday after-

Mr. Donnelly's last proposition to the packers was as follows: "All grievances to be submitted to arbitration; all strikers to be reinstated in a body; men employed by the packers since the strike may be retained if use can be found for them; the temporary wage scale to be that in effect previous to

This means that unskilled labor is to be paid, pending the decision of the arbitrators, 181/2 cents instead of 15 to 171/2 cents, the price paid since May 28.

Following is the reply of the packers to the proposition of Donnelly: "Al grievances to be submitted to arbitra tion; the strikers to be re-employed as rapidly as places can be found for them preference to be given the strikers in the order of their applications for work all men now at work to be retained and the temporary wages to be in accord ance with the schedule in effect at the time of the strike."

The Allied Trades unions at the stockyards are becoming restless and unless a settlement is reached in the near future they may decide to stop work in sympathy with the men already out. The members of the allied crafts in the yards at this city number between 14,000 and 15,000 and a majority of them belong to the union. A mass meeting of these men will be held tonight, when the question of their quitting work will be discussed.

The work in the packing plants in this city was continued yesterday on a trade conditions were gradually bemuch larger scale than at any time since the strike has been declared. Many new men have been employed, among whom it is said they are doing better than they expected they would be able to do at the time the old employes quit work.

With the increase in the working force, the packing houses are able to fill all orders and slaughtering is done on a sufficiently heavy scale to warrant some buying. As long as the workmen who have taken the places of the strikers continue at work the packers declare that a meat famine can be averted for many weeks. Around the stockyards district the expressed half-mast. opinion is that the strike will last well into next week.

OFF FOR THE FRONT.

Night Departure From Tokyo of the Imperial Guard.

English Writer's Description of Their Spectacular March In Japan's Capital to the Railway Station. Thousands Cheered the Warriors and Carried Brilliant Lanterns.

A. G. Hales gives the following description, in the London News, of military Tokyo and of the departure for the seat of war of the Imperial guard: All day long there had been signs of unusual stir and bustle in the Japanese capital. The quiet of the place was shaken, women were going to and fro with anxious faces as though an event of importance were about to occur. As the day wore away and the dusk of evening settled upon the city the pulse of the people began to throb more forcefully. I sent my interpreter to find out what was afoot. He came back at last with the news that at an early hour in the night the Imperial guard of Tokyo were to leave the city for the seat of war. Of all the troops known in the metropolis, perhaps none is so popular with the people as the Imperial guard, and I was to have an opportunity of watching a demonstration of a nature worth chron-

It was about 8 of the clock when the great sight began. The night had come on with sudden darkness, not a star lit the black mantle that overhung the world, there was no moon and the shadows cast by the dwellings in the unlit streets were scarce darker than the surrounding void. A magnetic calm had fallen upon the capital as if the people were gathering themselves together for one great patriotic effort. Suddenly the scene was changed. The tramp of armed men rang out upon the night. Short, sharp words of command, spoken, strangely enough, in the English tongue, cut through the clank of falling footsteps, and then we birthday in mid-May. Pryce is forty. knew that the Imperial guard was on Caine is fifty-one. its way to the forefront of the war. homes as a river in the full of its flood pours over its banks. They came in rivulets; they came in torrents, and from every throat went up a shout of | pride, a wild, shrill cry of welcome came the reverberating tramp of warriors' feet, and still the shadows lay upon the land.

It was weird, that march in the night, echoes, the clank of arms, the shuffling footfalls of the populace and ever and anon a bugle's note. Then once again the scene was changed, 10,000 lanterns bamboos by men and lads and boys; him. lanterns of every size and shape, lanterns pure white or blood red, lanterns green and gold, lanterns round, square and oblong-all carried high in the air above the heads of the marching men, ed. The incident is commented upon and as the troops passed on each doorway opened wide and every doorway reate's dramatic gifts are still quessent a man or boy, armed with a blaz-tioned. ing circle of flame, to swell the throng, until the very air danced with a blaze of beauty. Banners held aloft in women's hands sparkled in the gorgeous gleaming folds of light, until the gazer's eye was dazzling by the rainbow hues that had sprung into being from the very womb of the night. Far up above the blackness lay unbroken; below, the earth was wrapped in shadows, while in between the earth and sky a blaze of brilliance lay. The lights shone down upon the hard, brown faces of the Imperial guard and flashed from rifle barrels carried proudly by men called forth to battle for a nation's hon-

A swift rush of voices followed as wave follows wave upon the coast. Women and children sang, men danced and tossed their lanterns high, boys clapped their hands and sent shrill treble sounds far out into the night. And yet above it all, above the babel of sound, above the cheering and the song came the stern, strong tread of the men who were marching to victory or to death. They swing along with the measured stride of men who knew what marching meant, each man wrapped in his entered his first race last night since heavy jet black overcoat, his knapsack his accident of about three weeks ago on his back, his bayonet by his side, and easily won a 15-mile motor-paced his rifle on his shoulder, the yellow facings showing on each front. Steadily they moved amid that storming, swaying, fire girt multitude until they reached the railway station; then, as if each soldier were part and parcel of a machine, they passed along the platform into their places. There was no hurry, no confusion, no shouting or storming-just a low word of command at intervals and prompt, unquestioning obedience, and every seat was filled by the man appointed to fill it, and in a moment, without a hitch or a blunder, the troops that were the pride of the capital flashed out into the night to cross steel with the gray clad men from the faroff north, while the women were left behind to weep and to work, to watch and to wait, as women must

HE fair grounds were a kaleidoscop*, concentrating at the race course in a tossing sea of meet was in full blast, and this was the great day upon its week's programme. Town and country mingled-a restless. habbling, good natured throng, occupying, rank on rank, tier on tier, every inch of vantage space, or streaming over the surrounding turf.

Sitting in the middle of the amphitheater Harold Durr eagerly gazed day. It was part payment on a piece across the track, looking for Alice. He knew that opposite to him, somewhere amid the carriages ranged inside the rail, was her snowy parasol with its floating ruffles of chiffon. It seemed to him that this parasol-her parasolought to stand out before him blazoned with the word "Alice." But fifty, a hundred, parasols, all snowy, all massed in chiffon, met his straining eyes.

When some months previous to this date Mr. Redding had awakened to the fact that the acquaintance, ostensibly casual, between his daughter and young Durr was assuming a more serious aspect he very promptly set his parental foot squarely upon the whole affair. For the present an engagement was quite out of the question. Harold was only a clerk, who, although he possessed abundant plans and ambitions, had not realized upon them. It was better that for awhile intercourse cease. If in time Harold proved worthy, socially and in a business way, possibly he might again try his chances. Thus, midst tears and vows from the daughter and indignant protestations and resolves by the lover, Mr.

Redding carried his point. Harold entered upon an indefinite term of proba-The odds were in favor of Mr. Redding finally yielding. He saw that his daughter was utterly miserable, and, after all, Harold's character was above reproach. Poverty was the lad's only drawback, one which the banker was strongly considering remedying.

Still today, as for many foregoing days, Harold was on one side of the track. Alice on the other.

It was now 3 o'clock. Several races had been dispatched, and the next upon the programme was of intense local interest. It was a contest in which were entered two horses which had long been keen rivals, whose owners had agreed to make this match a decisive

The fever of speculation was waxing More and more turbulent in the crowd. Harold himself had no idea of wagering. He had been brought up to believe that betting was wrong. Besides, he could not afford to bet, and it was his theory that usually the winners are those persons who do not vitally care. However, everybody around him was betting. Everybody was talking horse, Everybody was telling of prospective gains. Banterings, gay assertions, playful threats, flew thick and fast. Men were coming and going, bearing reports of doings in the betting ring, for, despite the pretended efforts on the part of the meet officials, underneath the amphitheater pools were selling at a

Harold felt himself alone inert. He was pervaded by vague discontent. Everybody was winning; nobody was losing, except the pool sellers, and they were legitimate spoil. To quiet his unrest he arose and strolled out toward the stairs. Impelled onward, he descended and in an instant was seized by the mob gyrating about the bookmakers' stands. A hand clapped him on the shoulder, and he heard a voice in his ear: "Hello, old man! Want a good thing?" He twisted his neck and looked behind him and saw that the speaker was Dicky Saddler-red faced little he was torn away. Harold pushed through the throng spot whence he could read the figures maker's box. Seven Up was selling at odds of 5 to 2

What a chance! With his $10 he could gain $25. He would use the money to with a manner-oh, a manner! start a savings bank account for himcolor, for the Kirby fall racing self and Alice. He had tried his best to save, but had been unable. Surely in such a cause betting was not wicked. Thus he reasoned.

If only he had more money available. But the $10 was the extent. Of course there in his hip pocket reposed the $100 that he had received just as he had been closing the office for the half holiof real estate. Mr. Benthorne, his employer, had gone, and the safe was locked, so Harold had placed the five twenty dollar bills securely in his pocket until the next day.

Now, not for an instant did he consider intrenching upon this sum. No. he was sane even if he was excited. And he was honest.

Suddenly he cast hesitation to the winds. He stepped forward and handed his bill to the bookmaker.

"On Seven Up," he said. In exchange he received a bit of gray card, like a ticket, with hieroglyphics on it which signified that he had wagered with bookmaker No. 8 $10 to $25 that Seven Up would pass the wire

As he was pocketing the ticket and taking refuge in the thought that if he lost "'twould all be the same in a hundred years" his eyes encountered the eyes of Mr. Benthorne, who was but a few yards distant in the crowd. Mr. Benthorne smiled and shook his head. He must have witnessed the transaction. Harold, with a guilty sensation, he knew not why, smiled in return and sought a place in the amphitheater Hardly had he seated himself ere the race was called. The horses gathered at the post. In the amphitheater somebody stood the better to see. Then the movement spread like a wave, and the whole amphitheater was on its feet. Somebody brazenly climbed upon a chair. Immediately the brazen throng climbed upon its chairs also.

The horses fidgeted. A wait, a shifting of positions, a warning from the starter-down they came; a cheer-they were off! And a very pretty start it

"Imp! Imp! Go it, Imp!" "Seven Up! Seven Up!" "Mascot!"

Voices shouted and shrieked in exultation, entreaty and encouragement. Hubbub reigned, engulfing alike the frenzied and the self possessed. Just en Up! Come on, Seven Up!" Harold, outwardly unaffected, said nothing, but with fervent curiosity followed the struggling bunch of horses. "Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up!"

"Imp will win," calmly announced a man beside Harold, closing his fieldglass with a satisfied snap.

Around the last' turn, into the home stretch, adown the home stretch, sped the horses, all but the two leaders enveloped in eddying dust. "Imp! Imp! Imp!"

"Come on, Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up!" A waving of hats and parasols, a volley of cries, and the race was won, but not by Leven Up. "I lost a dollar!" Harold heard the woman behind him bemoaning. He abstracted from his pocket his ticket and stoically scattered it in pieces. No more betting for him. He had learned his lesson and had received what he deserved. Mechanically he put his hand back to his hip pocket to ascertain that the hundred was safe. During the interest attached to the race he had forgotten about this trust. "What! Empty?" With an abrupt, cold tightening of his heartstrings his fingers rapidly explored. Scarcely could he believe them. Empty, empty! I know what I'm saying. See?" And He had been robbed, probably by some deft thief in the betting ring.

He sprang to his feet, urged by an and on the outskirts sought a corner inspiration to seek out Mr. Benthorne where he might stop and think. His at once, inform him, explain to him, ob-case. He was disgraced. One hundred dollars was not much, but it was more than he could restore. To some it would mean nothing; to him it meant ruin. What a fool he had been!

And so his hopes of Alice were now as worthless as those bits of gray pasteboard underfoot, where disappointed holders had contemptuously thrown them. No doubt it was just as well. Alice must be learning to forget himvery likely, among her gay companions, already had forgotten him. He pulled himself together with a jerk and hurriedly made for an exit. When he arrived at his room he had his course planned. For sooth, his choice of courses was limited. It was an explanation with his employer face to face or a note that would explain when the writer was far away. The latterhe would accept the latter. It was the easier solution.

They would not pursue him, to apprehend him, defaulter though he might be styled. He would quietly drop from view, and obloquy, denunciation and sermon would not reach him. Alice would be rid of him, probably gladly after her father had in glee borne to her the news upon hearing it.

An envelope lying upon the table attracted his glance, a blue envelope, addressed to him in her handwriting, a handwriting every dot and curve dear to him, treasured on many a scrap locked within his trunk. With devouring eyes he scanned the contents:

Dearest Harold-Papa has relented. wait. Lovingly, P. S.—Isn't it grand?

Brave little sweetheart! He had done her wrong. She had not forgotten him; she had not wavered. Resisting bribe and derision, she had clung steadfastly to him, week after week, and now she had conquered.

Too late? Should he say, "Too late?" Should he be the deserter? Should he fail her? No, and again no! Her words had restored his courage. She loved him; she had rallied to his side just in this hour of need, and no longer was he a craven. He would not flee his responsibilities, by his action acknowledge his guilt and abandon her to the graceless task of defending the name of a recreant. He would remain and defend his own name. ANXIETY.

Effects of This Form of Mental and Physical Derangement. In a paper read before the congress of French alienists at Grenoble Dr. Gaston Lalanne pointed out that anxiety is a disturbance which is expressed by the entire being. The exciting causes are sometimes physical and sometimes psychical, and the symptoms manifested are both physical and mental. The physical symptoms comprise cold feelings and chills of the scalp and body, general lassitude, inco-ordination of voluntary movements far more apparent than real emotional coloring of speech, and vertigo, which is dependent upon vasomotor cerebral disturbances or upon digestive troubles. In the anxious states there are always circulatory troubles, such as accelerated heart beat, irregularity of the heart's action, heightened arterial tension and coldness of the extremities. Respiratory disturbances are also present. The psychical symptoms of anxiety include various degrees of vague dread and apprehensiveness, often taking definite forms, in which case they are designated as "phobias" or "obessions of fear," weakening the capacity of attention and of memory, and a tendency to confusion of ideas. Hallucinations of the senses are prone to occur.

COMEDIAN SAM VALE.

He Was the Original of Sam Weller of Pickwick Fame.

The original of Sam Weller was Sam Vale, an English low comedian, who, in the early part of the last century, was quite popular in the south of England. In the year 1811, and for a few years after, he made quite a reputation in the musical farce called "The Boarding House," written by Beasley. In this he played the part of Simon Spatterdash, a person who indulged in odd and whimsical sayings. "Come on, as the down on you, as the extinguisher said | Church. to the candle;" "Let every one take care of himself, as the donkey said when dancing among the chickens," are fair illustrations of his witticisms in the course of that play, the resemblance between them and some of the sayings of Sam Weller being very marked. In private life Vale was a wit, and many good things in his own excellent temper, he had no enemies, and the good humor which pervaded every saying, together with the drollery of his manner, gave his witticisms unusual value. His savings were called Sam Valerisms, and on the appearance of Pickwick in 1836 the character of Weller was generally recognized as a portraiture of Vale. The comedian died in 1848 at the age of fifty-one.

MAY DAY FESTIVALS.

They Were Celebrated In the Time of the Ancient Romans. For ages May day has been a time of general rejoicing. All over Christendom its advent is hailed with delight. The birds, the bees and the flowers snow quilt with which she has braved | Preaching by the pastor. All are cordially the ravages of winter and glows resplendent in buds and blossoms. The streams have broken their icy fetters and burst forth into joyous accompaniments to myriads of bird choristers. And humanity, overpowered by the same glad spirit, seeks the woods and the fields to revel in the wealth of verdure so lavishly spread out.

Among the Romans this feeling found vent in their Floralia, or florea games, which began on the 28th of April and lasted several days. We read that "nations taking more or less their origin from Rome have settled upon the 1st of May as the special time for fetes of the same kind. With ancients and moderns alike it was an instinctive rush into the fields to revel in the bloom 208 60 which was newly presented on the meadows and the trees." The barbarous Celtic populations held a heathen festival on this day, but we are not told that it was in any way connected with flowers. It was called Beltein and was celebrated by kindling fires on the hilltops at night. Within the remembrance of many the peasantry of Ireland, the Isle of Man and of the Scottish highlands also held similar celebrations.-Table Talk.

THE DIAMOND.

It Was Probably In Its Original State a Vegetable Product.

Originally the diamond was probably a vegetable product exuded from some ancient tree. Positive evidence on the subject is not forthcoming, but the concurrence of such authorities as Newton, Brewster, Jameson and Lavoisier, who trace it to a vegetable source, must, in the absence of decisive negative proof, make this hypothesis prob-

The crystalline form of the diamond is undoubtedly due to the action of heat, and the occurrence of these stones in igneous rocks and mica slate, especially at the Cape, lends color to the view that they have been metamorphosed, as has been the case with graphite. This complete change may have been directly or indirectly due to the internal heat of the globe or may have resulted from volcanic action. Indirectly it would be accounted for by the immense heat evolved in the crumbling. fracturing and grinding together of the earth's crust in the attempt to adjust itself to the cooling and contracting interior. Directly it may have been the result of a change in the direction of the internal heat, causing a fusion of the rocks of the crust, the diamond and other crystals being formed when they again cooled.

The Name Niagara. "Everybody pronounces Niagara wrong," said a philologist. The accent of this beautiful Indian word should not be put on the syllable 'ag,' but on the syllable 'ar'-the penult-the one before the last. Niagara means hark to the thunder.' Its accent should fall on the penult because the Indians themselves accent it there, because in practhe penult is the accented syllable. the syllable before the last? There are, for instance, Toronto, Mississippi, Alleghany, Appalachicola, Narragansett, Tuscaloosa, Saratoga, Ticonderoga, Os-Hochelaga. In all these names the accent is on the penult. Niagara is a Huron word, and if you can find a Huron you will find that he accents it as he does Saratoga or Tuscaloosa. I don't know how we have fallen into the habit of accenting it wrong."-Chicago Chronicle.

A Good Recommendation. An Irishman was charged with a pet-

"Yes, sorr; there is the chief constable yonder," answered Pat. The chief constable was amazed. "Why, your honor, I don't even know

Coming to Keith's the week of July 18 are number of entertainers who have more than usual local prominence, as well as several who have never appeared on the stage of that playhouse previously. His conributions to Keith program is entitled "English Types," and is said to be one of the most artistic things ever done in vaudeville. ### CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The play announced as the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre next week is Howard P. Taylor's comedy "Caprice" which has not had a Boston production for many seasons. It has enjoyed great popularity in its day and some years ago Minnie Madden Fiske gained distinct favor by her appearances in it as Mercy Baxter The play deals with the love and marriage of tically all our Indian names of places Mercy, who as a country girl finds her education and characteristics uncongenial to her city Think of the Indian names you know. bred husband soon after their marriage, and Don't you accent nearly all of them on leaves him for some years during which she so changes her identity that she is wooed and won again, as a stranger amid the glare glitter of city life, by her husband. ### To Gloucester by Steamboat.

A delightful way to spend a day or the water is to take the Cape Ann or City of Gloucester of the Boston & Gloucester Steamboat Company, for a sail to Gloucester. The boat leaves from the north side of Central wharf, foot of State street, Boston, convenient to elevated trains, at ten in the morning, reaching Gloucester at noon and leaves on the return trip at quarter-past two, getting back to Boston about four, in ample time to reach home before tea.

If you are going to Gloucester for a longer stay the afternoon boat leaving Boston at two o'clock, will be a cool and comfortable way to go. The wharf at Gloucester is centrally located for reaching surrounding resorts. Music for the trip is furnished by the Columbus orchestra. .

The Cape Ann and Gloucester are two of the best boats in service being used throughout the year. They are staunch, well equipped with reliable life preservers and manned by old and experienced captains and crews. Added to comfort and safety is the pleasure of enjoying the beautiful scenery for which the North shore is famous, all at little expense. Plan for a sail to Gloucester the next warm day.

Quincy and South Quincy Game a Tie.

Braintrees Defeat Merrymounts.

Lost Balls Stop a Game at the Park.

What proved to be the most exciting game of the season was that of Saturday at Ward Three between Quincy and Duffy, 2b., South Quincy. Both teams were pretty evenly matched and a good game would have been witnessed only for the rank favoritism that was shown by the umpires. After two were out in the first inning, McGovern gave the next two batsmen a base on balls and on an error the next man reached first. The next batter hit to McGovern who stopped the ball but in his excitement threw over Smith's head and three men scored. The inning closed with the score 4 to 0 in favor of the South

Quincy then settled down and prevented South Quincy from scoring runs.

Quincy got one in the third and one in the sixth. The seventh opened brilliantly for Quincy and by touching up Patterson in good style and bunching their hits they scored four runs.

Each team got a run in their half of the eighth. In this inning with McCrehan, 1b., Mullane on third Flynn hit betweeen third and short, scoring Mullane. On Hobart, cf., the hit Flynn reached first and on the Gallagher, r.f , outfielder's error took second. He Ryan, p, Your business judgment will at once reply:

outlieder's error took second. He went to third on the throw in to catch Mullane at the plate. Then the excitement started. Duffy captain of the South Quincy tried to make Flynn go went to third on the throw in to catch back to second as he claimed only one base was allowed on a ball thrown into the crowd. Malcolm who was umpiring on bases for the home team, was Forbes, c, all at sea in regard to the play he Chadbourne, lb., claiming it was a passed ball and Flynn Sanders, 3b., must go back to second. Flynn claimed Atkins, ss., 2b., he was allowed first base on the hit, Kolson, p., entitled to second on the error and had a right to go to third on the throw to Dunn who fumbled the ball long enough to allow Duffy to reach first. It was a close play and Devaney who was umpiring declared the runner safe. The South Quincy players swarmed around the umpire and for a while it looked as though there would be trouble. South Quincy refused to play if such a Curley, 2b., decision stood and as Pitts, captain of Quincy, thought his team had been Eagan, c.t, getting the worst end of all decisions Wam-ley, r. f., previously, he refused to allow the Hawkins, p.,

THE FIRST HENCHMEN.

They Were Young Nobles Who Acted as Pages to the King. Skeat derives the word henchman from hengstman (Anglo-Saxon), horseman, groom. It is probable that henchmen were in the first instance young nobles who at state ceremonies attended on the king as mounted pages. History speaks of these henchmen in this capacity, for we read that Henry VI. had three and Edward IV. six of them. We find, too, that they were mentioned in the royal ceremonies as belonging "to the riding household" and took part in tournaments. The last time "henchman" is mentioned in connection with the court is in the reign of Henry VIII., and gradually it came to mean an ordinary page. The word is used by Ben Jonson and Shakespeare in this sense. In an English journal of April 6. 1861, a Mr. W. Henchman claims that his family took their name from words spoken by Henry VII. to an ancestor in the hunting field, who had ridden as his page throughout an arduous

ENGLAND IS STIRRED UP

Government Urged to Take Action to Prevent Searching Ships of Neutral Nations--Germany Shares Feeling of Irritation

Rus sia has evidently weighed the question, believes herself to be within her rights, and neither fears nor anticipates international complications. Indeed, some of the powers may have been sounded by Russia on the subject. Nevertheless, foreign opinion is awaited eagerly and more or less criticism is expected.

Members of the diplomatic corps are seenly anxious to ascertain the views their governments will take of the passage through the Dardanelles of these vessels of the volunteer fleet as merchantmen and their subsequent conversion into ships of war. The general view in diplomatic circles is that, while the passage of the Dardanelles might be considered a piece of sharp practice Quincy people may well envy them on the part of Russia, it is an accomtheir new public library with its spa- plished fact, and the powers will not now regard it as a violation of the treaty of Paris, but will guard against its repetition. The diplomats think that some of the powers might insist that henceforth all volunteer vessels shall be considered as warships within the meaning of the treaty.

SOCIETY MEN.

That Is What Society Needs, According to a Society Woman. "What we need is society men," de clared a weary matron. "Our men are so fagged by their attention to business that they are next to worthless. They regard the average social function as an awful bore and leave every thing pertaining to entertaining and to going about to their wives. In case the poor wife succumbs to the strain they hunt around for a spinster or widowed sister or sister-in-law or other relative who will consent to take upon her shoulders this social side of the mat

"As for looking after a daughter, their duty is done when they've given carte blanche with a check book. An Englishman of high title often chaperons his motherless daughter during an entire season and from his knowledge of ineligibles is able to keep her well informed. How about the American papa? His only ammunition consists in an occasional rabid, blustery remark about the nincompoop fortune hunters who hover about the daughter of the house. As for sane, thoughtful counsel, he gives not a bit of it. Society is a game he got into without intention or effort, and he utterly refuses to take any trouble about his fellow players. Even his own daughters have to go it blind. As I said before, what society needs is society men."-Philadel-

SUSPENSION BRIDGES.

They Were Common In Peru In the 63 Howard Avenue, Days of the Incas. Suspension bridges, some of them of considerable length, were common in Peru in the days of the Incas. They were formed of cables of twisted osiers passed over wooden supports and stretched from bank to bank, then bound together with smaller ropes and covered with bamboos. The road from Cuzco to Quito is still noted for frail bridges of this sort, which are in constant use and span deep chasms.

The Chinese also, according to Kircher, have for centuries been familiar with the "suspension" theory and have constructed chain bridges in which the weight of the roadway is supported by the tension of the chains The first iron suspension bridge in ers. Parker's Running Mate Speaks Optimistically of Democracy

GOOD OPINION OF BRYAN

Rumor at Esopus That Parker Men Will Bar Tammany From Conference--Chairmanship of National Committee Unsettled

New York, July 18.-Henry G. Davis of West Virginia, Democratic nominee Pittsburg ......40 for vice president of the United States, arrived in this city last night and is staying at the Fifth Avenue hotel. When asked if there were any incidents of interest on his trip, he said: "Of course I saw now and then along

'How do you do,' but nothing else happened that I recall. Last night I stayed over in Keyser, where I have a bachelor brother, came to Washington, then to Philadelphia and then here." He asked in an interested way what effect Judge Parker's gold standard telegram had in this part of the east and how the work of the convention was generally regarded. When told that there were rumors in some sections that Bryan's followers were dissatisfied because the old Palmer and Buckner men were now coming forward and taking control of affairs he said:

"That cannot be so. I do not believe it. There is less of the communistic Nashua ......32 and socialistic feeling in the country and there will be no quarrels in the Democratic party. I was on the subcommittee that made the St. Louis platform and had an opportunity to know something of the feeling. I sat between Mr. Hill and Mr. Bryan and I can assure you there is no truth in rumors of war in the party."

Mr. Davis spoke very highly of Bryan and characterized him as a "strong, moral man and very good in

Deadlock May Result In Fourteen Thousand Men Going on Sympathetic Strike-- Mob Attacks Negro Strike-Breakers

Chicago, July 18 .- There is but little, if any, change in the situation of the meat packers' strike here. With Michael Donnelly, the strikers' leader, in St. Louis, loooking after that end of the difficulty, there was no effort here to renew the peace negotiations which lasted three days last week and were terminated Saturday night without readjustment of the controversy by arbitration will be made is problematic, as .691 the packers, believing they had the bet-.616 ter of the argument in last week's conferences, are little inclined to offer 556 any concessions to the strikers. One .536 thing is certain, the packers say, and .435 that is that they will not recede from .402 the position they assumed in last .197 | week's conference and that the strikers will have to conform to the emplovers' ultimatum before any further plans looking to a settlement by arbitration will be successful. To add to the packers' determination to stand firm is the fact that they have steadily increased their working force at the plants by the employment of outside workmen, until now, it is said, things are in almost normal condition at several of the plants. Under these conditions the packers have assumed a more independent attitude and are William Gorricy and Alonzo Dorando | more determined than ever that they, during an attack made upon him last and not the strikers, shall dictate the night by a crowd of men in a picnic terms on which the controversy shall

Four dedicatory services were held, two in the forenoon, one in the afternoon and the last in the evening. In each case the program was identical. The service included the reading of selections from the Bible and from Mrs. Eddy's work, as well as the singing of hymns which had been written by

Words of thankfulness at the founding of the church were spoken and a history of the movement which resulted in the establishment of the church was presented. A dedicatory address written by Mrs. Eddy was also read. Mrs. Eddy did not attend any of the services in person, but just before the opening of the afternoon service she passed by the new church building in the course of her usual daily drive and bowed to the throng of Christian Scientists who occupied the sidewalk for several blocks.

The erection of the edifice was made possible by Mrs. Eddy's gift of $120,000, which was augmented by contributions from Christian Scientists.

THE DINING TABLE.

How It Should Be Protected to Preserve Its Beauty.

A handsome, polished dining table is a prize and worthy an effort to secure, but if it is to be left to tareless treatment one might as well put the expense into something else and be satisfled with a cheaper table. A hot dish thoughtlessly allowed to stand a few minutes leaves a perpetual stain. It can be made less noticeable by various treatments and much rubbing, but it will never be entirely obliterated. The wooden or straw mats used years ago are never seen on well set tables. The crocheted white mat occasionally appears, but does not really protect the wood. The only actual protection is by a tile on feet or a nickel rack for tea and coffee pots and asbestus mats for platters and hot dishes. To make an asbestus mat or doily cut a circle of linen and two half circles with the selvage for the long straight edges. Put together the edges of the two half circles. The edges should match neatly. Baste round and make the edges in scallops with a small spool as a guide. Work the scallops in button hole stitch with mercerized floss or embroidery cotton, but never with silk, and then trim. Now slip in a round piece of asbestus cloth through the opening on the under side and the asbestus doily is complete. To launder, slip out the piece of asbestus. Do not add more embroidery, as the dish covers the center. Oblong mats to fit the platters are cut by using a smooth edged platter as a pattern for marking. Use medium weight white linen.

A FATAL THEORY.

It Is Dangerous Work Marrying Man to Reform Him.

Next to the fatal theory that every woman must love is the equally mis chievous doctrine of woman's love. One of the greatest and the cruelest delusions practiced in this world is that which leads us to make a generous and enthusiastic woman believe that she can change a man by loving him. It is what induces a woman to marry a man on trust instead of on appraisement. She never looks at what he is. She only contemplates the miracle that she is going to work by her affection. If he has no money, no business training, no way of making a living, it doesn't matter. She is sure that people in love are never hungry anyway and that her love will inspire him with financial sagacity. If he drinks, it doesn't matter either. She is anxious to make a Keeley cure of herself. If he has a past, she shuts her eyes to it. She knows that he will never sin again when she places her little hand in his, and it is only after she has brought misery on herself that she finds out that the efficacy of a woman's love is a fairy story and that as a reformatory agent it isn't worth a row of pins. You can't love a lazy man into being industrious or a drunken sot into sobriety, and that is all there is to it .- Twentieth Century Home.

It is asserted that the very painful burns caused by carbolic acid can be quickly relieved and blisters prevented by the prompt use of iodine.

Powdered charcoal, if laid thick on a burn, causes the immediate abatement of the pain. A superficial burn can thus be healed in about an hour.

Vinegar and cooking soda in solution are said to make a capital cure for warts. If the wart is kept moist with it for ten minutes several times a day it will disappear in the course of a week or so in ordinary cases.

For the Hair.

When the hair is dry and dandruffy the following lotion used every other night will be found beneficial: To four ounces of rose water add half a dram each of sulphur, glycerin and borax. This will clear the scalp of dandruff and prepare it for the new growth of hair. While the head is in the abnormal condition indicated by the presence of dandruff the hair will neither be glossy nor of a good color nor will there be a healthy growth of new hair. There need be no anxiety over the falling of the hair unless it falls to excess provided new hair keeps on appearing, but no head of hair is so rich and luxuriant that is can stand indefinitely being depleted even by one hair a day if there is no corresponding gain to bal-

"Getting Rich."

A Boston paper says Quincy is getting rich because four chauffeurs were fined in the district court. It failed to observe that the arrests were made outside of Quincy. Further, it takes more than small fines to make a city rich.

Strikers Will Ask Packers to Reconsider Their Decision

WANT MEN REINSTATED

Refusal Will Result In Calling Out Allied Crafts--Employers Appear In Friendly Mood-Large Forces at Work

Chicago, July 19.-Another effort is strike by arbitration. President Donnelly of the striking unions will send to the packers another letter asking for a conference. In this letter Donnelly will go over the history of the strike and will ask the packers if, in their judgment, it would not be better to concede the one point in contention, the taking back of all strikers, than to continue the strike.

The refusal of the packers to discharge the men they have employed since the commencement of the strike and to give their places to the strikers caused the breaking off of previous conferences.

The communication to the packers will also suggest the belief of the strikers that they are, as old em ployes, deserving of this consideration If this offer of the union is rejected by the packers, Donnelly declares, the allied trades at the stockyards, numbering in all about 13,000 men, will be called out in an effort to bring the pack

Joseph Morton of the Stationary Fire men's union called on the packers and warned them that unless there was a speedy settlement of the strike his men would be compelled to quit work. While no definite answer was given to Morton by the packers, he was re ceived by them in such a friendly man ner that he left the conference with the belief that there was still a strong probability of peace. The determina tion of Donnelly once more to open ne gotiations with the packers was the result of the manner in which Morton was received by the packers.

According to representatives of the packers the operating forces at Chicago plants are about one-half the In every year since 1895 the hottest normal strength, being fully 50 percent crease in the amount of dressed meats shipped out of Chicago. ### ALL IN HARMONY

Conference of Men Interested In the Success of Democracy

Democratic party conferred for more than two hours last night at the Hoffman house, and at the close made public a statement to the effect that the chairmanship of the national committee had not been discussed. Privately it was said the judgment of all present was that the interests of the party would be best conserved by leaving the committee absolutely free to elect its chairman. Judge Parker was said to favor this course. The conference resulted in an agreement to call a meeting of the national committee to be held at the Hoffman house on July 26. The question of fixing the time and place for the notification of candidates to be made to settle the stockyards for president and vice president was left to the candidates themselves.

Present at the conference were the leaders who brought about the nomination of Judge Parker. There was also present Senator Victor J. Dowling of New York who looked after the Tammany interests. Everyone declared that harmony had been the watchword throughout. The discussion of prospects in the coming campaign was general in character. The opinion was expressed by several that western Democrats would give earnest support to the ticket and that no fear of opposition from any party faction need by entertained. HANG THE PRISONERS!

An Exclamation That Was Interpreted as an Order.

The young laird of Lochnow was a character in the Scotch camp life of the early eighteenth century. He was cool in action and full of fun in daily life. One day he was detailed to command a burial party, and as he strolled over the battlefield his orderly came to him in great perplexity.

"Sir," said he, "there is a heap of fellows lying out yonder who say they're only wounded, and they won't let us bury them like the rest. What shall we

"Bury them at once," replied young Agnew, without moving a muscle of his countenance, "for if you take their word for it they won't be dead for a hundred years to come."

The man saluted and started off in all simplicity to carry out the order, and Agnew had to dispatch a counter order in haste to prevent his joke from becoming a tragedy.

This recalls an "o'er true" tale of border life. Some Galloway moss troopers were brought before Sir William Howard, who was an enthusiastic mathematician. He was deep in his studies when the prisoners were marched into the castle courtyard, and a lieutenant came running up to get orders as to their disposal. Enraged at Ice Cream Parlor in rear being interrupted, he cried, "Hang the prisoners!" and went on with his work. He finished his problem and went down with a cheerful mind, only to learn that his exclamation had been taken for an order, and the prisoners were all hanged.

ATHLETICS IN GERMANY.

Wrestling Is One of the Most Popular

Wrestling is one of the most popular forms of athletic exercises in Germany, and it seems as if the heavy and muscular build of the Germans peculiarly adapts them for this kind of sport. The general public interprets the word "athlete" as meaning a wrestler, weight lifter or "strong man." When the English style of athletics was introduced into Germany, it was termed "light athletics." Wrestling is termed "heavy athletics." In every town there are many clubs indulging in "heavy athletics," and numerous public contests are arranged, in connection with which challenges to "all comers" are issued. Here one can often witness a pitched battle between science and brute power-see an "all comer" of stupendous build, probably a butcher, brewer or furniture remover, laid flat on both shoulder blades in the most approved style by a little, wiry fellow as slippery as an eel. On the occasion of the world's championships held in Ber-HERBERT A. HAYDEN PEA, lin an open arena, roofed only in the center, where the wrestling took place, was erected, with tiers of seats for the public all around. As luck would have it, the weather proved boisterous and the public shy of the fair. The championships ended dismally, and the im presario, unable to pay the men's retainers, very discreetly decided to "leave town."-Fry's Magazine.

Flying Fish.

Flying fish swim in shoals varying in number from a dozen to a hundred or more. They often leave the water at once, darting through the air in the same direction for 200 yards or more, and then descend to the water quickly, rising again and then renewing their flight. Sometimes the dolphin may be shorter flights, vainly trying to escape, until they sink exhausted. ### FALL RIVER WAGES

Manufacturers Dread Possible Resistance to the Cut

CLAIM TO BE HELPLESS

Reduction Necessary to Run In Competition With Mills Elsewhere -- Merchants Anxious Over Bitterness of Operatives

Fall River, Mass., July 19.—There is St. Louis ....... 4 some anxiety in manufacturing circles on account of the mystery surrounding the action of the labor leaders at the meeting of the Textile council Saturday night. Despite many reports to Chicago ..................45 the contrary, the great majority of Philadelphia ......41 manufacturers do not want a strike, Cleveland .........37 although they say one could not be inaugurated at a more favorable time for Detroit ......30 them, if business interests of an immediate character were to be considered alone. They dread the disorganization which will follow an open resistance. They feel that there will be a great loss of help here, even if the reduction is accepted peaceably, but inasmuch as they cannot run their mills in full at once, they think the operatives will stay here until they see what can be done better in other places.

But if a strike is inaugurated, they are certain that much bitterness will be engendered, and they say they are helpless in the matter, if the mills are to be run here competition with mills elsewhere. They figure out the situation in the Textile council in two ways: One is that the operatives will be advised to stay at work at the best conditions they can endure until the first signs of returning trade appear. They can then demand a wage restoration and if trade is fair they believe that C. D. Borden will consent to restore the old scale. It will then be easier to make the other mills follow.

Another way is: The Textile council will not take direct action in advising a strike, but if the national organization advises one, the unions in Fall River will take their own time in making this city the New England battlefield for a resistance to the establishment of a wage basis, essentially a southern one, because it is hoped to meet southern competition through the labor end of mill costs. They are not disturbed because the labor union leaders have not asked for a conference, and do not seem to want one.

Manufacturers say the labor union leaders know the situation just as well today as they would if a conference was granted, and in the present state of things, it would simply add to the misery of the situation to tell the secretaries that there was no other way out of the trouble, save by a wage reduction, which is very steep.

The mill men realize that it is going to be an impossibility to take a full Manchester ......29 121/2 percent from the wages of operatives in some departments in addition to what has already been taken. There are weavers here who are running 12 looms for $7.25 a week, and the mill to $6.50, and still keep the operatives | John T. O'Connor, knocking down the at work. "General Keller found the strength of the enemy so great compared with ours that he decided not to continue the fight and not to bring up either the special or the general reserves, especially in view of the fact that in case of his ultimately taking the offensive it would be necessary to act without the support of the field artillery.

THE HAGIOSCOPE.

A Relic of Olden Times Found In Many English Churches.

"In spite of the close blood relationship," said an American who had visited England, "we are frequently reminded in England that we are foreigners. It crops up often in the ordinary conversation.

"An English friend whose guest I was took me around to see his native village. We entered the church.

"'Whereabouts is your pew?' I asked.

"'We sit over there by the hagioscope,' he answered, as though a hagioscope were some common object like a table or a candlestick. My friend noticed the blankness of my face, so he repeated:

"'Over there, just below the hagioscope.

"'Would you mind telling me what sort of an instrument it is that you call a hagioscope?' I asked meekly.

"The Englishman looked hurt: but with a sigh, he explained:

"'We have them in nearly all the old country churches. Do you see that small glass window through the wall beside the altar? That was made at and they attended church services. They were of course not allowed inside, so they stood outside and saw and heard the services through that hole. which is called the squint window, but more often the hagioscope.'

DO IT TODAY.

Tomorrow May Be Too Late and Then You Would Be Sorry.

If you have a flower to give, give it today. One throb of gladness is worth of costly blooms laid, however tenderly, above the dead one.

If you have a kindly visit to make, make it today lest another step in and lay his quiet hand upon the longing heart and still forever its fret and pain and power of glad response. In the city of the dead, in the silence of the grave, hearts are never lonely any more. They have no heed or need. If you have kisses to bestow, let the dear living lips their sweetness know today. If you've smiles to give, give them today. Living eyes are often hungry. Though their gaze be seemingly so calm, so quiet and mayhap so proud, the smiles may be a touch of heaven for them. If they are closed in death, tomorrow your fondest smile would matter naught. If you have a helpful, hopeful, loving word to say, say it today. It may keep some heart from breaking, some soul break the seal tomorrow-if death whispers then-to ears that hear today. -Exchange.

A Useful Tiger.

"Snakes and hyenas are strange pets, but strangest of all is a full grown tiger, and such a pet had Major Mansell-Pleydell," says A. Mervyn Smith in his book. "It used to be chained up just in front of the door of his bungalow. The major had a method of running up was directing the fight around Ikha- bills with local tradesmen, but there vuen, deemed it necessary to lend as- was great difficulty in getting payment, as none of the bill collectors was venturesome enough to cross the guardian at the door. It was a great joke of the major's when asked to pay his bill to reply: 'Have you sent your bill? Your man has never presented it at my house.' Brutus, as the tiger was named, seemed to know what was required of him. When chained before his master's door he would lie with his head between his forepaws and watch the gate. If a stranger entered he would lift his head and breathe heavily, and this was enough to scare the most venturesome of bill collectors."

> Man's Worst Enemy. Wherever you see ten people together, ten average people of all ages, you may say: One of those ten will die of consumption. In the long run you will be more than justified in your prophecy. It will be nearer one out of every nine born into the world. We are horribly afraid of cholera and all bowel diseases, of diphtheria and of scarlet fever. Add to these the annual deaths from measles (measles is far from being harmless) and the sum total is not half of what the great white plague claims. Only pneumonia approaches it as a slayer of men.-Everybody's Magazine.

The Meanest Men.

It is believed the original meanest man was the husband who gave his wife a Christmas present of a pair of suspenders. An early holder of the title was the gentleman who always occupied the last seat in the last car in order to save the interest on his money until the conductor got to him. One of the most brilliant of the long line was the man who took candy from a child in the street. - Chicago Inter Ocean.

COMFORT IN DRESS.

fight Clothes Are a Mistake and Are

Not Essential to Style. A woman who is healthy and happy (and the terms are synonymous) does not wear her clothing uncomfortably tight. She has grown wiser. Women's clothing is cumbersome enough at best, but when vanity and a mistaken sense of style prompts the wearing of tight shoes which distort the feet, high collars which beget throat troubles and cause the face to flush and darken, and tight corsets, then the woman of civilization is but a step removed from the women of China, who hobble on maimed feet. Many women have an idea that comfort and untidy looseness of attire, coupled with lack of style, go hand in hand, and are victims of "nerves" in consequence. How this wrong idea still obtains it is hard to imagine, in view of the fact that perfect cut and fit have made the loose outer garment and shirt waist artistic and a pronounced success for years past. If all women would apply this knowledge in the selection or making of other garments all might be as comfortable as men, who scorn a garment if it pinches. If the corset is properly fitted and loose enough for perfect comfort, and shoes, belt, etc., fitted on the same principle, woman's health would be much better than it is. An hour a day spent in exercise will not undo the work of ten or twelve hours of improper living, hence the absurdity of women trying to obtain better health by exercise and gymnastics when they go from such exercise directly into the mistake of tight fitted clothes.

SUMMER FURNISHINGS.

Cool Looking and Comfortable Arrangements For Porch and House.

A large degree of comfort in warm weather depends upon the piazza space that is available for fitting up as a sitting room. When the porch opens from a living room the interior furnishings may be used in either place, with a few extra pieces added for one or the other. The most desirable rug for the floor is one that is neutral in color, without regard to its material, whether cotton, jute, cocoa matting, wood fiber or wool.

Awnings or screens are necessary for shutting out too intense sunlight from the porch. They may contribute also to the decoration if selected to harmonize with the coloring of the exterior of the house. The bright, varnished yellow of the Japanese screens may be easily altered with two coats of outdoor paint to accord with the house

Furniture for the porch is made in many different designs in willow, reed, rattan, wicker, raffla, matting, rustic work and hickory. Only a few of these, however, can safely be left to the uncertainties of the weather. The living room to present a comfortable appearance during the warm weather should be relieved of all window drapery except a thin lace or muslin that will screen the occupants of the room and soften the glare of light. If these across the pole or rod they may when necessary be swung entirely away from the sash. Upholstered furniture that must be used during the warm weather should have slip covers of cretonne, art ticking or linen taffeta. These materials make a more pleasing covering than the old time plain and striped linens. The furniture for the summer living room should correspond to that of the porch, with the addition of lamps, an open fireplace, a writing desk and lounge. Among the lighter makes of furniture the willow has the advantage of a more artistic variety of designs. A new style of tea table is shown in the illustration, an oblong shape in two tiers in the natural color. Its lightness makes it convenient for carrying from the house to the porch or outside upon the lawn.

During the summer an informal arrangement of pictures may take the place of those regularly framed and hung. A set of water color sketches, a number of hunting scenes or the English posters can be easily transported to the country home and grouped chase. The baby antelope, notwithagainst the wall, as suggested by the Camping Joys Are For the Elect Only. "Camp life is not for every one. Years of experience have taught me." remarks a writer in an exchange, "that camping joys are only for the elect. "People who lean on some one else in every emergency.

"People who cannot be happy without all the conveniences of life. "People who are always afraid of taking cold. As a fact, no one ever thinks of taking cold camping.

"Above all, leave at home the people who do not want to camp, the ones who think there is no fun in it. ### LOFTY ROOF GARDENS.

Features of Two For Top of Manhattan Bridge Over East River.

Two small roof gardens, the finest of the kind in the world, will crown the anchorages of the new Manhattan bridge over the East river at New York. The plans were designed by Richard S. Buck, the consulting engineer of the department of bridges, says the New York World.

The anchorage towers, of which there is one on either shore, do not extend above the roadway of the bridge, which simply passes along over the anchorage towers. The roadway of the structure there has been widened about six feet on each side, so that the area of that part of the roadway over the anchorage towers is 225 feet long by 175 feet wide. This open space, across which the trolley tracks will run, is larger in area than any theater in New York city.

A pavilion or colonnade, the stone roof of which is to be supported by massive stone pillars, is to be built along the outer edge of either promenade, extending two-thirds of the distance along the top of the anchorage towers. These breeze swept pavilions will be 120 feet above the river, directly overlooking the water and commanding a panoramic view up and down the stream from Long Island City to Staten Island and over the entire boroughs of Brooklyn and Manhat-

The roof of each of the four pavalions, or roof gardens, will be supported by six double pillars. There will be seats in the pavilions and also ample room for standing, so that several hundred sightseers may be accommodated in each colonnade. The colon nades will open out on the main bridge promenade, and the floor of the colonnade will be on a level with the prom-

The Manhattan bridge, which is to extend from Fulton street and Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn, to Canal street, in Manhattan, will cost at least $10, 000,000 and possibly $15,000,000. It will be very wide. The entire structure will be elaborately lighted by electricity, and the tops of the anchorage towers and the colonnades will be so illuminated as to present a real fairyland effect at night.

GIRL'S UNUSUAL FEAT.

South Dakota Horsewoman Captured Young Antelope After Long Chase.

A South Dakota girl, Miss Lucille Wilson, who is at present "roughing it" on her brother's cattle ranch near Hampshire, Wyo., according to letters received by relatives living south of Sioux Falls, has distinguished herself by running down and capturing two young antelope, says a Sioux Falls dispatch.

Miss Wilson is a good rider and was returning from a long ride to the ranch when she espied a herd of about fifty antelope feeding in one of the "dips" in the prairie. Miss Wilson succeeded in riding quite close to them before they became aware of her presence. The animals took flight immediately upon catching sight of Miss

Wilson and her horse. She noticed two little fawns in flight beside their mother, and she instantly urged her horse forward and gave standing their smallness, were remarkably fleet of foot, but the horse Miss Wilson was riding was one of the swiftest in that part of Wyoming, and after an exciting pursuit of nearly four miles one of the fawns was overtaken.

Miss Wilson jumped from her horse, grabbed the little fellow and tied its feet with one of the rawhide thongs from the saddle, then mounted and continued her pursuit of the other one, which she also succeeded in capturing. When she appeared at the ranch, carrying a young antelope under each arm, the ranch hands were greatly surprised, as they had frequently failed in their attempts to capture young ante-

In a remarkably short time the two captives became very tame and now follow Miss Wilson to all parts of the ranch like two dogs.

More than a score of reviews and newspapers are using Esperanto regularly, the latest being a Cuban journal and the International Science Review, whose contributions include men of eleven different nationalities.

HEAT!

Heat is a form of energy which nature is amply supplying at the present time. But how about next winter? What arrangement have you made to heat your house through the cold weather? Are you satisfied with your old furnace or stoves with their hot dry air and dusty registers which warm the rooms only in spots?

BY USING ONE OF OUR Steam or Hot Water Heaters

you can maintain a Florida tempera'ure in your home, with a reduction in your coal bill of at least 20 per cent. Not as hard to manage as a Parlor stove or Furnace. We have one of these heaters set up for your inspection at the entrance to the shop. It is capable of heating a ten room house, average size of room 13 feet by 14 feet (15,000 cubic feet of air) to a temperature of 70 degrees at zero weather.

We should be pleased to furnish you with any information on heating or quote you prices. W. A. BRADFORD,

Desire to Aid In Adjusting Present Trouble and Prevent Its Spread--Both Sides Claim to Have Advantage In Strike

Chicago, July 20.-The crisis in the stockyards strike will come this afternoon. The allied trades unions in the stockyards, which are certain to become involved in the controversy if it is not soon settled, held a conference yesterday afternoon lasting five hours, and at its conclusion sent a letter to the packers asking for a joint conference between representatives of the strikers, of the packers and of the allied trades to see if a settlement of the strike along peaceful lines cannot be reached. There is nobody who will say that the packers will agree to the conference and it is impossible to say with certainty that the meeting will be held. Arthur Meeker, manager for Armour & Co., speaking for the other packers as well as for his own establishment, said that he would send a reply to the letter received from the representatives of the allied unions. He declined to say, however, what the nature of the reply

The unions joining in the request for the meeting represent all the trades engaged in the packing industry, and they have joined in a final appeal for striking butchers. President Donnelly of the Butchers' union says that he is anxious to have peace, but that unless it comes with the proposed conference today there will be a general sympathetic strike on the part of the allied trades unions.

The letter asking for the conference is as follows:

"J. Ogden Armour and Associates: "The representatives of the teamsters, mechanical and other trades engaged in the packing house industry of Chicago, not already involved in the present strike, would like to meet representatives of the packers and the representatives of the meat cutters who 9c. per lb are now on strike in joint conference with a view of helping to adjust the present trouble and prevent it spread-$8.00 ton system that now obtains among our members makes this request imperative. If convenient we would like the conference to be held tomorrow.

"A similar request was made to the resentatives of the meat cutters and they promptly complied with the request. Kindly notify us as soon as possible if our request can be complied

The letter was signed by representatives of the coopers, packing house teamsters, stationary firemen, stationary engineers, steam fitters, steam fitters' helpers, electric workers, carpenters, car workers, millwrights and machinery erecters, blacksmiths and horseshoers' unions.

Both sides claim to have the advantage in the strike. The packers assert that they are operating their plants almost to their full capacity, while the strikers contend that the packing trade throughout the country is practically demoralized. The packers also assert that there is no necessity for any advance in the prices of meat and declare that it is simply a "hold-up" by the retail dealers.

Weary of turmoil and hardships encountered while struggling for a living in the face of strikes and lockouts, 42 families of the strikers left Chicago yesterday afternoon to return to Austria-Hungary. There they will receive less pay, they say, but their employment will be more steady and bereft of peril.

Situation at St Paul

St. Paul, July 20.-Governor Van Sant refuses to interfere in the strike here, insisting that other means than the calling out of the state militia can be utilized to secure order in the packing house district. The business men of South St. Paul drew up resolutions demanding protection and order, and both the governor and the mayor of South St. Paul were presented with

New Haven, July 20 .- A marked decrease in the public demand for beef has had the effect of sending the wholesale price down to 12 and in some cases 11 cents. The price has been 14 and 15 cents. Retailers found their trade falling flat through the refusal of the public to buy at the high prices.

SHUNK---LELAND

laston United in Marriage.

A very quiet home wedding was celebrated and witnessed by about forty relatives and friends of the bride and room at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Leland Norfolk Downs, on the evening of July 18, when their daughter Mertie Adeline was given in marriage to Gilbert Chester Shunk of Wollaston. The bride was becomingly dressed in white Swiss, trimmed with lace and ribbons, wearing a bridal veil and carrying a bouquet of lilies of the valley. The ushers were Harry A. Kendal and Harold W. Cheney of Clinton early choolmates of the bride. Home decorations were very simple and beautifully arranged. Wild flowers, evergreens and mosses were festoone in graceful loops from each corner and caught up in the centre of the room with cupid's dart.

The bay window was banked with the same and growing from its mossy ed were two spruce trees; at the base f each were large bouquets of white vild flowers over which were placed a eautifully trimmed arch from which nung a floral bell.

Mr. Turner of Roslindale played the wedding march. At the appointed hour the couple took their places, where the Rev. Edmund D. Webber was in waiting to perform the marriage

After congratulations, refreshments were served in the decorated diningcoom. Friends were present from inton, Somerville, Fitchburg, Enfield Waltham and Worcester. Mr. and Mrs. Shunk were well re-many ornamental and useful presents, and amid showers of rice they made a rapid transit down the winding stairs and escaped with their lives, looking toward the peaceful hills of Vermont for refuge to enjoy their honey-moon.

Returning they will make their home in Wollaston where a well furnished house awaits them. They will be at 1899 home to their many friends after Sept. 1903

Muir-Glines.

Miss Georgia May Glines and Mr. Walter Muir were married at the home of the bride's sister. Mrs. J. E. Sprague, 73 Goddard street, South Quincy, Tuesday, at 2.30 P. M., by the 1899 Rev. W. W. West Quincy Ward Now Last In the List.

The ward valuation of the city makes an interesting study, particularly as $12,195,83 they were not published for the years 900, 1901 and 1902. The assessors have compiled the ward valuations for 1903 and they are as follows:

|      |   | Real Estate. | Personal.   | Total.       |
|------|---|--------------|-------------|--------------|
| Vard | 1 | $5,945,375  | $1,309,875 | $7,255,250  |

Washington, July 20.-With a view to being fully prepared for any contingency that may arise in connection with the passage of any American vessel through the Red sea, the state department has begun an exhaustive study of all the precedents since the Crimean war involving the stoppage of neutral ships as belligerents and the exercise of the right of search.

All the information possible respect ing the present actions of the Russian volunteer cruisers in the Red sea is being gathered. The state department has taken very broad ground respecting the exemption of neutral shipping from annoying interference, as markedly shown in the proclamation of President McKinley at the beginning of the Spanish war. The general contention was that a neutral flag covers neutral goods and, while it is admitted here that that is not yet a universally accepted tenet of international law, it is held that it should be such, and the state department has lost no opportunity to bring that to pass. But, aside from the question of contraband goods and neutral shins, the officials here feel that the action of the 000,000 to \$873,000,000, an in-  $\star$  Russian ships in connection with the mails is the gravest issue now presented. In the famous Trent case. where Captain Wilkes, an American, boarded the British steamer Trent and carried off Mason and Slidell, the confederate commissioners, the British government in its contention, which was practically admitted by the United States in the end, remarked that the summary removal from the ship of the commissioners was "almost as bad as removing the mails would have been," showing clearly what the British idea was then as to the right to carry off

Great Britain Disturbed

London, July 20.-Russia's action in the moment overshadows the news from the theatre of operations in the far east. It is said that England is prefort to enforce her interpretation of the international law bearing on the case.

A similar warlike tone pervades al most every other paper.

Weather a Factor In War

St. Petersburg, July 20.-As an outcome of General Keller's engagement at Motien pass, the military experts are convinced that there has been a rearrangement of the Japanese forces and a change in the Japanese plans in favor of a flanking movement on Liao Yang rather than a direct movement on Tatchekiao. This change, coinciding with the arrival of Field Marshal Oyama, leads the experts to attribute the responsibility to the new commander-in-chief. The developments of the campaign in the near future are bound to be greatly influenced by a new factor, the luxuriance of the vegetation, following the few days' rain, and by the rains themselves, which are now due. The High water-6 a. m.; 6:30 p. m.

enemy, renders the prospect of an advance to the valley of the Liao river too hazardous and therefore it has probably been abandoned by the Japanese, thus explaining the delay in the occupation of Yin Kow. On the other tremely improbable that Oyama will venture to order an advance on Liao Yang in view of the enormous difficulties of transportation over the heavy roads and swollen streams.

Reinforcements For Japs

London, July 20 .- The Daily Chronicle prints a dispatch from its Yin Kow correspondent saying that the reinforcements for which General Oku has been waiting are now being disembarked under the protection of seven Japanese cruisers. A fresh landing of troops, the dispatch says, is also being effected to the north of Port Arthur, and important events may be looked for this week.

Diplomats Astonished

London, July 20.-The Constantinople correspondent of The Standard says: "The infractions of the treaties of Paris and London by the Smolensk and the St. Petersburg are causing astonishment. Only a month ago a British yacht was compelled to disembark two toy cannon before being allowed to pass through the Dardanelles."

CALL FROM LABOR MEN

Roosevelt Talks With Them on Conditions In Colorado

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 20.-President Roosevelt last evening received the committee appointed by the convention of the coal miners and allied crafts at Wilkesbarre, Pa. The mission of the committee was to present personally to the president a petition reciting the condition in which organized labor has been placed by the action of the authorities of Colorado and requesting him to institute an investigation of the labor troubles in that state with a view, if possible, to remedying the conditions now existing.

The petition, which was the expres sion of 225,000 men of the union labor organizations of northeastern Pennsylvania, was laid before the president He read it carefully and then informed the committee that he would be glad to do anything he properly and legally could do to ameliorate the conditions existing in Colorado. He indicated that an investigation of the labor troubles in that state is now being made by agents of the department of commerce and labor. Thus far, the conversation indicated, the situation had not been such as would warrant interference by the federal government. Following the presentation of the petition, the president talked with his callers on subjects of mutual interest.

The members of the committee express pleasure at the result of their visit and say that their interview was perfectly satisfactory to them and loubtless will be to the unions which they represent.

Negroes In Carving Mood

Police reserves were called out before the barge landed and six negroes were arrested. The ion way leading to the upper deck. trouble was caused by the refusal of the excursion committee to permit continuance of a game of craps that had started. Razors and knives were drawn. Two policemen on duty on the barge were badly beaten and the captain and his crew of two men defended themselves with axes.

bricklayers, engaged in construction work at the Washington army barracks. are on strike because a non-union negro bricklayer was given work there. Taylor, the negro, was appointed on certification from the civil service com mission. The strike raises again the old question of the government recognition of trades unionism.

Q. Y. C. Ladies' Day. The program of music laid out for the concert at the Yacht Club tomorrow, is an unusually pleasing one, comprising a well chosen selection of musical numbers. A glance will show that it includes standard selections which are bound to please those fortunate enough to hear them rendered. The popular numbers include exerpts from those of the dainty operas which have proven the greatest successes the past season. There is also included the new Japo Raphsody, "Karamo" by Vivian Grey, whose name in real life is Mabel McKinley. It will be remembered that Miss McKinley wrote the pleasing intermezzo "Anona" which had, and is still having such a run with lovers of music. By special request, Mr Handley, under whose direction the music will be, will render Mr. Nevin's "Rosary." Mr. Nevine it will be remembered was for some time, organist at Christ church

After the concert, there will be dancing until 10.30 and from a musical standpoint, the Ladies' Day should go off with vim.

STORY OF NORGE SURVIVOR

Passengers of Lost Steamer Rowed Six Days In an Open Boat.

Bringing harrowing stories of a six day cruise in an open boat, of hope that was long deferred for the sight of a sail that did not appear, of starvation that for four days of the awful voyage seemed almost to take definite shape and to watch the little party like a bird of evil omen, three men, survivors of the steamer Norge, were recently taken to Ellis island from the steam ship Cedric, says the New York Ameri-

The men are Carl Jahnsen, nineteen years old; August Thenberg, thirty-six, and Wilhelm Poulsen, thirty. Each of them bears in his face the marks of the ong struggle against death. The skin has been worn from their palms from ong hours at the oars. They describe the scene at the sinking of the steamer as one of wildest confusion. Through an interpreter Thenberg told the awful details of the loss of the Norge and his experience afterward.

"About 7 o'clock on the morning of June 28 we were off the coast of Scotland, near what I afterward learned was the Rockall reef. Most of us in the steerage were up awaiting the call WHITE ASH EGG. for breakfast. Suddenly there was a bump, followed by a loud, grating noise. "On the third day the boats became separated, and after the fourth day we had no food. By allowing only one drink three times a day to each member of our little party we managed to make the water last. During the fifth and sixth days we were so faint with hunger that we could scarcely hold an oar, but we had to keep at the rowing always. The time came when I could not see. Everything was blurred be fore me. I did not care whether I was found or not. Then a day came, the sixth one out, when our little boat was sighted by a fishing smack and we were picked up. Canteen Preserves Morals Manila, July 20.-Brigadier General Carter, commanding the department of Visayas, in his annual report on the establishment of army posts says: "This has been followed by the usual crop of saloons and disreputable people. With the well regulated post exchanges of former days weak men had a choice of evils and generally chose the lesser, the pure beer of the exchange. So long as the misguided Christian women of America insist on carrying the canteen into politics many young soldiers will continue to fall victims to the plague of service in India and the Orient generally."

Paris, July 20 .- Colonel George Wilson, a retired American army officer, fired several shots at Mlle. Charlotte Murmann, 21 years old. Wilson subsequently shot himself through the head and soon expired. The woman's wounds are slight. Wilson was 64 years old. An inquiry into the tragedy has been instituted.

SOME UNIQUE USES FOR PRETTY HANDKERCHIEFS.

They Make the Daintiest of Lingerie and Underwear-The Work Is Easy and Fascinating to a Clever and Inventive Woman.

Handkerchiefs were never so pretty or cheap as they are now, and those who are favored with an extra supply an convert them into dainty lingerie ind dress accessories, for which they make an excellent basis. The work is both inexpensive and easily done, which recommends it to the busy wo-

It is in the making of dainty underwear that handkerchiefs are ideal, Monogram corset covers, silk corset covers and petticoat flounces are among the things most commonly made in the underwear line. Since the de mand became so great in this direction handkerchiefs have been made on purpose for this work with hemstitched edges and a row of beading inside. A monogram handkerchief waist is made of three small hemstitched bordered handkerchiefs, using two for the fronts and one for the back, curving under the armhole to give the proper shape. Two inch clover leaf insertion was used for joining the handkerchiefs under the arm. These handkerchiefs are used on the straight instead of bias. Beading and lace were used for trimming, with a white dotted wash ribbon drawn through the former. The initial letters of the owner of this dainty corset cover are applied on the fronts of the waist. Shape is given to the back of the garment by five tiny tucks at the waist line. The bottom border of one handkerchief was cut edge in front, giving a box plait effect and thus closing the waist with a good lapping. Three men's white hemstitched silk handkerchiefs were used to make a dainty waist which has the name of the owner embroidered on the right hand side. These handkerchiefs are used on the bias, one point going to the center of the back, one to each side in front and one to the top in front, which is split to the bottom. Each bias hemstitched edge is joined by beading of heavy white crochet silk. A row of this beading finishes the side of each front. The beading is also edged with lace. One row of beading was used for the armhole. Two rows were used for finishing the top, and through this four strands of white wash satin ribbon were drawn. Two strands of ribbon were used to run through the beading at the waist line. The entire garment is feather stitched with fine white silk thread. The white feather stitching of silk is done all 63 Howard Avenue, around the edge of the garment, including the border of the underarm bead-

Even men's handkerchiefs are brought into requisition to fashion kimonos, combing jackets and aprons. The particular one illustrated is of white silk with a red border, and just six handkerchiefs were used in making it.

Nor are bandannas to be despised for this purpose, although, of course, they are much cheaper. Nevertheless they are effective. Four of the large ten cent ones, which come in either red or blue, are pretty for combing jackets. One handkerchief is used for the sleeve, being set in cornerwise and falling over the arm gracefully. Less fullness is allowed for the combing jackets than the kimonos.

Two men's handkerchiefs with a buff, blue and white border and golden brown lines were used for making the dainty little apron. Two box plaits, with one side plait on each side, fits it in at the waist line. One handkerchief was split across to the center and gathered on for the flounce.

One man's bordered handkerchief was required to make a dusting cap, which is a dainty affair in pink and white. One handkerchief of the right size will make two collar and cuff bands, or it will make one collar and cuff set Martin Macey, a carpenter, 52, was and a sachet pad. One handkerchief prostrated by the heat at Clinton, will also make a beautiful stock. Fine Mass., and died. He had consumed lawn is used for bands on the raw

French engineers have declared it is perfectly feasible to convert the desert of Sahara into a vast lake, thus opening to commerce great regions of the interior of Africa, which can now only ous caravan journeys. They say that a large portion of the desert lies below the level of the Atlantic and that by digging a capel to let in the level of the Atlantic and that by digging a canal to let in the waters of the ocean the great change could be effected easily and at a cost which would be small compared to the benefits which would accrue.

All Packing House Controversies Will Soon Be Adjusted

THE STRIKE IS SETTLED

Agreement Is Practically Upon Lines Submitted by Union Men Last Week--Good Offices of Allied Crafts Brought Peace

Chicago, July 21 .- The strike of packig house employes, which has denoralized the packing industry throughout the country, was settled here last night at a conference between representatives of the packers, the officials of the Meat Cutters' union and representatives of all the allied trades employed at the stockyards.

The whole controversy will be submitted to a board of arbitrators, both sides agreeing to abide by whatever decision this board may reach. Pending the decision of the arbitration board the men will be taken back to work as rapidly as possible by the packers, and t is agreed by the packers that all the old employes are to be reinstated within 45 days from the date work is resumed. If any of the former employes are still unemployed at the expiration of that time such persons are to have the privilege of submitting their cases to the arbitration board for settlement

The strikers will return to work as oon as they can be notified of the peaceable adjustment of the trouble and it is expected that by tomorrow morning everything will be in normal shape at all the plants in the different ities where employes were on strike. Half an hour after the decision had een reached to arbitrate, M. J. Donelly, the strike leader, had secured communication by long distance telephone with the leaders of the strikers in outside cities and had notified them that a satisfactory settlement had been reached and directed the strikers to return to work as soon as possible.

The settlement of the difficulty by arbitration was brought about by the allied crafts at the stockyards, who would have become involved in the controversy had it continued much

The representatives of these unions, which represent about 14,000 men, got together and sent a final appeal to the packers asking them for a three-sided conference between the packers, the strikers and themselves, in a final effort to get both sides of the controversy together again and arrange some sort of an agreement which would prevent the strike spreading to the affiliated unions. This appeal of the allied trades unions received a favorable response from the packers and last night's conference was the result.

The agreement entered into between the representatives of the packers and the strikers follows:

"Wages and working conditions of all employes now on strike to be submitted to arbitration, each party to this agreement having the privilege of bringing before the arbitrators for decision any question of wages or conditions, or any other grievances they may have, and both to abide by the decision of the arbitrators."

The agreement reached at last night's conference is practically the same as the proposition made last Saturday to the packers by Mr. Donnelly. The only difference is that in Saturday's communication Donnelly insisted that the strikers be all taken back to work within seven days. This the packers refused, although they agreed to accept every other demand.

When the men return to work it will be under exactly the same conditions as prevailed before the strike was declared, with the exception that the question of a wage scale will be descale under which the union worked last lee Cream Soda 5 cts. year expired May 28.

FINANCIAL AID ASSURED

Decision Endorsed by Textile Council, Although It Deemed Strike Inadvisable--Mill Men May Reconsider Intentions

Fall River, Mass., July 21.—Unless the cotton mill managers of this city, who operate what are known as union plants, abandon their announced intention of inaugurating on Monday next a new scale of wages which will reduce the earnings of their employes 12½ percent, 31,000 operatives will stop work, following the strike vote cast last night by the Textile Workers' union.

By a vote of 1510 to 396, the union men decided upon a strike, disregarding the recommendation submitted to them by the Textile council that a strike was inadvisable at this time.

The question of striking was voted upon at meetings last night by five separate unions of mill workers. Two of the unions, the Carders' union and the Spinners' union, voted against a strike, but they are bound by a two-thirds vote of the Textile Workers' union, of which they are members, and will walk out with the weavers, loomfixers and the slasher tenders.

Although the union vote showed a strength of but about 2000 operatives. their action will without doubt affect every other worker in the factories against which the strike is declared. Those employes not participating in the voting have heretofore followed in the footsteps of the union employes; but even if they desired to continue work, the absence of the expert union workers renders almost impossible the continuance of work in the mills.

It is the general belief in the city that the mill owners will reconsider their intention to make a 12½ percent reduction, thereby avoiding a strike. This belief is based on the fact that the cotton and cloth markets at the present time, in the opinion of the union leaders, are in such condition that a shutdown at this time would be ruinous to manufacturers.

Five district meetings were held by as many unions. Even before passing into the union halls, it was plain to be seen that a strike was favored by a large majority. The city was interested vote would be. The newspaper and telegraph offices were crowded during Is it a fact that the city of Quincy the early evening and many stopped sult. At that time resolutions were resolutions, it has been learned, stated that although the contemplated cut in wages was a serious matter it was the opinion of the council that a strike at this time was not considered advisable would be ignored, thereby assuring decided upon.

Situation In Rhode Island Providence, July 21.-It has been understood that local mill treasurers have been waiting to see how the Fall River duction before taking any official steps toward cutting wages in their mills The decision of the Fall River employes may have the effect of postponing any immediate cut in wages, but some of the mill men have been quoted as saying that they believe the reduction must inevitably result unless conditions materially improve.

No Reduction Contemplated Lawrence, Mass., July 21.-As no reduction has been made in the wages of the operatives in local cotton mills and as, so far as known, none is contemplated, the strike in the Fall River mills can have no immediate effect on conditions here. Sartorial Novelty Adopted by King Edward.

People returning from England bring Interesting accounts of King Edward's new frock coats, says the Philadelphia Record. They were of dark blue broadcloth as seen at the Ascot races and were, of course, immediately adopted by many of the more fashionable dressers. It looks as though the black gray and oxfords were to be put aside over there, but whether the new color will be adopted in the United States is a question.

It takes longer than it used to, according to some authorities on this side, for a new fashion set by Edward to be followed over here, and some tailors declare the blue frock coat will not be seen in America at all. It would, they say, be susceptible to so much expansion and development in the hands of exception of King Edward VII. the cheap imitation that it will be eschewed altogether. The present tendency in men's dress is not toward variety in color and shape, as was the case a few years ago, but to conventional and monotonous forms. The average man wants nowadays to be dressed as much like other men, as inconspicuously as possible, and leaves variety and new shapes to the women.

Russian Seizures Have Stirred Up Veritable Hornets' Nest

WAR OPENLY ADVOCATED

Feeling That Right of Search Has Been Abused--Conservative Diplomats and Newspapers Advise Physical Force

London, July 21 .- Many prominent with the government were interviewed last night relative to the seizure of British vessels by steamers of the Russian volunteer fleet in the Red sea. As a result of these inquiries there is shown to be a remarkably hostile feeling against Russia of a strength and a bitterness almost without precedent since the Crimean war.

Even the most conservative, who have been in the service of the government for many years and who openly deplore the haste with which they thought Great Britain had plunged into the Transvaal war, frankly declare for a policy of reprisal against what is regarded here as Russia's violation of treaties and her piratical attack on British commerce.

War with Russia is openly contemplated by the most staid papers of the empire as a contingency much to be regretted, but nevertheless inevitable for the honor of the nation unless speedy reparation be made for what is alleged to be a dire insult to the Brit-

The warlike tone of such papers as The Times, The Standard, The Morning Post and The Daily Telegraph, which in national crises hitherto almost invariably advised caution, has had its inevitable effect. There has been stirred up a storm of indignation amongst all classes in the United Kingdom, the strength of which the government itself can scarcely gauge.

Those who deplored the outbreak of the war between Japan and Russia and insisted publicly and privately that Great Britain, crippled financially after her South African experiences, must not at all costs be drawn into the far eastern struggle, are now among the most outspoken champions of a physicial force that shall prevent the repetition of the Mallacca incident in the Red sea. Those few officials at the foreign office who are in full possession of all the details of Great Britain's desire to arrive at an entente with Russia are in despair. They realize that the policy so carefully fostered by King Edward and Foreign Minister Lansdowne would any ministry advocating it.

Every nerve will be strained, however, by the foreign office to secure from of the St. Louis convention." Russia an explanation that will pacify the aggrieved feelings of the British public, and no step will be taken officially that will tend to prejudice subsequent diplomatic negotiations looking to the settlement of all important questions now outstanding between Russia and Great Britain.

However, there is expressed at the foreign office and elsewhere almost sition evinced by the action of her volunteer cruisers in the Red sea.

Lord Lansdowne's policy, since the first whisper of war between Japan and Russia reached Downing street, has been one of consistent neutrality. When the outbreak came it was a matter for no little congratulation, as frequently pointed out in these dispatches, that Great Britain had kept herself free from all entanglements, thanks chiefly to the hurrying on of the Anglo-French entente, on the strength of which the diplomats of both nations concerned believed they would be able to be detached spectators of the struggle in the far east.

The unlooked for developments in the Dardanelles and the Red sea embarrass Lord Lansdowne more than the circumstances themselves would indicate. The government, weakened by internal dissension, could scarcely stand for a day against the popular demand for reprisals against Russia, and this very danger is being assiduously fostered by leading government newspapers.

The news that there may be an amicable adjustment of the difficulties as the result of an interview between Emperor Nicholas and Count Lamsdorff is not yet known to the British press and public. If such an adjustment eventuates it will let Premier Balfour's government out of one of the most awkward and most serious crises it has had to face in its checkered career, but it will undoubtedly be several months before the British public can forget what has been described as the most humiliating incident in British history since the Dutch victoriously entered the Thames.

Hill and Belmont May Also Have Conferred With Judge Esopus, N. Y., July 21.-Sitting in a rustic summer house on the Rosemont grounds, Judge Parker and Mr. Davis, the vice presidential candidate, talked earnestly together from 2 o'clock until nearly 5:30 yesterday afternoon. No one but Parker and Davis know what they talked about. Their conversation was very earnest. The only thing made known for publication was that there will be no joint notification.

Just before Senator Davis had gone and Judge Parker had returned to Rosemont, the yacht Sapphire came to anchor in front of the house. A member of the crew came ashore and carried to Judge Parker an invitation to dine on board with John B. McDonald and persons connected and in close touch Judge O'Brien, who were said to be on the Sapphire. The invitation was acceted and Judge Parker remained aboard until late.

A report gained circulation to the effect that David B. Hill and August Belmont were on board and had taken this method of securing an uninterrupted conference with Judge Parker. This report was denied at Rosemont, and it was further said that the visit was without political significance.

Cleveland Pleased With Outlook New York, July 21 .- "Steady, Democrats, Steady" is the title of an article by Grover Cleveland, which will be printed in Collier's for July 23. In it Mr. Cleveland lauds the action of Judge Parker in sending his "gold telegram" to the St. Louis convention, and expresses his satisfaction with the platform and the outlook. He says that ne believes that "no man ever did so much for the cause and in so many directions, in so short a time and in so compact a form, as was done by our candidate when he sent his message to the St. Louis convention."

Quiet Political Gathering

Des Moines, July 21.-A delegate audience greeted Temporary Chairman Hepburn of the Republican state convention when he opened the meeting. Interest and enthusiasm were lacking and empty galleries characterized the convention. Presidential electors were selected from each of the 11 districts and resolutions were adopted along lines laid down by the national convention at Chicago.

Loyal to Parker--and Bryan Aberdeen, S. D., July 21.-The Democratic state convention nominated Louis N. Criss for governor. The mention of Judge Parker's name was greeted with tumultuous applause. The platform adopted commends the action of the St. Louis convention, renews allegiance to W. J. Bryan and declares for government ownership of railroads and public Judge George E. Taylor of Ottumwa, Ia., has been chosen to fill the place made vacant by the removal of Scott.

Against Parochial Schools

Chautauqua, N. Y., July 21.-The Protestant view of the parochial school question was presented by Dr. D. P. Bowne of Boston university, who advocated the complete exclusion of secular religious instruction from the schools. He pointed out the utter impracticability of dividing school funds among the numerous denominations and said that the scattering of children into various groups would surely perpetuate misunderstanding and prejudice.

Confession Exonerates Son Bath, N. B., July 21.-Thomas Cammack, in a signed statement, says that he shot William Doherty at Ruther Glen, but that he went there to kill his wife and a man who, he said, was paying her attention. His revolver, however missed fire when he shot at her. A lamp falling, he says, set fire to the house. Cammack says his son, who is under arrest, knew nothing of the matter.

Honors to Americans Trieste, July 21.-Count Goess, governor of Trieste, gave a dinner to the officers of the American battleship squadron. The governor proposed a toast to the health of President Roosevelt and Rear Admiral Barker proposed the health of Emperor Francis Joseph. Later Barker gave a banquet on board the Mayflower in honor of the governor and other high Austrian officials.

R. H. E. How Two Japanese Spies Met Their Fate.

FACED DEATH WITH HEROISM.

Officers of the General Staff Won Admiration and Pity of Their Executioners - Requested Their Dying Gift Be Used For the Poor Wounded Among Their Enemies.

I have received from a Russian sailor recently returned from Harbin some hitherto unpublished details of the execution of the two Japanese spies arrested by some Cossacks as they were about to blow up a bridge on the Manchurian railroad, writes M. Pravdine in Le Petit Temps. My informant is a young man who was severely wounded during the first bombardment of Port Arthur. He obtained permission to go to Italy to convalesce from his wound, but before his departure he made a short stay with some officers, relations of his, at Harbin, where he arrived just at the time when the Japanese were arrested, taken in the act, condemned and executed. "You were present at the execution of the two Japanese?" I asked him. "Alas! I saw them die." answered the young sailor. And as I looked at him with astonishment he hastened to add: "Do not take me for an anarchist. I am, on the contrary, an ardent patriot, and I eagerly longed for the war with Japan. I longed to see the Japanese exterminated, and I desired that we might be able to dictate terms of peace to them at Tokyo. But, like all my comrades, on seeing those two Japanese officers die by the bullets of our soldiers, courageously sacrificing their lives for their country, I could not but think their execution cruel."

"Were you present at the trial?" "I saw the two spies arrested; I was Batteries, Ewing and Schlei; Gar- present at the trial and at the execution. I can give you all the details of it, for the dreadful spectacle haunts me and I cannot forget it."

And in half an hour the wounded .718 .632 officer, pausing only when the pain of his right knee, wounded by the bursting of a Japanese shell and from which the splinters had not yet been removed, became too keen, narrated to me the 359 following events: "I can give my testimony that, when > the two prisoners were brought into the little room of the Chinese fansa, transformed into a courtroom by the Harbin council of war, both the judges and the public-the latter composed almost exclusively of officers-could not avoid manifesting openly their enthusiastic admiration for them. "And, indeed, those men were actuated by the most noble sentiments. They had resolved, as patriots, to make use of any means to assure victory to their side, and, as soldiers, under superior orders, they went to meet certain death. The trial took the ordinary course. The arguments on either side offered nothing of interest, the prisoners having loudly, and not without patriotic pride, assumed the responsi-Batteries, Page and Murphy; Cross accused. They gave their names and bility of the crime of which they were their titles without the slightest tremor of the voice:

"'Tchomo Jokoka, forty-four years of age, colonel of the general staff, graduated with honors from the military high school of Jeddo,' said the elder of the prisoners, a short, stout man, with a strong face. .524 "'Teisko Jokki, thirty-one years of age, captain, attached to the general staff.' said his companion, who was taller and more slender in figure than the other, with angular features and a very dark complexion, casting a slightly disdainful glance around the court-

"'Buddhist,' he added, after a moment's silence.

"'And you, colonel,' asked the prestdent of the council; 'you are of the same religion as your fellow prisoner? "'No, president, I am a Christian.' And observing the astonishment produced on every one by this declaration he hastened to add:

"'But I am a true Japanese, born of Japanese parents. Only in my youth I was captivated by the gentle teachings of Christ and I became a convert to Lutheranism.' "Colonel Jokoka spoke English, and it was a subject of King Edward, an employee of the Russo-Chinese bank; who translated to the court the declawas interrogated by means of a Chinese interpreter. The accused were shown the explosive materials which had been found upon them. They did tain Matthews of Sir Thomas Lipton's | not attempt to defend themselves or to deny in any particular the statements of the Cossacks who had arrested them. The interpreters translated to the prisoners the military prosecutor's speech, asking the punishment of death by hanging. "I watched the countenances of the two men, and I could not observe in them the slightest indication of fear. The counsel of the two Japanese asked that the sentence of death should be commuted to imprisonment with hard labor, the accused men having made a complete confession.

"The two officers remained unmoved by their counsel's warm appeal. They did not utter a word.

"Since the law allowed of a lighter punishment we all expected a commutation of the sentence. The deliberations lasted for half an hour and the court condemned the two officers to the maximum penalty-the scaffold. Colonel Jokoka and Captain Jokki heard their sentence with as detached an air as if it had cencerned indifferent per-

"The sentence was to be executed on at Millinocket, Me., by the upsetting of the following morning at 1 o'clock.

"WATER CHAUTAUQUA."

a Steamer.

LECTURES ON IMPORTANT SUBJECTS

Vacation School Organized by Chicago Teachers Combines Unique Water Pleasure Trips With Education-Brass Band an Enlivening

"Water Chautauqua" is the newest thing in summer school work, says a Chicago dispatch. It is a real novelty braced the captain. that had its inception in Chicago, its principal object being to give school children and adults of the poorer districts a pleasant outing as well as entertaining instruction.

All the sessions of the Chautauqua are held aboard a steamship, generally the new steel vessel City of South Haven, but always a craft that is seaworthy. Although the South Haven and her sister ships used in this service are built to carry 1,000 to 1,500 passengers, only 450 children are taken aboard for any of the trips.

Among these are trips to the "cribs" of the waterworks system, to the government lighthouses and life saving stations and the docks at the river's mouth, where freight worth millions of dollars is daily received. Sightseeing on that portion of the drainage canal within the city limits, with lec tures on the sanitary value of the $40,000,000 enterprise, is among other notable things included in the course.

Several visits have been made to the Carter Harrison crib, the newest intake on the lake. When the steamer reaches the side of this crib the juveaboard the crib, storming its rooms and halls. They are allowed to see all the sights of the place, and when their eyes are tired they hear a lecture explaining the operations of the waterworks and the importance of the sys tem to the health of Chicago's 2,000,000 people. They are assembled for these lectures in the crib's main room, which affords accommodation for several hundred auditors.

Other subjects taught are government improvement of harbors, dredging, piling, jettles, tunnels, break waters, life saving, fishing, the action of currents and ice, the sanitation and beautification of Chicago, first aid to the injured, resuscitation of persons nearly drowned, power applied to navigation, coal and steam as navigating powers, use of the compass and other nautical instruments, commercial geography of Chicago, what the river has done for the making of the city, the relation of Chicago to the country and the world, and practically every object which arouses the curiosity of the students on each voyage.

The brass band of the Graham school is an enlivening feature of this vacation school. Members of this band lead patriotic songs as well as play popular music while the boat is in the ictures copied from Photographs. Good inner harbor. It is the plan that every person enrolled in the school shall learn several national songs, both words and music, during the two weeks' term.

The programme of the water Chautrips being made in rough water. It "The want of a bathtub was felt was the original plan to have a steamer chartered for every day, Sundays excepted, but it was found impossible to desire was to see a priest before going get the kind of steamer required, so the trips have been taken three or four times a week.

The steamer starts from the Rush street bridge at 9 o'clock in the forenoon. It passes up the river, moving slowly to give an adequate view of both banks, with their docks, warehouses, railway terminals, bridges and other objects of interest. After navigating both branches of the Chicago river the steamer returns to dock, makes a brief stop to take on belated Chautauquans and then puts out into harbor and lake.

When the lake is smooth and the weather man says there is no wind in sight or storm hovering, the steamer makes a trip of two to three hours to some point within ten or fifteen miles of Chicago, returning again to her dock at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Then another trip is made on the lake or in the outer harbor.

Little or no instruction, and only the briefest in any event, is given during the river trips, as there are so many things worthy of observation on the river front that the time is fully taken up. During the outward trips the boat is brought to a stop in the basin, just far enough from shore to be in the zone of coolness, and there the students assemble in the lecture hall and receive their lessons.

In addition to Principals Watt and Marshall and Lieutenant Buxton, about twenty other teachers are engaged in the instruction work of the water Chautauqua. Dr. W. H. Bohart of the Englewood Union hospital gives lectures "On the First Aid to the Injured," illustrating with a boy for his subject. He is also the lecturer on the sanitation of cities and the prevention of consumption. Miss Laura F. Higgins has charge of the art work. George B. Masslich of the John Marshall High school is giving a series of interesting experiments in laboratory work of chemistry and physics.

Novel Duel.

Paris has devised a new mode of dueling for young women whose feelings have been ruffled. Two such recently decided that their honor demanded a duel. Having no weapons conveniently at hand, ingenuity came to the rescue. Each took off a stocking and filled it with sand. At last accounts the vanquished was reported in a hospital.

All that was waited for was a dispatch from General Kuropatkin confirming it. The telegram arrived promptly. The generalissimo approved the condemnation, but spared the Japanese officers the humiliation of the scaffold and granted them the grace of being shot, according them a soldier's death.

"I was present when the commandant read to the prisoners General Kuropatkin's order. 'It is well,' responded Colonel Jokoka. 'I am ready.' The captain said nothing. His expression, that became every moment more disdainful, showed his indifference to the manner of punishment reserved for him. Colonel Jokoka asked permission to write to his family, then he emwhat you have said to me about Christianity. You are always vaunting its superiority. Well, I think you are not in accord with Christ, while I have nothing to repreach myself with." "'Perhaps you are right, captain. And I, I have a favor to ask of you.

"'I have reflected a good deal on

Give me your authorization to perform the first truly Christian act which it has been given me to perform during my life. You know I have a number of Chinese bank notes, to the value in all of about a thousand Russian rubles. Well, I desire to send this money to the commandant, to be given to the Russian Red Cross for the poor wounded among our enemies. Do you consent to this gift?' Jokki reflected for an instant.

"'I have always had a great affection for you, colonel, and if it will give you nile Chautauquans disembark and go pleasure I am quite willing that you should give this money to our enemies. "When the commandant came for the prisoners Colonel Jokoka gave him a bundle of white bank notes with red signs, saying:

> 'There are here about a thousand rubles, and we beg you to give them to the Russian Red Cross.'

> "'But would it not be better for me to send this money to your families?' "'Oh, no!" cried both the condemned men together. 'The mikado will not forget our wives and children.' "'Do not refuse us this satisfaction, said Jokoka. 'Distribute this mone among the Russian wounded.' "The commandant again urged the officers to let all they should leave behind them be sent to Japan. Jokki apmandant yielded and asked the two monious toilets.

which he could be of service to them. "'I should like to have a bath, if it were possible,' said the Buddhist. 'Af ter that we shall be at your orders.'

The chaplain read in Slav, and Jokoka followed the text in his Japanese Bible, which they had left him in prison. When they came to the words 'For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? And if ye salute your brethren only, what do ye more than others?' he closed the book, folded his hands and cast down his eyes for a moment, while his lips moved.

"'Jokki,' he said, 'you are right; you will die more tranquilly than I, for have never felt more keenly than nov how little in accordance my life has been with the teachings of Jesus.'

"The vehicle which was to convey the two men to the place of execution was already waiting. The two Jap anese officers arrived at the place of ex ecution, impassive as ever. Still, it could be seen that the colonel was prey to painful reflection. Both of them lighted cigarettes and asked that they should not be bound to the stakes. The commandant took two handker chiefs from his pocket and handed them to the Japanese officers. The colonel bound his eyes himself. Jokki disdainfully refused to do so, saying he desired to see how they maneuvered. A dozen soldiers were posted in front of the colonel, a dozen others in front of the captain. "'If you have pity for these two unhappy men,' said the commandant to the platoon detailed for the execution, 'aim straight at the heart-death will then be instantaneous.'

the left; Jokki, without having winked an eyelash, fell forward. Both had been killed instantly. Our good soldiers had had pity for them." My companion punctuated these last words with a groan. He had involuntarily moved his wounded knee. "Confounded Japanese!" he cried. "In death of Jokoka and Jokki." And seeing this victim of Japanese bullets so strongly moved by the death of the two spies of the enemy, I recalled the words of the Russian painter combatants was the most serious obstacle to the war. And, indeed, why kill one another when either side esteems the other?

VARYING THE MENU.

Delicious Soups and Salads For the

Midsummer Days. As the summer advances it is desirable to make such changes in the table as are demanded by the appetite. The heavy dinners and desserts that were greatly enjoyed during the cold weather are now entirely out of place and should be followed by food that is less heating, yet not less nourishing.

Soups of cream instead of meat, lighter desserts, less red meats and more fish are among the changes called for by Dame Nature herself. Bisques of clam, of lobster, of peas, asparagus or tomatoes are all delicious and quite as nourishing as the heavy soups made from beef and other meats. Fish are now plentiful and are much Fish are now plentiful and are much less heating than meats, although it is not advisable for the meat diet to be ROBERT C. Many housekeepers complain of the trouble they have in mixing the French dressing. Put the ingredients (one tablespoonful of vinegar and three tablespoonful of vinegar and three of three. Address, giving references, tablespoonfuls of oil, a saltspoonful Ledger Office. Quincy, July 21 21-21; of salt and a quarter that amount of mustard) into a bottle. Cork tightly, then shake the bottle vigorously for a few minutes and you will have a perfect emulsion. This is by far the easiest way to mix a French dressing. The mayonnaise dressing is rather more difficult to mix. At least an hour before you mix the dressing put into the ice chest the small bowl in which you wish to mix it, a silver fork, an egg and the bottle of oil. If everything is not first made icy cold the dressing may curdle. Take the yolk of one egg and beat it only until it is well broken, then add, drop by drop, the oil, stirring rapidly all the time. When the dressing thickens, the oil may be added more rapidly, but it is necessary to use care. When thick enough add some lemon juice or vinegar until the dressing is thin enough. It should be made thick enough to mask the salad. -Table Talk.

A preparation said to be excellent as a tonic and restorer for dark hair which is turning gray is as follows: Dried sage leaves, two ounces; common green tea, two ounces; bay rum, four ounces; fine salt, one-half ounce.

Put the sage leaves and tea in a covered iron pot. Add three quarts of boiling water and let it simmer until reduced one-third. Remove from the fire and let it remain in the pot for twenty-four hours. Then strain and add bay rum and salt. Shake until salt is dissolved, then bottle for use.

Guests Had Narrow Escape

Boston, July 22.-Over two score guests and employes of the Columbus hotel owe their lives to the promptness and heroism of Patrolmen French and O'Donnell, who discovered flames in the adjoining building, occupied by Young's potato chip factory, shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. Quickly arousing the inmates and going through the entire building in their search for those who might otherwise have otherwise lost their lives. Their own escape was nearly cut off when a big stairway crashed when its supports burned away. They jumped just in time. The flames practically gutted the chip factory and also made quick work of the upper portion of the hotel. The loss altogether will exceed $40,000.

Great Land Deal In Vermont

Brattleboro, Vt., July 22.-Papers have been drawn for the transfer to a New York syndicate of 123,000 acres of The Vice Presidency spruce lands in the southern part of the state, the amount of money involved in the transaction being, it is stated, about $1,500,000. Options have been given the syndicate by half a dozen companies and individuals owning tracts of land in 10 towns and the purchase also includes the Hoosac Tunnel and Wilmington narrow guage railroad. The spruce will be used both for pulp and for lumber.

No Known Reason For Suicide New London, Conn., July 22.-Clarence Q. Eldredge of Old Mystic, aged 22, has disappeared, and letters he left indicate that he contemplated suicide. Eldredge was employed as bookkeeper and confidential clerk in a local store. His accounts were correct. He left directions asking that his body, if found, be buried at sea, but gave no reason for his intended suicide.

Rats and Matches Caused Big Fire Portland, Me., July 22.-The brick buildings of the Twitchell-Champlin company, a wholesale grocery concern, were gutted by fire last night. The loss is about $150,000, with insurance for double that amount. The fire is attributed to rats and matches.

MILLOWNERS DENOUNCED

Central Labor Union Pledges Moral and Financial Support-Strike Said to Be Hopeless but Unavoidable

Fall River, Mass., July 22.-The prevailing feeling among the cotton mill operatives, who on Wednesday night voted to strike on Monday next rather than submit to a 12½ percent reduction time since the announcement by the mill owners. The meeting of the latter yesterday afternoon and their attitude are taken and accepted as a challenge by the operatives, and what little hope they may have had that the intention to cut wages might be reconsidered has now disappeared, and in its place there remains a determination on all sides to fight the matter to the bitter end.

Operatives make the statement that with a 12½ percent reduction the wages of many employes would be as low as $4.80 for a week's work. How the merchants view the matter can be judged from the notices posted in the grocery stores and butcher shops announcing that, beginning Monday, July 25, business will be conducted on a strictly cash basis, in place of the credit system now in vogue.

The Central Labor union last night adopted scathing resolutions condemning the cotton manufacturers, endorsing the action of the operatives and domestic manufactures from pledging them its fullest financial and moral support. A committee of 28 members, consisting of one from each union outside the textile workers, was appointed to work with the textile operatives and make appeals for aid to all affiliated unions throughout the United States.

> This places another strong fund at the disposal of the striking operatives, and within the next 24 hours the machinery of the United Textile Workers of America will be set in motion and assistance will begin to arrive from all over the country.

The executive committee of the Textile council will, within the next 24 hours, issue the formal strike order. The vote Wednesday night was taken with the understanding that should three out of the five unions declare for a strike all five would go out. The formal strike order will be in accordance with this agreement and by it the carders and spinners are bound to quit work, rethe column. It is not probable that against a strike.

STRIKERS RESUME WORK

Packing Houses Cannot Re-employ All Who Went Out

Chicago, July 22 .- All the big meat packing establishments of the country, where nearly 50,000 workmen went out on strike to enforce certain demands of the union, were thrown open to the strikers at 7 o'clock this morning and as many of the former employes as can be taken care of were put to work. The majority of the butchers were reinstated today, but it will be several days before all of the strikers will be given employment, as there is not enough live stock at some of the yards to require a full force of workmen. It is believed that by Saturday night nearly all of the strikers will have been taken care of.

In Chicago the non-union men engaged by the packers during the progress of the strike and who caused the hitch in the negotiations for peace because the packers insisted on retaining all who wished to remain at work in in wages, is more bitter than at any preference to reinstating all of the old men, seem likely to settle the question themselves. When the news reached these men that the old men were to return to work more than 500 of them quit work. It is not known how many more of the non-union men are still at work. The agreement with the union does not call for their discharge.

A Curious Tribe, Low Down In the Scale of Humanity.

A hunter of big game in Africa gives a description of a tribe of natives. whom he found there, the Watwa. They smear their bodies with mud to protect them from mosquitoes and are extremely dirty and evil smelling in consequence. They are very low down in the scale of humanity and have a bad reputation among tribes living on the high ground, which reputation they upheld during our visit. We engaged several Watwa natives as carriers, but they only came to see what they could steal. One day I shot a reed buck in sight of the camp and left two Watwa to carry it in while I went after a hartbeest, but I never saw either men or buck again. It was no use following them into the swamps, as they knew every inch of the ground and water. They had small canoes hidden everywhere, and immediately they crossed a stream they sunk the canoe again where they set poisoned stakes in the tracks lead- lunch was served. ing to their haunts."

DAME JULIANA BERNER.

She Was a Fifteenth Century Author ity on Fly Fishing.

The first printed English book on angling was Dame Juliana Berner's "Book of St. Albans," which appeared about 1450, and contained a chapter entitled "A Treatyse on Fyshynnge With an Angle."

Fly fishing must have been practiced much earlier than this, as nothing but a gradual evolution could account for the complete list of flies for the fishing months of the year which it gives. To Dame Berner belongs the honor of first telling that the salmon could be caught with the fly. She says: "Also ye may take hym, but it is seldom seen with a dubbe at such times as when he lepith in lyke fourme and manere as ye do a trought or a grayling." Her knowledge seems more complete than could have been that of the original inventor, so that the time when fly fishing originated in British waters must remain uncertain.

Dame Berner's flies will kill trout today, and her twelve were the foundation of those of which Izaak Walton said quaintly in 1653: "Thus have you a jury of flies, likely to betray and condemn all the trouts in the

LOGGERHEADS.

This Name Is Given to Some Turtles and Other Animals.

The giant turtles which are found along the Atlantic coast and frequently in southern waters in great numbers are known as loggerheads. They commonly attain a weight of 1,600 pounds, are rapid swimmers and are often seen far from land, floating asleep upon the Carnivorous by nature these huge tortoises feed on crabs and fish, especially on a large species of conch, which they break open with their massive jaws. The flesh of this terrapin is leathery and oily, with a strong smell of musk. Young specimens are more palatable and are often on sale in the markets.

A duck, as large as our goose, which is native of the shores of Tierra del Fuego and the Falkland isles is also called loggerhead, from its seeming stupidity and helplessness.

In the West Indies this name is also given to two or three sorts of fly catchers.

A Peculiar Ornament. Berlin has probably one of the most peculiar ornaments for a reading room that has ever been seen in a similar position in a civilized country. This is a gravestone which stands, large and massive, in one corner of a small room. It is not only a gravestone, but is in its legitimate position at the head of a grave. The history of its location in the house is interesting. It was not put up in the house, but the house was built around the stone. Its original position was in the burial grounds in the churchyard at St. Hedwig's.

He walked over the pennines without a penny in his pockt and, arriving half dead at Genoa, oncealed himself on one of the ships ound for Sicily. When at his destinaion he emerged and gained the nickname of the "boy of the regiment." From that time for some months he fought until the day for rest came. He was shot in the head and carried to the hospital in a dangerous condition. Everything possible was done for him, but it was evident that he was troubled, and at last it came out that he could not die happy because he had never seen his hero. "I have fought everywhere and sought always," he exclaimed, "but I have never succeeded in seeing him. How can I die never having caught a glimpse of him?"

Another preoccupation was that he feared he might be buried without a coffin. Morning, noon and night his cty was, "Let me have a coffin!" The very day he died, by a fortunate chance, Garibaldi arrived at the hospital. Having heard Ferretti's story, he stooped and spoke to him. The sick boy's expressive face lighted up and he exclaimed: "Now I can die happy. Oh, general, let me have a coffin!"

ON THE DIAMOND MALACCA SEIZURE

Russia Will Release Vessel If Her Action Was Wrongful

WANTS PLAIN MANIFESTO

Brother-In-Law of Czar Responsible For Entanglement With England -- Speculation Over Status of Red Sea Cruisers

St. Petersburg, July 22.—The scare over the seizure of the British steamer Malacca has given way to a calmer and more rational view. The feeling in high official circles is that the case will be speedily and satisfactorily adjusted. The main difficulty is the excited state but the Russian government, under the direct inspiration of the czar, who is personally anxious to avoid grounds for a quarrel, is apparently ready to meet Great Britain in the most friendly

While not admitting that the Russian captain seized the Malacca without some warrant, Russia will accept without question Great Britain's assurance that the war munitions on board the vessel were government stores bound for the naval station at Hong Kong and order the immediate release of the ship. At the same time she will maintain her right to stop vessels believed to have contraband of war on board and detain them if the manifests are not plain, as required by interna-

Whether Russia will agree to discuss the war status of the Red sea cruisers is not plain, but if Great Britain insists seriously she may offer to refer this and other collateral questions to The Hague tribunal.

It is stated that the foreign office was not consulted regarding the international questions involved when the decision to send out the vessels of the volunteer fleet and convert them into warships was reached, but this cannot Brooklyn ..........30 be confirmed. The czar's brother-inlaw, Grand Duke Alexander, who is a strong reactionary and who is said to have planned the cruise, seems to be chiefly responsible for the present entanglement.

Nothing is ascertainable here regarding the reported pour-parlers of the powers on the general subject of neutral commerce, but that these are passing is not considered likely.

No News of Release

London, July 22.-Just before the adjournment of the house of commons early this morning Premier Balfour stated that the government had received no confirmation of the reported release of the Malacca.

A statement was made by a news agency prior to Balfour's announcement that the government had received satisfactory assurance from the Rus sian government regarding the intended release of the vessel.

The authoritative assurances that Haverhill .........46 20 from St. Petersburg to the United States, do not appear in the British papers. Special dispatches to a somewhat similar effect from St. Petersburg do not allay the alarmist views of the New Bedford ......31 leading organs, which construe Premier Balfour's post-midnight announcement that the government had received no confirmation of the reported release of the Malacca to mean that the in-Another cause for great apprehension is the broader question of Russia's fleet through the Dardanelles.

THROUGH RUSSIAN FLANK Japanese Reported to Be on the March to Mukden

St. Petersburg, July 22.—The most sensational piece of news from the front is a dispatch from Liao Yang, dated July 20, reporting a persistent rumor that the Japanese have broken through the Russian left wing between the respective positions of General Keller and General Rennenkampff and are marching upon Mukden.

London, July 22 .- According to a special dispatch from Moscow, The Russky Listok of that city confirms the report from Liao Yang that the Japanese have broken through the Russian left flank and are marching on Mukden.

A Russian correspondent of The Daily Telegraph at Mukden, under date of July 19, says: "A fierce fight has been raging during the past two days and it still continues. The Japanese, movements to the east are the real cause of our retirement. Heavy losses have been sustained. The Japanese artillery has again shown its superiority."

Bryan Tells How He Would farmer now. My farm only costs me Reform Democratic Party

IS FAITHFUL TO SILVER

Admits, However, That Necessity For Bimetalism Is Not Very Apparent -- Keynote is Destruction of Private Monopoly

Lincoln, Neb., July 22.-W. J. Bryan's plan for the reformation of the Democracy is given publicity. In it Mr. Bryan favors radical changes, but advocates the election of Judge Parker for president as a good beginning. He declares for state ownership of railroads, government control of telegraphs and .200 abolishment of private monopoly, and favors the income tax and election of federal judges by the people. Mr.

Bryan says in part: "My selection as standard-bearer of the Democratic party in 1896 and again in 1900 made me the nominal leader of that party, and as such I did not feel at liberty to engraft new doctrines upon the party creed. I contented myself with the defense of those principles and policies which were embodied in the platform.

"Now that the leadership devolves upon another and I bear only the responsibility for my own opinions, my utterances and my conduct, I am free to undertake the work of organizing the radical and progressive element in the Democratic party.

"The money question is for the present in abeyance. 'ine production has lessened the strain upon the dollar and while bimetalism is as sound in theory as it ever was the necessity for it is not so apparent.

"But while the people cannot be brought at this time to consider the various phases of the money question, they can be brought to consider certain other questions with which the Democratic party must deal. Recent events have convinced me that the time is now ripe for the presentation of the question of government ownership of railroads. Consolidation after consolida-4 tion has taken place until a few men Batteries, Young and Diggins; now control the railroad traffic of the country and defy both the legislative and executive power of the nation. I invite the Democrats, therefore, to con-1 sider a plan for the government owner-2 ship and operation of the railroads.

"It's all right to talk about the poetry of farm life," he said, "but if farm life is poetry I want the prosiest sort of prose in mine. Is there any poetry in greasing harness? Do you find any rhyme and rhythm in milking a double jointed, back action cow twice a day? Well, I guess not."

And if you are through plowing for awhile and haven't anything better to do you fix the wheelbarrow for recreation, or you can see that the pen is made hog proof, or that the water trough doesn't leak too much. Then if everything else fails and it's too rainy to do anything else you can get out a secondhand kit and fix the crupper on the harness or mail strips of boiler plate on the feed box so that crib eater of a plug won't have too many splinters in him when he dies. Oh, you can bet I'm too much of a farmer to look at the poetic side of it. I'm a realist farmer; that's what I am."-Dallas

TOBACCO SALARIES.

A Custom of the American Colonies Before the Revolution.

Before the Revolution, ministers of the Anglican church in those American colonies where that church was established by law were remunerated "in kind" instead of in money. Maryland gave an incumbent forty pounds of tobacco a year for every tithe payer in the parish, whether churchman or dissenter, white or colored. These terms were handsome enough to secure the pick of the clerical market. In Virginia the stipends represented a fixed and unvarying quantity, by weight, of the manufactured leaf. These stipends were rather beggarly in quantity. In a bad year even the "sweet scented parishes," where the minister's salary was calculated on a high priced and exceptionally fragrant tobacco, yielded only about $500 a year. The parishioners sometimes refused to induct a clergyman unless he would consent to take one salary for serving two parishes. In 1758, when the price of tobacco had greatly risen, the house of burgesses passed a law flxing the cash equivalent of debts payable in tobacco at onethird their true value, thus wiping out two-thirds of the incomes of ministers. Patrick Henry made his first fame in defending this law when a test case was brought in behalf of the injured

The fine imposed by the district court Thursday on the young men who it is alleged took part in the disturbances the night before the Fourth will be a lesson that will last them some time, and will doubtless serve as a check upon those who would conspire "to do" the officer. The hearing on the cases of Charles Troup, Edwin Brault, A. Pickard, John H. Collins, Sidney Patterson, Thomas Turner and Fred Malcolm was not finished until afternoon. There were two complaints against each, disturbing the peace and being concerned in building a bonfire.

John W. McAnarney appeared for the government but the defendants were unrepresented, the court found all the defendants guilty. Brault, Collins, and Turner were fined $25 each, $15 on the disturbing the peace cases and $10 for being concerned in building a bon fire. Malcolm was fined $10.

Justification of Russia's Seizure of the Steamer Malacca

Cargo Will Be Examined and Only Contraband Held, If Any leased In Any Event

St. Petersburg, July 23.-The steamer Malacca is at Suda bay, Island of reached between Great Britain and Russia, she will be perfunctorily inspected jointly by the consuls of the two countries and released, together with her cargo, unless palpable contraband of war intended for the Japanese shall be found, in which case only the contraband will be held. British government stores on board the vessel will not be examined.

BRITISH STEAMER MALACCA. From the very first the authorities $6.75 here were convinced that the captain of the Russian volunteer fleet steamer St. Petersburg must have had good reason for seizing the Malacca as a prize, and his report stating that the skipper of the Malacca declined to pro duce the ship's manifest seems to have justified their confidence.

There is reason to believe that had the fact been known in advance that the Malacca's skipper took upon himself the responsibility of questioning the war status of the St. Petersburg and he carried a considerable amount of 7.25 had defied the Russian war flag contrary to international law, which evidently came as a complete surprise to 7.25 the British government, that nation to believe that the old man has met might not have acted as it did. In foul play. spite of this development, however, Russia adopted a most conciliatory attitude. The czar himself was desirous of avoiding the slightest pretext for a quarrel and personally gave orders to settle the matter promptly. According to a very high authority, there will be no repetition of the Red sea incidents. How the collateral questions growing out of these incidents will be regulated has not yet been disclosed here. There is no talk of an international conference at this time to dis-6.75 cuss neutral commerce, but diplomats here believe that such a conference to discuss this, as well as new questions raised by the war, like the use of wireless telegraphy, is advisable when the

The Feeling In London

London, July 23.—The morning ers generally express satisfaction that the Malacca incident has been settled in accordance with the demands of Great Britain, though there is an inclination to await the settlement of the broader question of the passage through the Dardanelles of the volunteer fleet steamers before believing that all danger has been averted.

Critics point out that Russia's justification of the seizure of the Malacca is complete if, as reported by the commander of the St. Petersburg, the captain of the Malacca refused to produce his manifest. Such position could only be interpreted as an arrogant refusal to recognize Russia's rights under international law, which is just ground for seizure, or as an effort to conceal the nature of the cargo, which, also, is sufficient cause for taking the ship.

The Daily Telegraph says that its alarmist editorial of July 22 was written with "full knowledge that the Russian government would act as it as done, and the object in so writing was to point out that the Malacca incident was only a factor in the great problem which has not yet been settled."

The paper confirms the statement that the czar was urged by the French government to settle the case of the Malacca, which settlement it attributes to French action, adding: "It is rumored in diplomatic circles that Germany wishes to co-operate with Great Britain in the settlement of the the U. S. coast artillery at Fort Terry, sary. main features of the disputes."

It urgently points out to the government that popular opinion in Great Britain would not admit such partnership, bought of a barber.

The Occupation of Kiao Tung Tokio, July 23.-General Kuroki, after a severe fight, occupied Kiao Tung on July 19. The place had been fortified by the Russians, who defended it stoutly. In the fighting General Kuroki's troops drove the Russians from their strongly fortified position on the Chi river, northwest of Motien pass and east of An Ping. The Japanese lost 424 men in killed and wounded. The Russian losses are estimated at 1000.

SUMMER CHURCH GARB.

Various Notions of Ministers as to Dress of Their Flocks.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel McGuirk, pastor of the First Methodist church at Cedar Falls, Ia., and one of the leading lecturers of the state, created a sensation the other Sunday evening by appearing in his pulpit in his shirt sleeves, says a Des Moines dispatch. The hot night had caused him to lay aside his ministerial garb, and he mounted the rostrum wiping the perspiration from his Turning to his congregation he politely advised the male members of his church to doff their coats that they might enjoy comfort in church.

Hatless women will no longer be permitted to enter Trinity Episcopal church at Asbury Park, N. J., since the Rev. A. L. Langley, its clergyman, recently announced that the presence of "informally" dressed persons is not desired. He served notice that hereafter women who appear at the church door without some sort of proper head covering will be refused admittance.

It is probable that the clerical prohi bition will be the means of keeping away feminine members of the congre gation, but Dr. Langley is firm in his stand, and if necessary he will have a placard placed in the church stating that women must wear the proper headgear to gain entrance.

The Rev. I. H. Albright, pastor of the Salem United Brethren in Christ church at Lebanon, Pa., who recently extended an invitation to shirt waist men to attend Sunday church service preached the other day in his shirt sleeves. The Rev. Mr. Albright believes it is no sin to propound the gospel while coatless, and members of his congregation indorse him in his plan of enjoying solid comfort while attending service. Men now come to church coat less and women without hats. Members of the mixed choir also have adopted dress reform.

HATER OF SPARROWS.

Indiana Apiarist's Warfare on the British Bird.

Evan E. Edwards, a prosperous farmer and apiarist, living in the sub urbs of Alexandria, Ind., is waging warfare against the English sparrow and he never loses an opportunity to kill the birds, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. He makes it a point to talk death to the sparrow at every agri cultural meeting.

His hatred of the sparrow is deep seated, and he is seeking a deputyship as game warden that he may protect other birds and exterminate the sparrows. "Every red headed woodpecker is worth $100 to the farmer with whom it summers," says Mr. Edwards "Robins are the farmer's friends, and with the bluebirds are particular sufferers from the English pest.

"I had a family of bluebirds sum mer with me for years, but now there is a pestiferous sparrow, living 100 yards away, which, every day after the bluebirds come back this year led a host of sparrows and assaulted the former. After driving out the male these foreigners dispossessed the fe male, and I reached the scene only to find the disconsolate bluebirds grieving over a nest of picked eggs, which the sparrows had destroyed. The sparrows are the only birds in the world which will not tolerate another feathered companion, even in a wide area. They are killing off and driving away the common birds, and fruits, vegetables, flowers-everything, in fact, in the in sect burdened limbs bears witness to the intolerance of the sparrow.

"Tell everybody to kill every sparrov he can, and mayhap we can get a bounty on their heads after awhile Certainly in Madison county it would be money well spent."

The Mikado's Fad.

The mikado of Japan has, or, rather, had, just one fad, says the New York Tribune. He longed to create by means of a more carnivorous diet a taller race of soldiers. Small boys in government schools were fed for six or seven years in the European way. They never became reconciled to it, and it disagreed with them. Nor did they grow any taller than vegetarian children. The doctors charged to look after the experimental diet sent in their report last year. They could think of no better way for securing tall soldiers than by encouraging Japanese to marry Euro

Liberty Can Come Only Through Its Misuse

MAURICE MAETERLINCK, Dramatist and Sociologist

YERY indication seems to point to the fact that the ultimate truths which hitherto have been regarded AS INCAPABLE OF SOLUTION IN REALITY are about to be solved. This is true in the moral as well as in the scientific sphere, and there is no reason why politics, which is only an amplification of one branch of the moral, should not also be included within the scope of

For centuries man has, so to say, ONLY HALF LIVED. A thousand prejudices aside from the religious prejudices have hidden the glorious summit of his own reason and feelings from his view. Today, after most of these artificial peaks which have stood between him and his horizon have been removed, he begins to realize his position in the economy of nature and the object for which he was placed there. He is beginning to understand that whatever cannot stand the test of reason is nothing but idle fancy. He knows that the distance that cannot be traversed today must be covered tomorrow, and that TO ATTEMPT CROSSCUTS IS ONLY TO WASTE PRECIOUS TIME AND GAIN DECEPTIVE

We naturally and quite instinctively press on toward the ultimate goal of our being. When we have reached the utmost bounds of human possibility then only will we feel that we are really living, and then only will we know how to order our lives to our own satisfaction. From this progressive instinct, which is constantly becoming clearer, there springs an ever increasing desire not to be content with a partial solution or to give up the attempt when only half the height has been scaled, but to press onward TO REACH THE SUMMIT as soon as possible.

This, however, does not imply that the struggle after the ultimate is a mere seeking after absolute knowledge. There are always in everything two extremes between which we must choose. Likewise in the moral we must distinguish between absolute altruism on the one hand and absolute egoism on the other, and in politics between the best government imaginable—a government which guides and protects its subjects in every possible way—and anarchy. Both of these questions are still unsolved, but we may with reason assume that ALTRUISM STANDS NEARER THE GOAL OF OUR RACE THAN ABSOLUTE EGOISM.

EXPERIENCE TELLS US THAT WE STAND IN LESS DANGER OF DECEIVING OURSELVES WHEN WE LOOK FORWARD INSTEAD OF BACKWARD, WHEN WE LOOK HIGH INSTEAD OF LOW. EVERY PROGRESSIVE MOVEMENT SO FAR HAS BEEN ANNOUNCED AND CHAMPIONED BY MEN WHO WERE ACCUSED IN THE BEGINNING OF LOOKING TOO HIGH. THEREFORE WHEN WE ARE IN DOUBT AS TO THE WISEST COURSE IT IS ALWAYS SAFEST TO CAST OUR LOT WITH THE MOST BROAD MINDED MEN.

We might ask in this connection whether it would be wise to grant all men absolute liberty, NOTWITHSTANDING THEIR | man being, but the human being was UNFITNESS. The answer is "Yes." Moreover, it is the duty of all those whose thoughts are in advance of those of the masses to break down the barriers which hinder complete liberty-this, too, of the wagon. Under them was a in spite of the fact that they may know that the masses will not be worthy of this liberty for some time after it has been granted them. THE BLESSING OF LIBERTY CAN ONLY BE ATTAINED THROUGH A LONG PERIOD OF PAINFUL EXPERIENCE IN ITS MISUSE. It is only by striving for a high and distant ideal that we can hope in the course of time to attain to anything worthy of our efforts. What is true of liberty also is true of other human

Poverty Is an Advantage To the American Boy

By Justice BROWN of the United States Supreme Court

. POVERTY IS OFTEN SPOKEN OF AS AN OBSTACLE, BUT THE GREATEST MEN IN AMERICAN LIFE ARE THOSE WHO HAVE FOUGHT THEIR WAY FROM THE HUMBLEST SURROUNDINGS.

Poverty, so far from being a drawback, offers the strongest possible incentive to that ambition which surmounts any obstacle. Upon the other hand, there is no obstacle so difficult to overcome as THE PROSPECT OF INHERITED WEALTH. It paralyzes ambition at the very moment when it is most necessary. Boys who are the sons of millionaires have my profoundest sympathy. If I were to estimate the respective chances of eminence between a boy who began his studies by the light of a kitchen fire and another who was educated by a private tutor, I should unhesitatingly cast my vote IN FAVOR OF THE FORMER. It was from this class that came Webster, Clay and Lincoln, and, although the sons of the rich have furnished a few of the finest examples of scholarship and statesmanship in this country, by far the larger number were born amid humble surroundings, with little to aid them but THEIR OWN EN-ERGY AND AMBITION.

Is College Education a Handicap?

By Baron SPECK VON STERNBURG, German Ambassador to the United States

HE best answer to the pessimist who warns his young friend to hewere of the college which retaids and cripples his to beware of the college, which retards and cripples his career, is to look up the rolls of our leading universities and the account of their graduates. NEITHER HERE NOR IN MY OWN COUNTRY HAVE I MET A GRADUATE WHO produce extremely interesting results. REGRETTED HIS UNIVERSITY EDUCATION OR THE TIME SPENT IN ACQUIRING IT.

Only Trousers, Especial Pair Made

Miss Susan Fowler, the trousered octogenarian apostle of the mystic "New Thought" and Vineland's oddest character, has her wedding trousers ready and waits but the coming of her sweetheart from over the seas to be made a bride as coy and blushing as a girl of sixteen, says a Vineland (N. J.) special dispatch to the New York Herald. Vineland does not believe that George P. Fowler, the Englishman who arrived there a few weeks ago and asked Miss Fowler to marry him, will ever return. He is in England, whither he sailed after one call at Miss Fowler's

Only one letter has come from him to assure the woman, nearly forty years his senior, whom he promised to marry. that he will return to claim her for his wife. But Miss Fowler has an unshakable faith in the promises of her fortysix-year-old wooer. She regularly works her little farm, looking after her material welfare, but hour by hour she expects her betrothed to return.

Serene in her confidence, she has prepared her trousseau and proudly exhibits it to callers at her little home on the outskirts of the city. This trousseau consists of a new pair of trousers, made by Miss Fowler's own hands, for never has she consented to be measured by a tailor.

These wedding trousers she made from a pretty brown material, which by her own statement, cost her 6 cents a yard. She has never donned then vet, nor will she until her wedding day Just when this will be she does no profess to say, but she believes the time will not now be long deferred and that before many days her home will shelter two persons instead of the one lonely woman who has lived there for more than forty-four years.

Of her wedding plans Miss Fowler has nothing determined. As the marriage would be of minds only, she does not deem a religious or civil ceremony necessary. She sees no reason why her d Nepons sweetheart may not walk into the e Pope's Hill. house and after some simple ceremony devised by themselves take up his resi dence there, for better or for worse,

These sonorous cries, coming from the rear of a wagon standing near Six tieth and Market streets in Philadel phia on a recent Saturday afternoon, attracted scores of people to the spot says the New York Herald. After inspecting the vehicle many of the women who had rushed up went away just as hastily. There seemed to be some thing uncanny in the cries. They evi dently came from the throat of a hu-

His voice was scarcely audible "I lost my voice by being shot in the civil war," he began, "and thought that this machine would take the place of a voice for me. This was the only business I knew, and I had to keep it up. The scheme has worked great so far everywhere I've tried it today. I've nearly disposed of my stock already."

The Red Badge of Courage.

An unusual demonstration of physical grit and steadiness of nerve was re cently given at Chambers lake, in Colo rado, by E. B. House, professor of mathematics of Colorado Agricultura college, says a Denver dispatch. He left Fort Collins a few days ago with State Engineer Carpenter's experimenting company. One day when he was felling a tree for firewood the ax glanced and severed one of Professor House's toes and cut through the bone of a second. The professor was alone and seventy miles from surgical assistance. He removed his shoe, bathed the ragged wound with whisky and with needle and thread sewed on the amputated member and repaired the wound of the other toe. He is still at work with the party.

Through cars to Dudley street terminal from Quincy means a great improvement. Now Quincy is cut off. It is not possible to make a through trip to Boston without change, and therefore it is not possible to charter a car for Boston or surrounding towns on the north. We ran go to the Weymouths, Nantasket and the South Shore towns; to Braintree, Randolph, Brockton and beyond, but to go to Milton, Hyde Park, Dedham or Boston is almost out of the question.

But we want the connection more that Boston people can take a through car for a Quincy pilgrimage. Excursions from the north of Boston to the "City of Presidents" will be popular when the connection becomes known Waits at Neponset are objectionable. It is not an attractive place at best. The traffic is large and rapidly increasing and is entitled to better service. Through cars Sept. 1, will therefore be hailed with delight.

If there be a dangerous paternalism now, it is only because of the greed of the individualists who brought it on. If men are reaching out for more fellowship it is only because they have suffered so much from their isolation and stark independence. Cooperation, not competition, is the law of the future; social welfare rather than individual aggrandizement is the watchword of the new day; and, paradoxical as it may seem, with society controling more and more the life of man on his lower side and economic ranges, be will be all the freer to develop his individuality on its mental and spiritual side. - The Congregationalist.

The advice to do without meat for awhile, and to practice living on a vegetable diet, and to eschew everything calculated to heat the blood and to cause discomfort in summer, is great and grand advice. Some people will follow it, especially while meats are quoted so high in price. Most people won't attempt to follow the advice that is now being freely handed out all over the country. They have gotten used to solid and American foods, which means plenty of meat, and plenty of variety, and they don't feel that they can get along on anything else. Was in Pile of Logs Under Bow of the Warship.

The whistle could be heard all over and from there she intends to go to the city and many of the officers and employes started on the run for the works. The city department also got ready to respond if their services were needed, but the yard department put out the blaze without outside assistance.

> The fire was discovered in a pile of logs under the put bow of the battleship New Jersey. At that time there was a dense cloud of smoke arising from the logs, and word was sent to the power station which sounded the whistle alarm.

There is a well organized fire department at the yard, and in a few minutes there was a small army hurrying to the works. Lines of hose were run Mrs. and Mrs. W. I. Tuckerman of from nearby hydrants and streams of Brackett street, East Milton, are stop- water were soon being thrown onto the

The logs were close to the ways under the ship, and it was feared that the ways would take fire. The employes, not wishing to take any chances began to roll them out when water was thrown upon them.

The fire was all out in twenty minutes, and the all out signal was sounded on the whistle.

The loss was insignificant, but no chances were taken of having the ways destroyed.

The cause of the fire is not known, but is supposed to have been due to a red hot bolt falling among the logs during the day, the fire smouldering until discovered.

JOHN BANISTER.

An English Violinist Who Won Fame In the Seventeenth Century.

Public concerts owe their direct encouragement to John Banister, who had won fame by his playing on the violin and who succeeded the celebrated Baltzar as leader of Charles II.'s band of twenty-four violins. Pepys, in an entry in his diary for February, 1667, tells us the court gossip of the day-"how the king's viallin Banister is mad that the king hath a Frenchman come to be chief of some part of the king's musique."

Banister's concerts at the close of the year 1672 were advertised in the London Gazette as follows: "These are to give notice that at Mr. John Banister's house (now called the Musick School), over against the George tavern in White Fryers, the present Monday will be musick performed by excellent mas ters, beginning precisely at 4 of the clock in the afternoon, and every afternoon for the future precisely at the same hour."

Four years later on we read again the workmen at the works and those in was at this time as a rule a shilling, the neighborhood that there was a fire and these concerts seem to have been held pretty regularly down to within a short time of Banister's death, which took place in 1679.—Chambers' Journal.

The omnibus appeared in Paris in 1662 as a "carrosse a cinq sous" (coach for twopence halfpenny), by authority of Louis XIV., under the management of Pascal, the mystic and philosopher, Whether this eminent thinker originated the idea is not clear, but there is no auspices of a royal decree.

Later on these earliest omnibuses ceased to run owing to lack of support. and did not reappear in Paris until 1827, when Lafitte, the banker, who was among the largest proprietors, was credited with originating the revived service. The new coaches started to ply in London on July 4, 1829, when the first one left Paddington for the Bank of England, and another ran from the bank to the Yorkshire Stingo, New road. These first British busses were known from the man who organized them as "Shillibeers," and the conductors of the first two are said to have been the sons of British naval officers. Hiram had shown himself so ungrateful as to refuse to bestow thousands upon the Sanskrit department of a certain university, he had treated ungenerously requests from a school of practical science, and the press of his beloved metropolis had hinted that he was lacking in public spirit. Therefore he decided to go to Europe and, as he expressed it in a moment of rare mellowness, "blow it all in

Mrs. Thorne had died when the cream cheese was in its early stages, and the millionaire's only child, Elizabeth, was the typical daughter of the man who has achieved financial greatness. She was slender, buoyant, beautifuland a certain clubman declared that she had the air of having "fed on the roses and lain in the lilies of life." Through acquaintanceship with certain American notables and by right divine of grace and gold Miss Elizabeth Thorne had attained unto the experience of a London season. Hiram had been under the horrible impression that America expects every woman to demand a duke, and the thought of confronting a large band of hungry creditors belonging to a certain "grace" had disturbed his peace. But he was spared such a financial shock, for every wearer of the magic eight strawberry deaves was abroad or already provided with a father-in-law, and at the end of the season there were but two members of the aristocracy who were any serious annoyance. There was Sir Aubrey Penrhyn who was possessed of a tumbledown castle in Wales and of many ancestors whose deeds had been of doubtful sanctity. The castle was sadly in need of repairs, and its owner had an appreciation of maidens with golden hair and calm gray eyes. Therefore when his monocled glance rested upon Elizabeth Thorne he felt that fate thad been more than polite to him, and

The other azure blooded suitor was the Baron won Reisen, who was an Anglo-German of undoubted possessions. His castle was in better shape than that belonging to Sir Aubrey, and the same might be said of his nose. He was decidedly good looking in a heavy blond

"But I know he'll be fearfully fat some day, and he smiles so eternally," grumbled Elizabeth to her chaperon, Mrs. Carr-Gordon of New York.

It was the month of September, and they were at a delightful Devonshire village, where Elizabeth was gathering strength and decision for the house party in October.

"My dear child, there is always something wrong, and a husband with a perpetual smile would at least have an unusual fault."

"And Sir Aubrey would be very tiresome. There is something of the feudal days about him. I believe that he says What, ho!' and 'Gadzooks!' when his

But this is an age when india ink is mightier than blue blood, and Mr. Warren Page hoarded these insults in his heart until, like Mr. Zogbaum, he was prepared to "draw things with a pencil."

On a certain morning in September, when the sea was shifting from sapphire to emerald and the sky was one blue rebuke to those who would revile Elizabeth a sketch that aroused wrath in her gentle soul. She thought of the garden party where Mr. Page had done his manly best to secure her undivided attention and where she, with a slight dread of the inevitable hour, had objected to a tete-a-tete and had continued to absorb the glassy admiration bestowed by Sir Aubrey's glances. She had been cold and Sir Aubrey had been colder to the youthful artist, and, behold, the better man had taken inky vengeance.

"It's too bad of Mr. Page," Elizabeth said in anger. But she looked at the slender, stately girl, and a pleased dimple came in her right cheek. She looked at the grim form of Sir Aubrey, and a yawn widened her dainty mouth. At her feet can alliance must be made by hearts knelt two grotesque figures, in which, however, might be seen a fatal likeness to Sir Aubrey and that worthy Teuton, he Paron von Reisen. They happened to be near me, and I thought the only square thing was for me to tell them all about it. It was like taking a trip to the north pole. They froze me up completely, and I came near knocking that confounded glass into Sir Aubrey's eye. I don't think you'll be troubled with either of them, but if you ever recognize their existence on this planet you're no daughter of mine. I was going out when I met that artist fellow, Mr. Page, and he's a white man, no mistake about it. He seemed so glad to see me that I told him the whole business and added a few remarks about Sir Aubrey and the other blamed fool. He just got hold of my hand as if I were his long lost uncle and said, 'Well, I'm awfully sorry for your sake, Mr. Thorne but it's a good thing to meet a man. I am no better than I was yesterday, but you are poorer and therefore all the dearer to me. Your father is a brick, and I hope he will come and live with us in a house made of the same material. I have a small fortune which my mother left me, and I am paid pretty decently for my work, so that we shall be able to keep our bicycles and have an occasional dinner at Richmond. His Secret Marriage to His Prett Young Ward.

When the multimillionaire sense from Montana, Hon. William A. Clar returned from a prolonged trip above recently he brought to his growing sons and daughters in this coun the news that he was no longer widower, but a fond husband and als the happy father of a two-year-ol daughter. Senator Clark was married in Marseilles, France, May 25, 180 but upon his return to America after ward said nothing about having wife abroad. He states that slend was kept on the subject because Mr Clark wished to finish her educati in Europe instead of returning to the country at once to assume the social duties that would fall to her lot,

The Montana senator is now sixts five years of age. About nine or to years ago a girl of fourteen or fiftee years came into his office at Butte a asked his aid in behalf of her father a French Canadian physician who had emigrated to the states. He was with out a license to practice in the state Montana. This fact got him into dis culty with the authorities. The sense interested himself in the case and a

The father died, and Senator Clark furnished their mother money for their education. Charles Clark, son of the senator, fell deeply in love with Miss Amelia, but the match was opposed by his father, the affair was broken off and Charles afterward married another young woman Anna became the senator's ward and was sent to a seminary in Washington and later, under the chaperonage of Senator Clark's sister, to Europe, where she studied music and became very proficient in the languages. She has a fine voice, which has been cultivated under the best masters. Reports of her engagement to the senator were in circulation some years ago, but were denied.

A short time ago General Macdonald and Colonel Younghusband and the members of their expedition were reported encamped on the Tangla pass, at a height of nearly 16,000 feet, an altitude exceeding that ever reached by any previous British military expedition. They were then at the top of the stairs leading over the Himalayas into Tibet. Their way from that point on was over a road verging slightly downward toward Lassa, the sacred capital. At many points in this precipitous route the Tibetans might have held the British at bay or overwhelmed them, but they used antiquated weapons and depended for their defense largely on the prayers and curses of their lamas, or priests. Both Sides Charge Bad Faith In Packing House Strike

Unless a settlement is reached today the general belief is that a sympathetic strike of the allied trades in the packing industry will be called. All these unions have signified their willingness to stand by the butchers if they are called on.

We thought the officers of the organization clearly understood that the business had been more or less disrupted during the strike and that some delay would be required to get started up again in anything like full capacity. It is the intention of the packers to carry out their agreement in every particular and, if any house has given cause for grievance, the same can be, and any future grievance will be, readily adjusted."

Several disturbances took place in the morning and early afternoon, but no arrests were made. Plan of Wealthy Natives For Texas Rice Lands.

THEY WILL SUPPLY THE CAPITAL

Mikado's Subjects Believe There Is a Great Future For the Industry In Texas-Baron Matsudaira Declares It Is Ideally Equipped For Rice

The great future held out by the rice industry of the United States has become the subject of considerable interest and discussion, and its ultimate success, especially in Texas, seems to be a foregone conclusion, says the New York Times.

Already the Japanese have an eye to the possibilities existing in the Lone Star State and are advising the introduction of Japanese capital to take hold of the situation. They hope before long that many Japanese of wealth and standing will become residents of the state. Baron Masanao Matsudaira, vice president of the imperial Japanese commission to the St. Louis exposition, who, in company with Jiro Harada, assistant commissioner, and H. Yamawaki, secretary to the minister of agriculture of Japan, visited the Stock Exchange in New York a few days ago, is very much elated over the conditions he found existing in Texas when re-4 cently visiting that state. In an interview on the subject he expressed his views as follows:

"I shall certainly take pleasure in recommending Texas to my country-2 men as a great country for the produco tion of their staple. And I shall use Batteries, Driggs and Kling; Wiltse, my influence in inducing immigration Taylor and Warner. Attendance 7000. to this country. There are now more R. H. I shall use my best endeavors in inducing a better class of emigrants. What Texas needs is capital, and I think that Japanese cap-3 ital should take hold of the situation. standing will become residents of the state.

"Three points especially impressed themselves upon my mind during my brief stay in the state. First, the character of the country is especially adapted to the production of rice. I never before saw so beautifully flat a country, except in the Yangtsekiang valley. China. These two sections are very similar and strike me as being especially adapted to rice culture. I have traveled all over the world, but have never seen any other country to compare with them for the rice industry.

"The next point that strikes me favorably is the fact that Texas is so well adapted to irrigation. This is a great point in favor of the industry, and it can be used to advantage in inducing Japanese unungrants to Texas.

"The third and last and most important point, perhaps, is the richness of the soil. I find that very little, if any, fertilizing is required for the production of rice in that state.

"On the whole, I concur in the belief of Mr. Ichikawa, our agricultural and horticultural expert and chief in charge of the Japanese garden at the Batteries, Yeager and Peterson; Lee St. Louis fair, that Texas is a coming rice country."

THE OSSETINIANS.

A Race of the Caucasus Mountains

With a Georgian Dialect. In the highest parts of the Caucasus mountains, around the Kasbeek region, there is a tribe, very tall and handsome, which speaks its own peculiar dialect of the Georgian language and has its own peculiar customs, differing in many ways from those of the Tscherkesses, Armenians, Circassians and other tribes that dwell in the same country. It is the tribe of the Ossetin-Like the rest of the Caucasus tribes, they have recognized Russia's authority. But they adhere to the claim that they are not descended from Asiatic races, like the other tribes, but that their ancestors were German knights who had gone to the crusades and who, after the disastrous end of the last crusade, had been driven into the wild valleys of the Caucasus, whence it was impossible for them to win their way out and homeward owing to the vigilance of the Moslem foe. #### CIRCULATING LIBRARIES.

Were Started by the Stationers of the Middle Ages.

The earliest form of circulating library was the lending out of books for hire by stationers of the middle ages, but this was of very limited extent. In the reign of Henry IV, Richard of Bury, bishop of Durham, left his valuable library for the use of Oxford students. Two provisions are very practical, one being that no book was to go into circulation unless there was a duplicate; the other, that the borrower had to deposit security exceeding the value of the book.

Dunfermline, Scotland, established the first proper library of this description in 1711, Edinburgh following in 1725 with one founded by Allen Ramsay. #### Old Maids.

The true "old maid," like the true poet, is born, not made, old maidishness being a question of innate character rather than of incidental condition. There are old maids of every state and age and sex, says Ellen Sold by all Druggists, 75c. Thorneycroft Fowler, creatures who revel in fuss, and batten upon detail, and abide in the narrowest of narrow ruts. Do we not all know married women with large families who are, nevertheless, old maids to the backbone, just as we know adorable elderly spinsters who have the minds of girls and the hearts of mothers? And do we not also know numbers of the (so called) stronger sex whose absorption in trifles and avidity for gossib proclaim them old maids of the purest water?

Russia Waives It as Result of Protest From Great Britain

A STOPPAGE OF SEIZURES

Decision That Present Status of Volunteer Fleet Is Not Sufficiently Well Defined -- Reports of Serious Battles

St. Petersburg, July 25.—Grand Duke Alexis presided at the council which Foreign Secretary Lamsdorff and Vice Admiral Avellan, chief of the admiralty department, and other high naval officers attended. The result of the conference removes all doubts concerning the present attitude of Russia with regard to the volunteer fleet. The validity of the view expressed in the British note regarding the irregularity of the position of the vessels was so far admitted that the council agreed to waive the right of search.

After a long discussion it was de cided that the present status of the volunteer fleet was not sufficiently well defined, according to international law, to render further searches and seizures advisable and that, therefore, Russia, in the interests of friendly relations with the powers, should withdraw the authority given the volunteer fleet in this respect. It is stated on the highest authority that the Russian and British governments have agreed on a mutually satisfactory basis for a settlement of the question of the status of Russian volunteer fleet steamers in the Red sea and the seizures by them of British ships. A few minor points still remain unsettled, but these probably will be cleared up today and it is not expected that further complications will arise. Great credit for the satisfactory termination of this incident is due to

British Ambassador Hardinge also evokes praise. The negotiations throughout the crisis were conducted in a most friendly spirit on both sides and the story that there was a stormy scene at the foreign office on July 20, when Hardinge presented the British protest, has not the slightest foundation. The relations between the foreign minister and the British ambassador are extremely cordial.

Seizure of the Scandia

Berlin, July 25 .- A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that Russia, in response to Germany's protest, sent a dispatch to Port Said ordering the immediate release of the Hamburg-American line steamer Scandia, which had arrived there and was awaiting instruc-

The official report of the seizure of the Scandia says that the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk encountered the vessel at the Island of Perim, in the Straits of Babel-Mandeb, and that she was seized, not with standing the fact that her captain showed from the manifest that there was no contraband of war on board the Scandia.

Russian Warships Off Japan

Tokio, July 25.-The Russian Vladivostok squadron sunk a merchantman which it captured off the coast of Izu province yesterday. The name of the ship and her nationality is not known and nothing has been learned of the fate of her crew. Witnesses ashore saw the merchantman following the fleet. Then they saw her fired upon, after which she disappeared. The Russian warships were reported yesterday to the southwest of Cape Iro, Cape Iro is about 65 miles southwest of Yokohama and about 50 miles from the entrance to the bay upon which Yokohama and Tokio are located.

London Newspapers Cooling Off London, July 25 .- The statement that Russia has decided to waive her claim to search the Malacca and to forbid similar seizures in the future is accepted by the London papers as a fairly satisfactory solution of the situation brought about by the seizure of that vessel. The fact that German vessels have also been seized is held to acquit Russia of any design to embroil Great Britain with other powers.

Object of Vladivostok Fleet London, July 25 .- The Tokio correspondent of The Times, in a dispatch dated July 24, says he believes that the object of the Vladivostok squadron is to interrupt trade between the United States and Japan and that steamers on the way from Canada and San Francisco are in serious danger. He says that another aim of the squadron is ap-

The gala appearance of the Puritanical old city; and the nagnificent military pageant which marched through the streets, lined with cheering throngs, made the G. A. R. reunion of '94 a memorable event.

In ten years many changes have taken place in the ranks of these sturdy oldiers; and while they may lack the uick step of their former Boston march they are still ready for duty; and at the annual encampment in Boston this year, August 15th to 20th, it is anticipated that over 100,000 people will visit the city, and over forty thousand will be in parade. Visitors are expected from every quarter of the country; and the same care and watchfulness will follow the G. A. R. visitors which was exerised over the large gathering of teachers assembled here last summer. Boston is an ideal convention city.

Hotel proprietors, citizens and boardng-house keepers all unite in doing their utmost for the ease and comfort of the visitors. As a city of interest, Boston is without an equal; the many famous landmarks, historical buildings and places in Boston and the suburbs make it doubly attractive as a convention city. Low rates from all sections of the country will apply; and to further aid the visitor, the Boston and Maine R.R. has recently published a delightful booklet which tells all about the encampment and contains illustrations of the numerous historic landmarks and monuments in Boston and suburbs. This booklet is invaluable as a guide and makes an interesting souvenir. Just send a postal card to the General Passenger Department, Boston and Maine Railroad, Boston, and the booklet will be mailed to you free.

Squatters Warned. Practical Politics tells of an incident at the Norfolk Club dinner which did not get into print, as follows:

"Squatting on city land at Squantum are a number of campers, who live in tents and have a good time at little expense. The result, it is understood, was a severe warning and a demand that the squatters repress their democracy until they reach Boston in the fall. Willing hands worked heroically. Finally Charles L. Leavitt cost in the DAILY LEDGER waded into the mud above his hips, and fastened a rope around the horse's neck. A discount of $1 when paid one year Joint Council of Teamsters' Union to Communicate With Packers In an Effort to Open A Weekly Established in 1837, which has Peace Negotiations -- Trainloads of Non-Union Men Braintree Observer and Reporter Brought to Packing Houses

Copy for changes of advertisements in the Ledger should be in the office on the afternoon Chicago, July 25.-Determined on a fight to a finish to enforce the demands of the striking butchers, a sympathetic strike of all the union workmen employed in the meat packing industry throughout the country, with the exception of the teamsters, was declared this morning at 7 o'clock.

No conferences were held yesterday either by the packers or the labor leaders. Whether or not the packers will make any concessions to the demand of the labor leaders in order to prevent a general walkout of the trades at the stockyards will not be discussed by any of the packing houses representatives but from the preparations going on at the different plants it is plainly evident that the packers intend to fight for their independence. All the labor leaders declare that they will await today's developments and that the packers will have to make the request for a resumption of peace negotiations, as the unions have no intention at the present time of doing so. Preparations for the struggle which is expected to reach a climax before tomorrow were being made at the different packing plants all during Sunday and far into the night. Dozens of representatives of the packing houses were scattered all over the country in search of men to fill the places of the strikers.

Four trainloads of new employes were taken to the yards before darkness set in to join the non-union men already established inside the plants. Clerks were initiated into new duties and employes who had been promoted from trades were returned to their former work to take the places of the regular workers who are expected to quit work. Stockades have been erected at all the different plants to protect men whose work exposes them to danger from mob violence. All through the stockyards there are not only evidences of preparation for a long and bitter struggle, but superintendents of the packing establishments, police officers and union leaders give expression to anticipation of troublous times to come. In addition to the four trains filled with non-union men brought into the yards under police protection, many other trains loaded with men who had been secured were scheduled to arrive men already installed within the stockwait here until you came back you office men to the killing rooms, work was resumed in all the plants this morning on as extended a scale as possible. ### CRAZED BY JEALOUSY

Man Killed a Woman as She Sat In a Carriage Berlin, N. H., July 25 .- The fact that

> Mrs. Spurgeon Lockhart, 30 years of age, had been shot and killed Saturday night at West Milan, 14 miles from here, became known in Berlin when John Green, aged 34, called at the police station and surrendered himself as the woman's slayer. So far the shooting has much of mystery about it. It is known that Mrs. Lockhart was shot while riding in a buggy near West Milan in company with a man whose name has not been learned. Green says he shot her with a rifle and delares that he killed her in a fit of jealousy and in a disordered state of mind, brought on by a drug which, he says, Mrs. Locknart used to give him. Green was locked up on the strength of his own confession. The local authorities plan to make a thorough investigation of the case in conjunction with the deputy sheriff at West Milan. Mrs. Lockhart died almost immediately after she had been wounded. The body was removed to a house near the scene of the shooting, and later to the home of her husband at West Milan. Mr. Lockhart is the proprietor of a livery stable and one of the most prominent men in the village.

Both Sides Prepared For Labor Struggle at Fall River

Its Feeling Against Manufacturers as Bitter as Among Those Affiliated With Unions--Small Stores Forced to Close

The talk heard on the streets indiamong the non-union operatives as it is among those who are affiliated with abor organizations. It is not believed, owever, that this feeling will culinate in acts of violence.

In speaking of arbitration, a prominent member of the Manufacturers' association said that he would welcome any plan by which the mills could be kept in operation, but he added that he could not understand the prevailing feeling of bitterness.

The only possible break in the ranks of the strikers is looked for at the Border City mills. These mills, which normally employ 775 operatives, have not been operated for two months, and the people who were employed there are desperate from want.

Regarding the non-union element, the strike leaders believe that if it can be demonstrated for two weeks that the non-union operatives can live on strike benefits as well, if not better, than on the wages paid by the mills, the strike can be prolonged indefinitely. The police have made but little preparations for handling the crowds of strikers, believing that there will be no violence. Officers have been instructed to watch the mill gates, but they must take no part in any discussion unless there is a breach of the

Both sides are thoroughly prepared for the struggle. The operatives have been ordered to report at meetings to be held at the various union headquarters. Briton. Burst Tires to Prove Machine Can Be Managed.

PUNCTURES NOT DEEMED SERIOUS

S. F. Edge Makes Daring Experiments to Prove His Contention by Chisels and Long Iron Spikes at Crystal Palace Grounds In London.

So much has been printed in newspapers recently about serious accidents having happened to automobiles through puncturing of tires or the tires coming off that S. F. Edge of England, a well known automobilist, determined to take the matter up and show how misleading were such statements, .719 and that accidents from such causes .612 need never occur in properly construct-.598 ed automobiles provided they were sent .566 out on journeys in sound condition, .543 says a London cable dispatch to the 365 New York Herald.

With this in view he gave a very interesting exhibition in the Crystal palace grounds the other afternoon. He used a fifteen horsepower touring car and the racer in which he contested for the international cup recently in Germany.

For the purpose of bursting the tires the track was laid with broken bottles, broken steel chisels and long fron spikes driven into wooden blocks. The tires were burst while the cars were driven at full speed over the track, but the cars went straight on their way as if nothing was wrong with the wheels.

The most exciting experiment was when Mr. Edge, having cut the inner .485 cases of a rear tire of his racer, dashed .449 up and down the track with the view of showing the effect of casting a tire, but to make the tire fly off was no easy matter. He jerked the car from side to side and made it swerve violent-Mr. Edge said only a slight diminu-

> Japanese Scouting With Telephones. "Scouting with the aid of the tele-

One, the observer, is a skilled army officer, who makes the observations, which are transmitted back to headquarters through a telephone line paid out from a reel carried by an electrician of the signal corps. A ground return is used, the ground being made by thrusting a bayonet or hatchet into the earth and attaching one end of the line on his back. He also makes the connections and does the talking. A special conductor is used, which will stand rough usage. In this manner a scout may be able to stay out a long time and give valuable information without being obliged to make a number of azardous trips to the front."

CAUGHT IN A SEA PUSS

[Original.]

"Why doesn't Wheaton marry?" asked a gentleman of another. "He is a forlorn looking old "bach" and needs a seven words equal a line. Long term rates fur nished on application. home.'

"Wheaton will never marry. He once loved a girl who is dead to him, but his love for her is the same.2 "The old story, I suppose. Women

fault: Arthur Wheaton at twenty was a fine young fellow just out of college, and, being very ambitious and talented, reer for him. During the first summer after graduating he went to the seashore, where he had an adventure that colored his whole life. A girl of eighteen, Annabel Whiting, while bathing, got caught in a sea puss and was carried out. Wheaton, a splendid swimmer, went in and swam with her to one of the ropes, Probate Business where he held her till the bathing master came in a boat and got them ashore.

> Wheaton by giving him her heart. The episode occurred early in July, and long before the end of that month the young people were engaged. Miss whiting was obliged to leave the beach early in August, and Wheaton, having | FOR SALE - The fast centre board loat Whiting was obliged to leave the beach many friends there, decided to stay on. It was a great pity that he did not go with his flancee.

The day after Miss Whiting left a party came to the beach to spend a week. They were "smart" people and drank a great deal of champagne. On the morning of their arrival two of them, a man and a woman, were standing on the beach looking at the bathers when Wheaton walked down to the water. There was some conversation between the man and woman looking on about him and his splendid figure, at the end of which a bet was made be tween them that the woman would bring Wheaton to her feet before their week's holiday was ended. The same day the man sought an introduction to him to the woman. Camilla Hyde was married and thirty, though she easily passed for twenty-four. She was a striking looking woman and mistress of the art of winning men, which was with her an art and nothing more. There was no similarity between her type and that of Annabel Whiting; indeed they were antipodes. Before Wheaton met Mrs. Hyde she had heard of his saving Miss Whiting's life, and she began at once to show an interest in the matter, inducing him against his will to tell her every detail. It was still twilight, and she insisted on his going with her and showing her where and how it happened. Wheaton 7.00 yielded and went with her down to the beach. It was 10 o'clock when the couple returned. Dancing was going on at the hotel, and Mrs. Hyde and Wheaton sailed down among the dancers. Wheaton was an excellent dancer, and, as for Mrs. Hyde, she was superb both in grace and figure. After the dance the lady complained that the air in the 8.00 room was bad and she must go out on to the plazza. There the two sat till good repair; garden and fruit. On Spear street, near the Public Li-midnight. "Good night," said the lady. "I suppose you will go to bed and dream of your flancee." Instead, Wheaton went down to the beach alone, lit a cigar and threw himself on the sand. He thought of An-6.75 nabel Whiting, but somehow she seemed insipld compared with the splendid woman with whom he had spent more than four hours. Four hours the first time he had met her! He could hardly believe it. The time had seemed infinitely short. He smoked in quick, fitful puffs. Looking out on the ocean, he saw again the face of Annabel Whiting, with its grateful expression as he held her against the force of the billows. But now there was a reproachful look in the eyes that he could not banish. Two or three days later Wheaton was warned against Camilla Hyde as one who had a passion for winning hearts to throw them away. He pack- Store, No. 9 Granite street, now ed up his trunks to leave, but there was no train till afternoon. Teamsters the Only Union Men at Work In Stockyards

MAY JOIN THE BUTCHERS

Allied Trades Quickly Responded to Call to Quit Work -- Employes of Independent Firms Complicate Matters

Chicago, July 26 .- With all peace negotiations broken off and with all of the allied trades unions employed at the different plants, with the exception of the teamsters and stationary engineers, out on strike in sympathy with the butcher workmen who quit work two weeks ago, the stockyards strike has settled down to what promises to be a long, bitter fight.

As has been threatened for some time, the allied trades employed in the packing industry at Chicago quit work when called on to assist the striking butchers in their efforts to bring the packers to terms. In several instances the men did not wait for the official notification from their leaders to strike, but threw down their tools and quit work of their own volition.

Both sides to the controversy declare that they are perfectly satisfied with the present state of affairs and that they are willing to make it a fight to a finish to determine who shall dictate the terms of a settlement.

According to the packers the general strike is a failure, it being asserted by them that not more than half the members of the allied trades quit work when officially called out by the leaders. The further statement is made by the packers that should all the union men decide to join the strikers it will make little difference to the employers, as they have sufficient resources to contest the ground for an indefinite period.

On the other hand, the labor leaders assert that all the union employes at the different packing plants, together with several hundred employes of the Union Stockyards and Transit company. quit work in response to the general order for a sympathetic strike.

A new phase of the strike situation developed when notice was given by the unions to the independent packers at the stockyards that their men would not be allowed to handle animals which had been handled in any way by non union men. It is necessary for these independent concerns to take all of their livestock into the yards over union stockyard runways, where the stock must be handled by non-union men, since the union men employed by the stockyards company in this line of work are among the employes who joined the sympathetic strike. The ultimatum of the unions leaves the independent packers no alternative but to receive their livestock directly from the country or close business entirely. A meeting of the independent packers was held last night to man out some plan of action, but no definite conclusion was reached.

Before peace negotiations had been broken off yesterday representatives of the Teamsters' union, as had been agreed on, were in conference with the packers in an effort to arrange some sort of settlement which would prevent a spread of the strike. At this meeting the packers were asked to concede that the first peace agreement, signed last Wednesday and which was later repudiated by the strikers, when a second strike was called, be considered null and void and that the packers submit a new proposal for peace terms. The committee also advised the packers that the striking butchers would stand by last Saturday's demand, which was that all men be reinstated within 10 days or their cases be submitted to immediate arbitration; all butchers and casing men to be taken back within 48 hours after work was resumed.

No progress toward a settlement was made at the conference and the teamsters' committee retired to consider a new proposition. Immediately on the return of the teamsters' committee to union headquarters they entered into a conference with the representatives of the allied trades to consider a proposal which had been submitted to the unions by the packers. In the meeting between the teamsters and the packers the packers offered to change the time of reinstating all strikers from 45 days to 35 days. They made no concessions other than this and this proposal was submitted to the allied trades committee. President Donnelly, however, refused to consider the proposal, and all hopes of an immediate settlement was lost.

President Golden of the Teamsters' union will wire the members of the In-

A GENERAL STRIKE ternational Teamsters' council, asking permission to call a sympathetic strike of the teamsters, the last union to refrain from joining the struggle against the packers.

Despite the sympathetic strike, all the plants are working regular time, although at a reduced capacity. The predicted meat famine is brought still closer. Practically all the reserve stock in the storehouses is said to have been exhausted and the retail markets are having some difficulty in securing sufficient meat to accommodate customers. Restaurant keepers are having trouble in getting full meat supplies. In a few cases the butchers have no meat of any kind. Some of the best known restaurants in Chicago threaten to eliminate meat entirely from bills of fare in case the market goes higher.

World's Fair Ferris Wheel.

The great Expositions held during the last fifteen years have produced two marvellous examples of engineering and constructive ability. One of these, the Eiffel Tower, was designed and built by a Frenchman at Paris for the Exposition of 1889; the other, the Ferris Wheel, was designed and built by the late George W. G. Ferris for the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, in 1893.

Paris again held a great Exposition in 1900 but failed to produce any feature to take the place of the Eiffel Tower. In America, St. Louis, in 1904, planned and produced the greatest Exposition the world has ever seen. Scores of attempts were made to invent something more wonderful and more attractive than the Ferris Wheel, but as Paris failed to outdo her own Eiffel Tower, so did St. Louis fail to equal the faramed Ferris Wheel of the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893. Arrangements were accordingly made to bring the Ferris Wheel to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and it was given a location near the geographical center of the grounds.

A brief resume of the dimensions and lescription of the Ferris wheel may be interesting. The wheel is built upon the bicycle principal, with immense ension spokes, 3 inches in diameter. The wheel is 250 ft. in diameter and stands 265 ft. high. In reality it is two wheels securely braced together. Between the outer rims of these wheels the eleven-ton cars are suspended on 6 1-2 in. pins, 6 ft. long. These cars are 13 ft. wide, 26 ft. long, 9 ft. high HERBERT A. HAYDEN and will carry 60 persons each. There are 36 of them, so the total capacity of the wheel is 2,160 persons. At several imes in its history the wheel has been filled to its capacity. In addition, one gets a view of St. Louis, the Mississippi River, and the beautiful forests, hills and dales for fifty miles around. At night, the view of the illumination of the buildings and grounds is simply magnificent. Eye has not seen nor ear heard of a more striking spectacle than the night view of the great Exposition from the top of the Ferris wheel.

Fall River Strike Begins Successfully For Operatives

A FIGHT FOR SUPREMACY

Question of Existing on Strike Funds on Workers' Side and Heavy Loss of Money on Part from Dover to Boulogne-Sur-Mer

of Manufacturers

Fall River, Mass., July 26 .- The end of the first day of the strike of 26,000 cotton mill operatives of this city found little or no change in the situation. The day passed quietly and so did the evening and so, in all probability, will the succeeding days of the strike, for the reason that the opposition to the strike on the part of operatives is so slight as to be hardly noticeable. The mill owners and their operatives are determined in the struggle for supremacy and few will predict the outcome. With the strikers it is simply a question of how long they can do without their wages and exist on strike benefits. On the part of the owners it is but a matter of how long they can Republican makes a mistake, based afford to have their mills closed down at a time when the cotton and cloth publican success without regard to market is not at its best. After all the fear that the low country more immigrants than ever, it latter's home near Amber Sunday, suris found that the immigration into the last month was less than in the immediately preceding year. Low rates did, indeed, for a time seem to stimulate immigration, but there was a sufficient falling off in other parts of the year to more than offset any gain that might have been the result of this cause. Undoubtedly the reason is found in the fact that the labor situation was not such as to attract the immigrant. Immigration has always been immediately responsive to flush times in the United States; and it quickly feels the restraint of a depression. - New Bedford Stand-

The secret of the great outpouring of people at the Jones obsequies is not found in the fact that he died the mayor of a large city, or that he had won riches for himself. Y., July 26.-Former Senator Jones of Arkansas, who will preside over the meeting of the Democratic national committee which will elect a new chairman; Senator Daniel of Virginia, chairman of the committee at St. Louis which drafted the national platform, and Daniel J. Campau were callers at Rosemount yesterday. Neither Senator Jones nor Senator Daniel had met Judge Parker before. They left sounding in glowing terms the praises of the party's standard-bearer, who was immensely pleased as the result of their visit. Senator Jones told Parker that every Democrat who voted for Bryan in 1896 and 1900 will vote the Democratic ticket this fall. Senator Braintree Observer and Reporter Daniel said that the franchise plank in the Democratic platform would make the south solid for the party and that this plank also would enable the party to carry Maryland, West Virginia and

Few calls have given Parker so much genuine pleasure as he derived from his visit from Jones and Daniel. The former, who managed both of Bryan's campaigns, is the representative of the Democrats who were in control at the party conventions four and eight years ago. Senator Jones told Parker that the money question is not an issue in the campaign, except as it was made a personal issue by Parker himself. The fact that there is no money plank in the platform is satisfactory to Democrats who favor free silver, and, therefore, Jones said, Parker's position in declaring for the gold standard is not offensive

British Cabinet to Consider Case of Knight Commander

Agents For the Vessel Say There Was No Contraband on Board -- Ships With Cargoes From

America In Danger

London, July 26.-Premier Balfour received a deputation of the house of commons shipping committee with reference to the seizure of the British steamer Allanton. The members alleged that the grounds for her seizure were untenable and that her immediate release might fairly be demanded. After hearing the arguments Mr. Balfour said the facts laid before him seemed to constitute good grounds for representations to the Russian government and promised to make representations to hasten Russian action in the Allanton's case.

The British cabinet will meet today to consider the case of the steamer Knight Commander and the general situation arising from the action of the Russian warships. The report of the captain of the Malacca was presented at the foreign office yesterday and the demand of the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship company for compensation will probably be considered.

The London newspapers consider that the situation is still exceedingly grave and they insist the government shall act promptly in demanding an explanation of the Knight Commander indent, which is characterized by The Daily Telegraph as an "outrage of the st gratuitous and barbarous kind." The Morning Post, in an ironic edi-

Yokohama, July 26.—Captain Brown of the steamship Tsinan, which brought the crew of the steamer Knight Commander into port yesterday, says that HAIR MATTRESSES made over and the Knight Commander met three Russian warships at 7:30 o'clock Saturday morning off the province of Izu. The Russian officers who boarded the Knight Commander took her captain back with them and ordered the crew to come on board one of the Russian warships within 10 minutes. The Russtans then sank the Knight Commander.

The American Trading company agents at Yokohama for the Knight Commander, deny that the vessel had any contraband on board according to her manifest.

For Washington to Consider Washington, July 26.-A fact de-

reloped yesterday afternoon which might have led to serious complications had it not been announced earlier in the day that the Russian government had given orders for the release at Suez of the British ship Ardovo, which had on board a large quantity of supplies being shipped by the war department to the Philippine government, including about 250 tons of powder and much other material that would fall within the Russian definition of contraband. The stores were being shipped through the house of George W. Peabody of New York and the Orient, who telegraphed the war department that the Philippine stores were aboard the Ardova and asked the department to exert itself to secure their release. The application was taken at once to the state department, but in view of the intended release of the Ardova it is improbable that any action will be taken by the department. The case of the Knight Commander is regarded here as complicated and difficult of treatment, although a more complete statement of facts is expected to simplify the problem. It is apprehended that, if the contention of the shippers' agents that the cargo contained no contraband is correct, the general doctrine of "neutral flag covers neutral goods" has been violated by the destruction of the ship and cargo. As for the Knight Commander herself, the state department probably will leave to the British government the adjustment of any issue with Russia growing

NEW TURNOUT.

Squantum Line Will Have One Next Summer.

Fifteen-minute service would be appreciated on the Squantum line of electric cars, but at present there is no turnout on the route and it is impossible. That the Old Colony Street Railway Company are always open to suggestions and ready to improve the service is shown by the following letter written by General Manager Goff in reply to a wide awake Atlantic citizen: Boston, July 22, 1904.

Mr. Lucius A. Bassett, Atlantic, Mass. Dear Sir, - Our Assistant Superintendent reports that there is no diffidifficulty. Inasmuch as the work of enlarging the bridge at Atlantic is to be begun very soon and will interfere with that line he thinks it would not be advisable to consider a turnout this season, but suggests that before another season it be installed.

Out of the interest you expressed in agree, and the matter will be considered Nantasket. for another season.

Respectfully, Robert T. Goff. General Manager.

Hon. W. L. Douglas to Present Hospital a Surgical Building.

Brockton is fortunate in having a generous as well as a successful manufacturer. The Enterprise says: When the surgical building, which is to be presented to the Brockton Hospital Corit is estimated, more than $20,000.

The finest surgical building in this section of the State at present is the one connected with the Morton Hospital at Taunton. But the Brockton surgical building will be an improvement upon that, being fully as good and as well equipped, while, being built several years later than that, it will have the advantages of things which have been learned since that time. The cost of that surgical building was $24,153.90.

A special meeting of the corporation has been called for next Monday after noon to take action on the offer of Mr. Douglas. Mr. George Clarence Holmes president of the hospital, said this morning that it was possible that the plans which had been made for the building of the Welcome H. Wales memorial ward might have to be changed on account of Mr. Douglas' offer. This matter will be discussed at the meeting of the trustees which has been called for Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Douglas' generous gift has been commented upon by many since it was announced. He was the first man who ever gave the hospital as much as $1000 and has always been greatly interested in the institution.

Arthur Dunn was near the corner of Mill street and when he saw the animal running, he started to run in the same direction. As the team passed him he leaped over the tailboard into the wagon. This is the third sensational capture of runaway horses that Dunn has made recently and he is getting quite a reputation in that line.

Striker Fatally Shot by a Negro -- Innocent Barber Becomes a Victim of Mob Violence--Police Say They Have the Situation Well In Hand

Chicago, July 27.—The sympathetic strike at the stockyards is complete The belated sanction to the teamster joining their brother workmen in th general strike was given last night by the officers of the International Teams ters' union and the 700 drivers em ployed in the packing industry in Chi cago quit work today.

With the union teamsters out, every mion organization represented in th Chicago packing plants is on strike. The teamsters' organization is considered one of the most important organizations in the present controversy and all along was mainly depended upon to bring success to the strikers. The greater portion of the fresh meats disposed of to the local trade is hauled in wagons to the down town district by these teamsters. With the men on strike and non-union men in their laces, rioting is almost sure to follow.

The union organizations recalled Boston . heir ultimatum prohibiting their mem- | Philadelphia ......21 pers employed in the independent plants from killing livestock purchased in the stockyards, where the animals are being handled by non-union employes, the independent packers having pointed out to them that such an order would be a benefit to the packers. Riots by the unionists and their friends in the stockyards district last night resulted in the shooting of one man and the beating of another into insensibility, while a third was severely cut and bruised. This is believed by the police to be but a foretaste of what is to come now that the teamsters have joined issues with the other union workmen.

While an attack was being made on 450. some negro strike breakers as they were leaving the stockyards last night. John Stokes, one of the strikers, was shot and fatally wounded by one of the negroes. Stokes, together with fully 100 companions, it is said, rushed on the negroes and one of the latter drew a revolver and fired into the crowd, hitting Stokes. The police were close at hand and succeeded in scattering the rioters after considerable difficulty. A negro barber about to climb upon a street car at the entrance of the stockyards last night was dragged to the street by a mob and beaten until unconscious. The police announced that ne was dead, but in the course of an hour he was revived and will recover. The mob was under the impression that the barber was employed in some of the packing plants and attacked him be-ore he could offer an explanation. Chief of Police O'Neil declares that in hand and that they will be able to control the strikers and their friends. When Mayor Harrison was asked if he intended to take any action in an attempt to stop the strike, he said that for the present at least the matter would be under control of the police de-

Wants Militia For Packing House

Sioux City, July 27.-Serious disturbances in the stockyards district led William Watson, manager of the Cudahy plant, to call upon Sheriff Jackson for militia to preserve order and prevent the destruction of meat products sent out from the Cudahy packing house. Democratic Committee's Unanimous Choice For Chairman

HAD STRONG OPPOSITION

Those Against Him Could Not Secure Necessary Conditions Wound Up In Harmony

New York, July 27 .- Thomas Targart of Indiana was elected chairman of the Democratic national committee and expectations were fulfilled. Enadjourned at St. Louis, it has been known ever since that only the decree of Judge Parker in favor of some other man, or the consent of Senator Gorman to accept the place, could prevent the selection of Taggart. Neither of these contingencies arose and the Indiana man was unanimously chosen to a place for which he long has had aspirations.

Although the vote was unanimous, it was not until after it was actually in progress that opposition to Taggart's selection was withdrawn. Beginning with the return of Senator Gorman, former Senator Hill, former Senator Jones and other Democratic leaders Monday evening, and lasting up to the moment when the committee was called to order, the strongest possible effort was made to bring Gorman into the field or to arrange a combination that would place some one besides Taggart John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died at the head of the committee.

Almost continuous conferences were held, intimations of great financial advantages to the party were made and many expedients were suggested, even to delaying the election until after the committee's visit to Judge Parker, in descendants. Failing to secure either of the necessary conditions to defeat Taggart, the opposition acquiesced and the proceedings of the committee were brief and harmonious.

The contest for the other officers created only a slight diversion and difsomewhat spirited for a few days past, were easily adjusted.

A gentleman was sitting in a club window overlooking Fifth avenue, New York. There was a foreign look about him, and when he pressed the electric bell and gave the waiter who answered | nished on application. it an order for a cigar he spoke with a foreign accent. At a table near by sat another man with a glass of spirits and a siphon before him, but he was giving more attention to the man looking out of the window than to the liquor. Presently a third man entered the room and as he passed the one at the table nodded to him.

"Sit down, Hinckley, and have something," said the latter.

"Thanks, Witcher. I don't care if Hinckley bowed to the man looking out of the window.

"Who's your friend?" asked Witcher. "Felix Chevreux, a Parisian, who is club myself during his stay."

"He looks lonely. Bring him over and introduce him."

Felix Chevreux was invited to join the other two, introduced to Witcher, and the three sat chatting together. Chevreux had all the politeness of a Frenchman, but Witcher showed the Yankee in his makeup by giving way to a curiosity in the stranger's movements, which Chevreux parried as best he could without openly showing an-GOOD TIME PROMISED novance.

On several occasions Chevreux ignored entirely Witcher's remarks or questions or whatever they were that annoyed him. When Witcher mentioned the Boucher murder case of Vienna Hinckley fancied he saw a shudder pass over Chevreux; but, glancing at Witcher, he seemed to be unconscious of having ruffled the sensitive Frenchman. Indeed he was reaching for the bell button to order more refreshments.

Then Witcher turned the conversapay back, in a measure, the compliment | tion on to criminals and their singular predisposition to give themselves away facturers of this city were invited to the by some oversight. To this Witcher added that a man might have sufficient sentiment about him to do the same thing. At this point Chevreux tried to change the subject, but Witcher insisted on continuing it, and the Frenchman was obliged to listen. By this time it was evident to Hinckley that something was awry between the two men. Chevreux sat with his tend an "open house" invitation to the lips firmly pressed together, his brows knit, indeed as one who was being tortured and goaded to turn upon his tormentor and rend him. Witcher, on the contrary, appeared to be innocent of any intention to offend. He chattered although slight in and of themselves, on like a magple, apparently unconscious when by some word he was plunging a dagger into the feelings of the Parisian. Finally Chevreux said:

"Perhaps, M. Witcher, since you are so profuse with your questions, you will answer one a member of this club?"

"I am not. I have been given an un limited use of the clubhouse, however, by the chairman of the house committee. But, pardon me for changing the subject and calling your attention to an oversight in your toilet. One of your ongh said: " For the good name of our sleeve links shows an oblong, the other

Desaix has never been seen since, but detectives searching for a clew to the murderer found this sleeve button on the floor in the baroness' apartment. Supposing it had been dropped by the murderer in by the baroness to her lover would be sufficiently prized to induce him to risk capture by wearing it. You see, sir, we have a case in point of what we were recently discussing. A man may have as much sentiment as a woman. Desaix was taken to Vienna, where he was convicted of the murder of Baron Boucher. RALPH EDWARD WALLACE.

CAMPAIGN OF 1904

Launched by Republicans From President's Summer Home

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

It Will Be Widely Circulated as a Campaign Document--Former Governor Black Decorated With a Parker Button

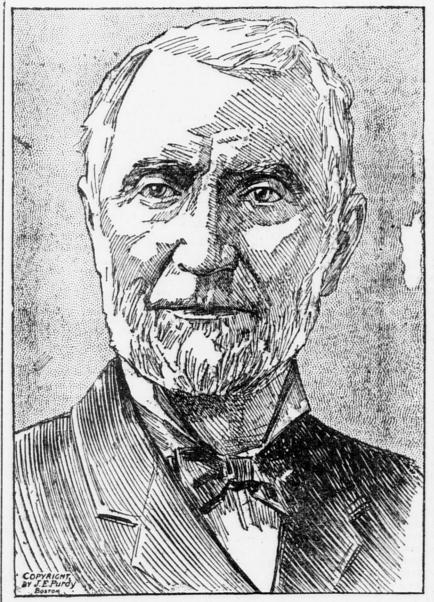

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 28.—Theodore Roosevelt formally opened the political campaign of 1904 at his country home, Sagamore Hill. Surrounded by his family and relatives and friends, and in the presence of an assemblage of men distinguished in all walks of life, he formally received and accepted the nomination of the Republican party for President of the United States.

Prosperity may be said to have been the keynote of the president's speech of acceptance, while the achievements of the Republican party in statesmanship at home and abroad were depicted. As the president concluded his speech, Speaker Cannon, chairman of the notification committee, grasped his hand and congratulated him cordially. National Chairman Cortelyou then extended his congratulations. He was followed by all of the notification committee and the assembled guests. The speech of the president will be circulated extensively in the campaign as, aside from the letter of acceptance, which he will issue in a few weeks, it will be his only public utterance durng the campaign.

President Roosevelt personally re ceived the members of the committee and other guests as they arrived at Sagamore Hill. He knew almost every man personally. After the visitors had been greeted by the president, Secretary Loeb presented each one to Mrs. Roosevelt and to Miss Alice Roosevelt. Mrs Boosevelt extended to all a cordial

Drift of Opinion.

Probably more people would follow the Golden Rule if thereby they could accumulate an estate valued at $346,000, as did the late Mayor Jones of Toledo, though his helpfulness to others was genuine all through the process. - Boston Transcript.

My experience has opened my eyes to two facts: there are as distinct species of women as there are of birds; some are mere females, others mere dolls, and others women proper-the ounterpart of man in the better sense. -Maude Roosevelt, in August Lippin ott's Magazine.

There is no reason why an Amercan citizen should grow hysterical, or ow himself to be disturbed or distressed by the mouthings of the campaign orators. For the next four years we are going to live under the administration of Theodore Roosevelt or under that of Alton B. Parker. It may make a great difference which one of them is elected. Certainly we have no desire whatever to minimize the importance of the impending campaign. For it is always an important matter who is elected president. So we would have the people serious and thoughful and temperate. They shall approach the great question with a firm resolve to answer it on their consciences in the way which they believe will best serve the welfare and glory of the nation which we all love. But we need not be too solemn, and least of all should we be terrified by the threats and ravings of the spellbinders. - Indianapolis News.

Before the end of the year there vill be added to the naval strength seven new vessels-battleships and armored cruisers. This increase may not be at a rate satisfactory to Capt. Richmond Hobson, whose zeal for a proper naval defense has led him into a campaign for a $100,000,000 armament. However, it will be sufficient to satisfy the average American. Not only does the number show a growth but at the same time it is large enough for Sec. Morton to retire to the junk heap some of the obsolete craft, survivors of the civil war period, as Captain Hobson has retired himself. If we add seven new ships, battleships and armored cruisers to our navy each year, we will be able to hold our own against any single power. The danger of building war vessels ahead of time is that in the rapid progress made by naval architecture today, they do not remain serviceable as long as they did a gener-Hobson notwithstanding. Willing to Stand by Agreement Made With Labor Unions

Conference With Board of Arbitration Without Result-Grain Broker Takes the Matter In Hand

Chicago, July 28 .- "We had an agreement with Mr. Donnelly's organization and the allied trades which they have failed to live up to, and under the circumstances we do not care to make any further agreements with them."

This is the statement which was signed by the representatives of the packers and handed to the members of the state board of arbitration last night at the end of a conference between the two bodies, held at the request of the about another meeting between the packers and the strikers.

The packers received the state board courteously and listened to their arguments for a peaceable adjustment of the difficulty. The announcement that the packers were opposed to any further peace negotiations with the strikers was handed to the board by Messrs. Meeker and Connor, both of the Armour company, who represented the packers.

While from their statement it would appear that the packers are opposed to meeting the strikers again on any terms, such is not the case. At the last conference between the strikers and the packers the latter informed the union leaders that at any time they expressed a desire to live up to the original arbitration agreement, signed week ago yesterday, which provided for the reinstatement of the striking butchers inside of 45 days and for all grievances to be submitted to arbitration, the packers would be willing to renew the agreement. The contention of the packers is that this agreement is still in force, and as they are unwilling to offer any further concessions to the strikers they say a renewal of peace negotiations with the hope of se curing better erms would be useless. The labor leaders claim that when the butchers went on the second strike because of alleged discrimination by the packers in hiring the old employes, the that it is necessary to sign a new agreement before a settlement can be reached.

After last night's conference with the state board of arbitration Manager Meeker of Armour & Co. said that the packers were still willing to live up to the terms of the original agreement but that the initiative would have to be taken by the strikers.

the contesting parties together once have new evidence in the case, but they more, another attempt, it is said, will be decline to disclose its nature. made to arrange a conference between the packers and the strikers. James H. Walker, a grain broker, is the man who proposes to do what the state board of arbitration failed to accomplish. Walker was in consultation last night with the leaders of the allied trades unions and several of the packers. He stated that it was his firm belief that before tonight he would be able to announce that his mission had been a success. "Police rule" has been declared in the stockyards district. Beginning yes terday afternoon no one was allowed to traverse the streets in the vicinity of the stockyards unless good cause could be shown for doing so. This to a great extent put a stop to the picketing by the strikers, which had been going on all day up to the time the order was given. When night came the police were complete masters of the situation in the district. No one was allowed to loiter in the streets and any person whether a striker or not, who stopped sure to be told to "move on." At least 1000 new employes were taken into the yards yesterday and put to work. A conservative estimate of the number of animals slaughtered by the different plants placed it about onehalf the amount disposed of under normal conditions. An unexpected complication arose last night when the freight handlers employed at the stockyards station of the Chicago Junction railroad went on strike. The men gave as their reason for quitting work their unwillingness to handle meat turned out by non-union workmen in the packing plants. Their decision to go on strike is a severe blow to the packers, as the greater portion of the dressed meats shipped from the vards to the local trade passes through the hands of these men

Not Yet Ordered Out Kansas City, July 28.-There will be no sympathetic strike of the allied trades unions whose members are employed at the local packing houses until the men are ordered out by the international union when, they say, they will obey the order. This was decided at a meeting of the Central Labor union last night.

TWO MONTHS' IDLENESS Fall River Mills Not Likely to

Open Before October Fall River, Mass., July 28 .- "Unless the operatives agree to come into the mills and work under the proposed 121/2 percent reduction, it is doubtful if any attempt will be made by the manufacturers to run the mills before October." This is the statement made last night by a prominent mill treasurer. In explaining this attitude the treasurer said that the whole matter was a question of finance and the manufacturers have found that to continue operations under the old wage scale would mean a loss of money. They prefer, therefore, to have the mills closed than to have them run at a loss.

The strikers, too, seem to be of the opinion that the controversy will be long drawn out and the greatest care is being taken to husband the funds. No attempt was made to open a single mill affected by the strike yesterday, and it is probable that none will be for many weeks. The strikers' ranks remain unbroken and the slogan of the mill owners seems to be : "121/2 percent reduction or no work."

The strikers, regardless of the fact that it involves 26,000 men, women and children, is the quietest of any in the history of Fall River, but it is probably the most determined stand ever taken state board in an endeavor to bring by the textile workers for "living wages," as they term it.

THE KITCHEN DRESSER.

Originally a Bench on Which Meat Was Dressed.

Dr. Johnson tells us that the kitchen dresser was a bench in the kitchen on which meat was dressed, or prepared, for table and gives the following lines in support of his view:

Wright, in his "Domestic Manners of the Middle Ages," says: "One of the great objects of ostentation in a rich man's house was his plate, which at dinner time he brought forth and spread on the table in sight of his guests. Afterward, to exhibit the plate to more advantage, the table was made with shelves or steps, on which the different articles could be arranged in rows, one above another. It was called in French, or Anglo-Norman, a dressoir, because on it the different articles were dresses, or arranged."

LIVING SILVER.

The Process by Which Mercury Is Extracted From Cinnabar.

The chief scource of mercury is its native sulphide, cinnabar. The most rope are those of Almaden, in Spain, and Idria, in Illyria; in America, those of New Almaden, in California.

The silvery metal is obtained by roasting the ores in specially constructed open furnaces, where, by the action of atmospheric air alone, the sulphur is converted into sulphurous acid and passes on with the volatilized mercury into condensers. These are usually masonry chambers, with water cooled pipes, from which the fumes pass on through earthenware pipes and finally through others of wood and glass.

Most of the yield is liquid mercury, combined with soot, which is removed by agitating the mixture in receptacles of perforated iron, when the mercury falls through. The quicksilver is finally purified by straining through dense inen and is then sent out into commerce in leather bags or wrought iron bottles fitted with screw plugs, each holding about seventy-five pounds avoirdupois.

Special Excursions.

An entirely new departure has been made by the Boston and Northern and important mines of this mineral in Eu- Old Colony Street Railway Companies, who operate some nine hundred miles of electric lines north and south o Boston, in the matter of bandling the special excursion parties this summer. There are many thousands of people who use the trolleys for pleasure who find one of the great drawbacks to be the failure to get a seat in the car, in addition to this they are required to change more than once. It is to appeal to this class that the street railways mentioned above have arranged to conduct a series of special car excursions this summer to Lynn, Salem, Salem Willows, Gloucester, around Cape Ann, Marblehead, Nantasket, Newport and many other places.

> There will be no change of cars and every passenger is assured of a seat. The cars will be run only in pleasant weather and at the leading places guides will conduct the party to places of historic interest, if desired. As the companies are making an experiment and wish to find out if the increased facilities for travel will be appreciated, only weekly trips will be made in these special cars beginning Tuesday, August 2d. It is quite likely that the patronage will necessitate of making more frequent trips, and the personally conducted excursions on electric lines is probably destined to become a feature of travel on pleasant summer days.

There is no other section of th country where the street railway companies have inaugurated such a plan and these trips will be run under the personal supervision of R. H. Derrah, the trolley expert, who has for many years made a study of pleasure travel on the electric lines. ## TAMMANY IN LINE

Parker Assured of Its Support In the Coming Campaign

Hill and Murphy Meet at Rosemont--Members of National Meeting In Progress

Esopus, N. Y., July 28.-Members of made a call on Judge Parker and found him entertaining Charles F. Murphy and other officials of Tammany hall. David B. Hill and Murphy joined hands on the Rosemount veranda and others who have not been political friends for years put aside their differences and, for the day at least, met on common ground.

Murphy and his colleagues, State Senator Dowling, Judge O'Brien of New York and Thomas P. Conway of Plattsburg, arrived first, and were the ast to go. Discussions of political juestions, both national and state, were entered into by the visitors.

The coming of the national committee was heralded far and wide, but no innouncement had been made of the proposed visit of the Tammany dele gation. Several of the committeemen expressed surprise at finding the New York men at Rosemount, but Murphy made no effort to avoid meeting the Parker campaign managers.

Judge Parker had met less than he had a pleasant word for each and from his talk it was evident that he possessed an intimate acquaintance with what each man was doing in his own state. Chairman Taggart said after the conversation that the candidate ought to be his own manager, as he showed a knowledge of everything that is needed to promote an energetic

It was agreed that the committee will get together informally in New York today and that the opening of the western headquarters will be considered. It has been decided already that the New York headquarters will be removed from the Hoffman house to some office

In addition to the harmony meeting which took place at Rosemount, there were a number of important developments, not the least of which was an expression from Murphy. Just before taking his departure he said:

"Everything has been agreeable to me. I am here in common with other Democrats throughout the country to assist in promoting Democratic harmony and success. Everything that has occurred has impressed me with the fact that there is nothing to prevent all Democrats uniting and making a successful canvass in the state and nation. New York city will give the greatest majority ever known."

Mr. Murphy discussed state politics with Parker and various state leaders. It may be said upon competent authority that Parker and Murphy got very lose together on that subject. The governorship and other places on the state ticket were among the matters talked over. That he is not committed to Mayor McClellan of New York for governor is one of the things the Tammany leader is said to have told Parker, who is said to have spoken earnestly in favor of the mayor. Murphy said the gubernatorial nomination ought to be left open to await developments, but is said to have added: "I believe we will have no difference on that score."

The chairmanship of the executive committee of the New York state Democratic committee is another matter said to have been brought up in the conference between Parker and Murphy. The Tammany leader expects to serve on this committee himself, under the resolution to enlarge it. Senator McCarren is the ranking member and by precedent will serve as chairman, but it is understood Murphy will make an effort to have McCarren deposed and George M. Palmer, the leader in the assembly, elected to the chairmanship. Tammany men also talked in opposition to Cord Meyer, chairman of the state committee, and it is believed here that there is a plan on foot to unseat him.

Friends of the many photographers present accomplished the posing of what was at once termed the "harmony group." In it were Messrs. Parker, Hill, Murphy, Taggart, Ely and John C. Maher of Nebraska.

Mr. Taggart is losing no opportunity in organizing for campaign work. Senators Daniel and Bailey have been engaged for work in the north, and Congressman John S. Williams of Mississippi has agreed to locate in Boston to hold himself in readiness for work in the New England states. Mr. Taggart will open a Chicago headquarters soon, though he may spend much of his time in Indianapolis, where he can personally look after the work in Indiana.

Nearly all of the party returned to New York at 4:45 o'clock, though several, including Murphy and his col leagues, remained an hour later.

Endorsed Opposition Candidates Grand Forks, N. D., July 28 .- The Democratic state convention nominated for governor M. F. Hegge. The Republican nominees for the supreme bench were endorsed. The resolutions endorse the St. Louis platform.

Do you understand?" "I do, your excellency." "Remember, any failure on your part and you shall be shot tomorrow in the plaza."

"Yes, your excellency."

Louis Mendoza, the president, turned and galloped away. Major Jose Alaman as soon as it was dark posted his men about the peak as nearly in touch as possible. The moon was at the full, a great disadvantage to the revolutionists, and except when there were trees or brush any one ascending the sugar loaf peak would be noticed. Jose Alaman, having made disposition of his men, paced anxiously in front of his tent till midnight. Then it occurred to him to test his cordon by trying to slip through it. Stealing through a clump of thick bushes midway between two of his sentries, he penetrated the line. He was about to turn and change the disposition when a stone fell from above and rolled down nearly to where he stood. Looking up, he saw something disappearing behind a rock. He followed, again and again catching sight of a dim figure that, if it were a man, judging from its garments, must be a frocked priest. He chased it to a point near the crest, when suddenly he saw it stand out clearly on a rock directly above him. It was a woman. To reach her he must make a long detour, but she was within reach of a shot from his revolver. "Halt there!" he commanded. The figure stood still for a moment, then started on. "Halt or I fire." "Jose, would you kill your Juana?" asked a soft voice.

"What! You Juana Sanchez?"

"Yes, I."

"What are you doing here, sweetheart?" "I am about to light a signal fire." "The plot to make your father dictator has been discovered. Come to me,

His revolver was in his hand cocked, but he was irresolute. The second match went out. There was one more chance for him to save his life by taking hers. Again he heard a scratch. This time he raised his weapon. The match blazed out, lighting up her face. He threw his revolver on the ground. She touched the match to a bit of paper.

The signal was ablaze.

Jose descended the peak and called his men to a rally on the center, thus giving the signal lighter an opportunity to make her descent unobserved. then waited in his camp for the doom that had been promised him in case of failure. It was not long before a hundred horsemen dashed up, seized him, placed him in their center and rode away with him. He was taken to the city, but had no sooner entered than the gates were in possession of the revolutionists. His guard carried him to the plaza, where the president was marshaling his forces to resist the attack. As soon as he saw Jose Alaman his eye was ablaze with fury.

"Stupid! Incompetent! The task I gave you was simple. Why did you let the fellow slip through your lines?" "It was not a man, but a woman. I saw her light the signal and could have shot her before she did so." "And why didn't you?"

"Because I preferred to die in her place." "That you shall do at once."

Mendoza called for a platoon, which was drawn up in the plaza, and Alaman was placed before it. But the order to fire was never given. The revolutionists burst into the plaza, shot down most of the firing party and made Mendoza and Jose Alaman pris-oners.

That afternoon the door to Alaman's cell was thrown open, and Dona Juana fell into his arms.

It was Louis Mendoza instead of Jose Alaman who was shot in the plaza. Central American republics the Daily Ledger for two cents per find it inconvenient to have two presidents living.

IT MAY CRIPPLE PACKERS

Stock Raisers Making an Effort to Settle Strike--Butchers Inclined to Yield on the Matter of Reinstatement of Men

Chicago, July 29 .- After issuing a general order that would have involved all the Chicago railroads in the stockyards strike, President Curran of the Freight Handlers' union last night reconsidered his action and is now holding his order in abeyance pending a conference with leaders of the allied trades unions whose members are on strike. It is stated, however, that if President Donnelly of the Butchers' mion and the other strike leaders express a desire to have the order enforced Not Expected Back Until Sunday Park. t will be put into effect at once.

If the freight handlers live up to the order of their president, it will work a severe hardship on the packers, as the notification to the men states explicitly that no freight delivered by or billed to the packing companies, whether delivered at the freight houses by teams or in cars, is to be touched by the members of the union. What the railroad officials will do in such an emergency is not known. A meeting of the railroad managers was held last

At the same time that this step was being taken by Curran the first move in an effort to bring about another conference between the packers and the strikers was being made. Henry C. Wallace and A. L. Ames, president of the Corn Belt Meat Producers' association, are the sponsors of the new movement for peace. They came from Iowa to Chicago and immediately went to the conference with the strike leaders. Donnelly and his associates were told by Wallace of the hardship the strike was imposing on livestock raisers, and they were asked if some concession besides these offered at the last conference between the packers and the strike leaders could not be suggested in order to bring the present conflict

Donnelly, who was made spokesman for the labor leaders, said he would welcome another conference with the ployers and consented that the effort be made. He also informed Wallace that the strikers were willing now to concede the time limit in which the men should be reinstated. At the last conference with the packers Donnelly had insisted that the men be reinstated within a specified time, which the packers refused to agree to do. Wallace and Ames will call on the packers' representatives and endeavor to bring about the desired conference. Both sides to the dispute at the stockyards are claiming a victory. According to the packers all the plants in Chicago are running at nearly the regular capacity. On the other hand, the labor leaders declare the packing industry in this city is completely demoralized and that business is almost at

That the statement of the labor leaders is not altogether true is evidenced by the fact that the packers are slaughtering thousands of animals every 24 hours. There were several desertions from the ranks of the strikers yesterday, but this loss was offset by an equal number of strike breakers quitting their new positions.

KNIGHT COMMANDER CASE

Lansdowne Expects an Apology For What Is Termed an Outrage--United States Concerned In Neutral Shipping

London, July 29 .- Lord Lansdowne, in the house of lords last evening, declared that the examination of the cargo of the Knight Commander "appears to have been very perfunctory,

"Under these circumstances the government could come to no other conclusion than that a very serious breach of international law had been commit ted by the captors of the Knight Commander. Under no hypothesis can the government conceive that a neutral ship could be sunk on the mere fiat of a cruiser's commanding officer who assumed that the cargo of the vessel included articles which were contraband. Therefore, I do not suppose that the Russian government will hesitate to disavow the conduct of the persons by whom this outrage, for it was an outrage if the facts are as stated, was committed."

Lord Lansdowne, in conclusion, said: We considered it to be our duty to lodge a strong protest against the conduct of these Russian ships. We acompanied the protest with a request that orders be issued to prevent a recurrence of similar incidents and we demanded the release of the Knight Commander's British crew, which was * taken to Vladivostok. The manner in which the Russian government has dealt with the representations we had * already felt it our duty to make in regard to other cases justifies the hope that the representations we now make will not be made in vain." The British government anticipates that Russia will make every effort to get in communication with the Vladivostok squadron and obtain the report of its commander as quickly as possible, in order to give a definite reply to the British communication. What further concerns the authorities here and, it is said, concerns the United States as well, is the dangerous situa-Pacific which may have on board goods which the Russian commanders will consider contraband. ### May Force Mill Owners

Fall River, Mass., July 29.-It is reported that M. C. D. Borden, Fall River's greatest mill owner, and bitter opponent of the Manufacturers' association, has arranged a plan which will result in defeat for the capitalists now trying to force a 12½ percent wage reduction. The rumored plan is that Borden's mills will operate 24 hours a day, with three shifts of operatives. By such a plan one-third of the total number of mill workers in this city could be given work and support of operatives who continued the strike would become comparatively easy.

Old Wreck Discovered

Rockland, Me., July 29.-It was disovered upon the arrival of the wreckers from Boston that a portion of the wrecked steamer City of Rockland was lying on a section of another wreck believed to be that of the City of Portland, which went to pieces in 1881. The discovery of the old wreck was made by divers while making a preliminary investigation of the injuries sustained by the City of Rockland and who reported that the chances were good for patching her up and floating her.

Fall River Strike Endorsed

Boston, July 29 .- The strike of the Fall River cotton mill operatives was tue American Federation of Labor. ## Self Reliance

[Original.]

As a girl I had none of that feeling of independence which leads young women nowadays to strike out for themselves. I confess there was enough of the woman in me to induce me to look to a man for support. That man came along in the person of Dudley Dean, a strong willed fellow, thoroughly able to take care of himself-and another. When we met I was twenty, he thirty-two. My pliant nature seemed to be just the complement for his strong individuality. I found it delicious to have some one to make up my mind for me, and he delighted in taking the responsibility upon himself. One moonlight night in spring, when the air was fragrant with the odor of blossoms, I sank into his arms and promised to be his wife,

The next morning he said he wanted to have a serious talk with me. Life was a serious matter, and marriage the most serious part of life. That pliancy which had been so attractive to him, once we were married, might prove detrimental. A husband cannot always be turning aside to make decisions for his wife. During our engagement he would endeavor to lead me to the cultivation of self reliance.

This sounded well, and I chimed in with his wishes. One of the first lessons he gave me was this: He had engaged to take me to a concert one evening, and while I was waiting for him a messenger came with a note and two tickets to the concert. The note informed me that he had suddenly been called away on business, and I must rely on myself to secure an escort. Somehow I didn't like the lesson a bit. John Curtis, an old beau of mine, whom I had rejected because I thought he was too easy going, lived near, and I wrote him a note asking if he would be my escort. He gladly complied, and we passed a very pleasant evening to-

When Dudley returned and found how I had got over the bridge he had built for me, he was not especially gratified. I told him that I was but a weak woman and had done the best I could.

The next lesson was in this wise: I asked Dudley if he would prefer that I forego my summer outing to be with him-he would take no vacation-or go, as had been my custom, for a month to the seashore. I was ready to give up my outing and only wished to have him intimate that he would like me to remain with him. He told me coldly that a girl who could not make up her own mind in such a small matter would never be able to make it up in a larger one. This decided me. I went to the seashore. John Curtis, who did not know of my engagement, encouraged by my having asked him to be my escort to the concert, came down while I was there, and we spent two weeks in each other's company, I confess very pleasantly. I began to realize that Dudley's lessons in self reliance were not pleasant. Furthermore, it was becoming apparent to me that John's vacillating manner was a good deal on the surface. He had a way of having his way, appearing all the while to be too lazy to make up his mind what he wanted. John had not been at the seashore ten days before Dudley heard of it and wrote me either to leave the place or require Curtis to leave or break our and Phillip de la Noye Association at engagement. This made me angry, and at Marshfield on Tuesday, and Joseph finish my outing with me or permit me to choose my own company or consider himself released from his engagement. This should have taught my fiance that I had had practical instruction enough in self reliance, at least for the present, but by this time I had clashed with his will, and he could no longer be a disinterested teacher. He did not reply to my letter, but waited till I went home. Then he came to see me. I was in the kitchen at the time mak-

"It seems," he said, "that you have taken me to be as weak a character as yourself. Having accepted me, you are now vacillating between me and a former lover. I have called to say that under no consideration will I permit"-"And under no consideration will I ermit"- I retorted, with flashing eyes. "It is plain that your makeup is of the most dangerous character-just the kind to give a husband trouble, First you vacillate between two lovers, and when the man to whom you have plighted your troth objects obstinacy comes in and"-"I wish you to understand," I interrupted, "that your tutoring in self reliance is not agreeable to me, and I will have no more of it." "I have never known any one," he went on in his superior way, "with a weak will who would not when irritated go to the other extreme." "And I have never known any one." I replied, "with an imperious will that didn't want to dominate every one else.

"Weakness and obstinacy, taken together"-I had reached a point where endurance was out of the question. I raised the rolling pin I held in my hand and brought it down-not on his head, for it was not there-but on the kitchen door, which he closed behind him, cracking a panel. Then I sat down and cried. That was the last of my lessons in gagement with Dudley Dean. John furnished by the trolley line. Curtis heard of the situation and came to see me. "You are just the girl for a weakling like myself," he said. "Nothing would do me so much good as an occasional rap with a rolling pin." I married John and have been his willing slave ever since. ROSALIE THURBER.

Stones Thrown at Carriage of Minister Muraiveff, Following Assassination of His Colleague -- Had Long Been Planned

The assassin wore a brown overcoat and railroad official's cap. He stood on the sidewalk just as VonPlehve's bridge near the station. The minister was escorted by a number of detectives on bicycles, and one of them jostled the assassin, who then rushed into the road and threw the bomb after the carriage. The missile struck the hind wheel and exploded with fearful force, killing or wounding over a score of persons. Minister VonPlehve and his coachman were killed outright and an officer of the guard was fatally injured.

Boston, July, 30 - Just before noon the Boston fire department was called to cope with another large fire, the scene being the Boston and Albany grain elevator opposite the Castle Square Hotel and theatre on Tremont street.

ENJOYABLE OUTING.

Daughters of St. George Go to Highland Park.

The Daughters of St. George held their outing on Thursday, at Highland Park. The party made the trip by special car, the pleasant ride being thoroughly enjoyed by all, and giving them a keen appetite for the tempting luncheon then prepared.

The remainder of the day was spent with the many amusements the park affords, the theatrical performance in the afternoon being especially enjoyed. With the sports provided for the members and children the time passed all too quickly.

The most amusing feature of the afternoon was the "talking contest," the judges deciding that the honors were evenly divided between Mrs. Spargo and Miss Williams for the first prize, Mrs. Prout making a good second.

The winners were much surprised to learn that they had been participating in a contest.

On the trip home the members expressed themselves well pleased with the day's outing and much credit is due the president, Mrs. Oswald, who had the affair in charge.

Grocers' Picnic.

The twelfth annual outing of the Old Colony Grocers' and Provision Dealers' union will be held on Wednesday, August third. No pains have been spared to make this the banner excursion and the friends of the union are invited to enjoy the outing. A special train to Fall River has been chartered and the tickets are limited to 1000 people.

From Fall River, a chartered steamer will convey the party to Rocky Point where dinner will be obtained. Then a five hour trip on Narraganset bay will be enjoyed. Cuff's orchestra and the Rockland band furnish the music.

Tickets for round trip $1.50 for sale by your grocer. For time table and full particulars see posters.

Chicago, July 30.-Unable to arrange a conference with representatives of the New York packers, President Donnelly of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America has ordered a strike of all the members of his organization employed in New York by Schwarzschild & Sulsberger and the United Dressed Beef company. Presumably this report is from the same source as a dispatch from Shanghai reporting a Wei Hai Wei rumor that Port Arthur has fallen. A dispatch from Chefoo says: Refugees who have just arrived from Port Arthur confirm previous reports that a general assault has been begun by the Japanese on that fortress and they declare that the Russians are sanguine that the Japanese cannot succeed in capturing the place. The Russians, according to the refugees' story, are still hoping for succor from General Kuropatkin. They are unwilling to believe the reports of his defeat at Tatchekiao. The refugees further confirm the reports that the Russian fleet is in a state of repair, but say that the fleet is unwilling to attack that of Admiral Togo on account of the mines which the Japanese place nightly at the entrance to the harbor. It was believed at Port Arthur that if the Vladivostok squadron or reinforcements from Kuropatkin should arrive the Russian fleet would been in the water a great while. take the risk of going out.

He Wanted a Second Hand Watch, to Be Sure

E was a foreigner, and, having en-tered a large jewelry store on State street, he said to the clerk behind the showcase:

"I would like to examine some sec and hand watches."

"Excuse me, sir, but this is not a pawnshop," observed the clerk haugh-

"No?" said the man inquiringly. "But you have plenty of watches." And he pointed to the great showcases full of handsome timepieces.

"Certainly," replied the clerk, "Finest stock of watches in town. How much do you want to pay for a watch?" "How much?" asked the stranger.

Much as he is worth, so that he is a second hand watch and will keep good time.'

"See here, sir, you are in the wrong store. We don't keep second hand watches in this establishment."

The stranger's eyes opened wide. But you have them here, there and there," he said as he began to gesticulate. "I have said s-e-c-o-n-d h-a-n-d watches," spelling it out as though to make it plainer, "and they are here everywhere, yet you say you have them not. I do not understand you." "Well, I do now," replied the clerk sheepishly as he quickly opened a showcase and produced a tray of watches. "Just a little mixup. No harm done, I hope. Certainly we have watches with second hands. All our watches have second hands. We make no other."

And the stranger got a second hand watch, for which he laid down a fifty dollar note.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

THE MAN IN THE MOON.

Some Curious and Varied Beliefs as to His Identity.

According to Pratorius, the man in the moon is the patriarch Isaac, carrying the bundle of sticks which were to be lighted to sacrifice his own body on the mountain top. Dante celieves him to be Cain, carrying a bundle of thorns, the meanest offering his lands afforded, as a present to God. In Iceland the people claim that they can see the face of Adam in the moon and that of Eve in the sun. Among the Frieburgers there is a superstition which says that the marks and spots on the moon's face are the outlines of the traitor Judas Iscariot, holding his hand over his face while sneezing just prior to hanging himself. This last belief accords with the old Frankish legend which says that there was no spot on Luna's bright face until after the time of the crucifixion of Christ. Still another story tells us that in the time of the creation Gol threw an offending angel against the face of the moon, while another is to the effect that the moon witnessed the creation of Adam and Eve and took an impress of their features on his surface, intending to people his own land with similar beings. When he essayed to imitate God's works, he made nothing but a slimy serpent, which since that day has continued to fold and unfold its mighty coils in full view of the descendants of the God created beings.

THE TOMB OF CAIN.

It Is Said to Be Not Far From the City of Damascus.

The early traditions concerning the city of Damascus are curious and interesting, even though untrustworthy and contradictory. By some of the ancient writers it was maintained that the city stands on or near the site of the garden of Eden, and just opposite there is a beautiful meadow of red earth from which, it is said, God took the material from which he created Adam. This field is called Ager Damascenus, and near its center there formerly stood a pillar which was said to mark the precise spot where our first parent was created. A few miles out there is an eminence called the Mountain of Abel, supposed by some to be the place where the first two brothers offered their sacrifices, also the spot where the first murder was committed. The most interesting spot pointed out, however, is about three leagues from the city, where an old ruin is shown which all the orient believes to be the tomb of Cain. The traditions respecting this famous spot are known to antedate the Christian era by several hundred years. Up to the time of Vespasian the interior of the tomb is said to have been lighted and warmed by one of the "ever burning" lamps so commonly used by the ancients.

THE FERRONNIERE.

Back to Remote Antiquity. ----A ferronniere was a band or chain round the head, holding a jewel in the center of the forehead. The last instance of its being in fashionable use was furnished by America early in the nineteenth century. Mrs. Earle, the

vouches for this curious survival. This ornament is known to have been popular in Europe in the sixteenth century, and in the east it could probably be traced back to remote antiquity. Biblical students know that the Jews, following a custom of the ancient Egyptians, often adopted this method of wearing their phylacteries, or frontlets, between their eyes.

The modern application of the name is, according to Mrs. Earle, obscure, but there does not appear to be much doubt about the matter. One of the pictures of Leonardo da Vinci goes by the name of "La Belle Ferronniere." It would seem to be a portrait of Lucrezia Crivelli, a favorite of Ludovico Sforza, and, as the lady is depicted wearing one of these ornaments, it is clear that the name owes its revival to this picture.-London Standard.

An Odd Swimming Contest.

Sir John Pakington, a courtier of Oueen Elizabeth, was a reckless layer of wagers. He once bet £3,000 that he would swim the Thames from the bridge at Westminster to the bridge at Greenwich faster than three relays of young noblemen. Sir John won this bet. The relays of noblemen, though they swam hard, were badly beaten. The queen was present at the race, and to the losers she gave, by way of a consolation prize, a butt of sack.

HOW RUSSIA AND JAPAN ARE STAG-GERING UNDER IT.

The Mikado's Army and Navy Spending $1,00%,000 Per Day, the Earnings of 8,000,000 Laborers - What the Civil War Cost Uncle Sam.

The dispatches from the seat of war in Mancauria relate chiefly how General Kuroki's columns pursued the Russians and won a brilliant victory in a pass of the mountains, or they tell how General Oku and his brave men of the Takushan army executed a flanking movement against the left of General Kuropatkin's position, thus aiding the plan for the capture of Liaoyang, or how some other general and some other division of the Japanese land forces captured a strong position from the enemy after desperate fighting and won a glorious victory. To the spectator at a safe distance of a few thousand miles all this presents a fascinating picture. It is interesting to watch how the great game of war is being played, and it is exciting, ure medicine that way when I was sometimes thrilling, to read of the deeds of heroism and of the eagerness with which soldiers in both the contending armies court death.

But there is another side to the picture. War always presents two phases. one of glory and honor and another of suffering and misery. A nation which goes to war generally has to pay an awful price in life, in suffering and in money for any advantages it may secure. Mr. Gladstone once said that "the expenses of a war are the moral check which it has pleased the Almighty to impose upon the ambition and lust of conquest that are inherent in so many nations." The money cost alone of a great war is simply staggering. The eminent statistician, Mulhall, estimated that the American civil war cost $2,465,000 for every day of its continuance, and it lasted 1,500 days. But even the American civil war was not so expensive per day as the Franco-German war. This is said to have cost the French at the rate of $7,050,-000 per twenty-four hours and lasted seven months.

The British spent $10,000,000 per week in subduing the Boers in South

He estimates the cost of the war to Russia at from $1,500,000 to $1,750,000 a day, or the equivalent in wages of 7,000,000 Russian laborers. In Japan the burden of the war is

Some of these it is hard for an American to appreciate or perhaps approve. A case in point is that of a young Japanese named Okano Hidegiro, earning 13 yen a month, who, when called to war, was supporting a bride and a deaf mother. He asked his father-in-law to look after the two women, but the latter had lost his position owing to hostilities and did not have enough to support his own family. There was only one thing for Hidegiro to do, and he did it. He sold his household goods and gave the proceeds to an intimate friend to use in supporting his mother. ## MANAGEMENT OF WIVES.

What the Tactful Husband Does

When His Helpmeet Weeps, One thing the tactful husband does is to let his wife cry. I don't mean that he drives her to crying or that he lets her weep while he stands unsympathetically by with his hands in his trousers pockets, his feet apart and grinning sardonically. I mean that when an emotional woman needs a good cry he realizes that it will relieve the tension. He does not get up and rage about and kick footstools out of the way and say, "Oh, for heaven's sake, stop crying or you'll drive me to drink!

No. He goes and pats her shoulde soothingly and says:

"There, little woman! I'm sorry the cook has left and your new gown hooks up crookedly, but cheer up. Let's go out and have a jolly little dinner, and tomorrow I'll write that tailor a letter that will make his hair curl."

Then she looks up through her tears and thinks how handsome and big and strong and glorious he is, and before the dinner is over she has thought up two ways in which to economize and so pay for the extravagance of his order to the waiter, for the common purse is not elastic, and she knows it. -Lilian Bell in Harper's Bazar.

The "Unattached" of Both Sexes

HE peaceful and happy "unattached" man is one who is so wise, so well balanced, so self sufficing that love has never gained the mastery of his will or his reason-one who is able to care for his friends, and even to dawdle and dally with the affections and yet never give way to them—ONE WHO IS ONE'S MASTER

AND NOT LOVE'S SLAVE.

Such men there are, and when once in awhile I meet one I look upon him with awe and admiration. I walk around and around him as one does around that tilting stone in Ireland, which may be gently rocked this way and that by the hand of a child and resists the strongest man's efforts to move it from its base. For my part I would not for the world move it even if I could, nor would I move the man who the Great, was in all probability the most celebrated horse of which we

The absolutely unattached woman who does not coquet and who does not even play at love and never has played at it is rarer, but I have now and again seen her also. She is generally literary or artistic or philanthropic, FOR A WOMAN MUST DEVOTE HERSELF TO SOMETHING. She is generally plain of visage and of dress. She is a little self assertive and a little opinionated, for she has never learned love's sweet humility. She is rather careless of the opinions of others and thoroughly contented with her own theories of life. She is, as a rule, very sure that love is a folly or at tow the hulk into port and claim salleast would be for her, and, what is more, it is a thing SHE does not care to study or consider. ## Let the Negro Leave the Country

By Bishop TURNER of the African Methodist Episcopal Church

THE supreme court of the United States is against us. We have good friends in this country, yet they are comparatively few, and THE ONLY THING LEFT FOR US TO DO IS TO LEAVE. Let us be men. Let us go where we can be men. The negro is here. Some declare that he is here to stay, but I doubt that very much unless he is to stay under the ground.

The big Highland Chief, bound from Liverpool to Australia, had got to the mouth of St. Helena when Paul Davis, her captain, became temporarily insane and drove all his crew except the cook and a boy to take to the longboat and sail away. Thus the brig was left without a crew, and that was the beginning of a long adventure.

On the next day there came a gale from the north, and the Chief went scudding away before it, but after a run of a hundred miles she was dismasted and left a wreck on the tum- days. bling seas. The cook was of no account as a sailor and the boy of little help, but the wreckage was cut loose, as a bottle below. This was when she was sighted for the first time after the crew left. I was one of the crew of the English bark Hawthorne, home- and 10.10 P. M. ward bound from India, and one morning we sighted the wreck and bore up Our mate was sent aboard, and from

The cook, who was a relative run through to Brockton and Weymouth Landof the captain, decided to stay, but the ing. boy had had enough of it and was brought aboard of us. We lay by the wreck for three hours, hoping the pair left aboard would change their minds, but as they did not we sailed away.

It was two weeks before the Highland Chief was spoken again. In that time she had drifted 350 miles to the south. This time she was overhauled bound, and a boat was sent aboard. Captain Davis was found at dinner. He had weathered another gale and the hull was still sound. The steamer offered him a tow to Cape Town, but he rejected the offer.

The cook had tired of the situation captain had made up his mind to stick | Cars leaving on the hour and half hour run and no arguments could dissuade him. The cook went aboard the steamer, and the captain was left alone on a groaning hulk in midocean. It was thirtyone days before she was boarded again, and the wreck had drifted 500 miles, though not altogether to the south. She was in the highway of commerce, however, and had probably been passed by a score of craft which failed to make One morning she was sighted by the

M., then good health and the hulk as sound as a 10.55 P. M. dollar. He admitted that he was a bit lonely, but was more determined than THOMAS GAMMON, Division Sup. ever to stick to his craft. What he wanted were spars and a few men, and it so happened that the Scud could accommodate him with both. Then he raised the question of price and refused to pay what was asked, and he finally fell into a temper and ordered his callers back to their own craft. Although he had driven his own crew away by his threats he took it much to heart that they had gone, and there seemed to be a hope on his part that they would finally return. In his obstinacy he lost sight of the fact that any one else had rights in the case. While he owned the brig others owned the cargo, and as soon as his adventure was reported steps were taken to rescue him by force. In other words, any craft sighting him was authorized to vage on the cargo, which I believe was valued at about $200,000.

A week later the wreck was overhauled by the English bark Endeavor, which had received notice of the desire of the owners of the cargo. The captain of the Endeavor made up his mind to seize the wreck, rig jury masts and carry her into port, and a nice plum in the way of salvage he would have had had he succeeded. The Highland Chief was then below the latitude of the cape and drifting to the south. Captain Davis, calmly smoking a cigar and seeming to be clear of all anxiety, received the mate of the Endeavor in a hospitable manner, but soon let him understand that he did not intend to leave the wreck. If he could get spare spars at his own figure and if three or four men could be had without a bonus he would make shift to finish his voy-

This was no more than he had said before, but the mate of the Endeavor believed that loneliness and anxiety had affected his mind to a considerable extent. ## NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Wollaston post office leaves today for a the Boston Public Library, and William

A number of timely books on Japan, Russia, etc., may be found in this week's list of books in the Public library, published in another column.

J. Albert Simpson, William W. Robertson, Benjamin R. Fuller and others from Milton are with the Quincy Granite Manufacturers in Vermont this

"A word to the wise is sufficient" and if the boys who have been visiting certain apple trees lately are wisethey will keep a safe distance from these trees hereafter.

Rev. Archibald McCord of Providence R. I., is to preach at Bethany church tomorrow, Rev. E. N. Hardy being away on his vacation. Mr. and Mrs. Hardy are to be away until the first of September.

Many regret that the old historic church, the First church, is to be closed until September. It would seem as though this church should never close. We would not deprive the pastor of a vacation, however, but would suggest substitutes each Sunday as is done in KLAY-In South Braintree, July 27, a son to other churches.

KLAY-In South Braintree, July 27, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob W. Klay of Bowditch

Northfield, Mass., has issued unique invitations to Old Home Day on August fourth, when they will hold a grand basket picnic at the old Field home-stead. In the morning there is to be a stead. In the morning there is to be a parade of trades and industries followed LYCETT-In Quincy, July 29, Mrs. Catherine by athletic sports. In the afternoon there will be literary exercises at which Rev. ### Democratic State Convention.

The Democrats as well as the Republicans will hold their State convention in Boston, Friday, Oct 7. The same basis of apportionment of delegates will prevail as at the spring caucuses.

The Magazines.

The striking feature of the Metropoli tan Magazine for August is the quantity and quality of its fiction. Its leading article, "At the Strait's Month," is a vivid word-picture describing Tangier, the city wonderful of Morocco, which is especially interesting at the present time in view of the recent kidnapping of Ion Perdicaris and his stepson from their home in that city. The article is profusely illustrated with reproductions of some remarkable photographs taken by the author, Charles Wellington Furlong, expressly for this article. "Bridge," by George Hibbard, is a cleverly told story of love and high stakes at cards. "The Summer Girl at Play," a beautiful series of drawings by Malcolm Strauss, reproduced in tint, is a special feature of this number.

For the mother who is puzzled to provide novel and attractive forms of holiday and birthday entertainments for the little ones an article on Children's Parties, in The Delineator for August will be of value. In the same number are excellent cookery suggestions in the form of An "Inland" Seaside Dinner and many recipes of dainty and appetizing dishes for hot days. Recommendations for hot-weather house-keeping will also prove useful.

The leading article in the Engineering Magazine for August is by General H. L. Abbot, the greatest authority in the world upon the climate and rainfall of the isthmus of Panama and their influence on the plans for Panama Canal. He gives a concise statement of the data which are the key to the problem of building the waterway. There is further a very effective discussion of the organizing of a modern sales department, by Russel M. Seeds, and an almost sensational arraignment of the bad engineering done by architects and construction companies, this last-named contribution being from Mr. Reginald Pelham Bolton.

The patriotic note is struck in the National Magazine for August, in recognition of the August encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in Boston, the National's, home. Captain S. H. Beckwith, known in the Union army as 'Grant's Shadow,'' writes a score or more of fascinating brief character studies of the famous Union generals whom he knew during his four years with Grant as chief cipher operator. Mary C. Crawford tells the stories of the seven famous American composers of patriotic songs whose names were Edward L. Mitchell, clerk at the recently commemorated on a tablet in wo weeks' vacation at Lake Winnepe- G. Kirschbaum writes a genial chapter on "The Best of the Union Bands."

"Whatever are you children doing?" "Oh, we've found pa's false teeth, and we're trying to fit them on to the baby, 'cos he hasn't got any?"

This alliance comes about through Mr. Elkins having married the eldest daughter of Senator Davis, who, as Miss Hallie Davis, was a leader in the younger set of Washington society thirty years ago. She was then a handsome brunette. Mr. Elkins, at that time a widower and a delegate in congress from the territory of New Mexico, fell deeply in love with her. She is reputed a most charming hostess. The Elkins home in West Virginia, named Halliehurst in her honor, is palatial in appearance.

GENERAL MA'S MOTIONS.

The Russians Are Watching Them With Some Anxiety.

An interesting phase of the situation in the far east is the attitude of the Chinese in the struggle between the Russians and the Japanese. The government of Kuang Hsu has professed n desire to remain strictly neutral in this struggle, but the sympathies of the Chinese are clearly with Japan. Chinese hostility to the Russians has been shown in many ways. The latter have had considerable occasion to watch the movements of the Chinese General Ma. A short time ago it was reported that he was advancing to the frontier with 25,000 Mongolians. The Russians are apprehensive that he will aid the Japanese.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Frank Keenan, who is too well known to the theatre-goers of Boston and New England to equire any lengthy introduction, is to be the star of the Keith vaudeville program the week commencing August 1. The talented actor will be supported by Frances Fountaine and Kate Long in the presentation of one of the best oneact plays that has ever been done in the varieties, "The Actor and the Count." The surrounding bill includes a number of notable entertainers, including the Yankee Comedy Four, one of the best comedy-singing organizations in the business; Albertus and Bartram. two of the most skillul club jugglers in the world, just back from a successful European tour; the Brothers Bard, in a wonderful aerial Apply to J. W. PRATT, 74 Independent of the Brothers Bard, in a wonderful aerial Apply to J. W. PRATT, 74 Independent of the Brothers Bard, in a wonderful aerial a acrobatic specialty, and the Messenger Boys trio, a new organization of vocalists who have been scoring a tremendous hit in every city in which they have appeared. The juveniles will be particularly entertained by Doherty's poodles, the best troupe of diminutive canines in the country. The Fadettes will make the customary change in their musical program and the Biograph pictures will be all renewed.

GLOBE THEATRE.

The good news comes from the Globe theatr that that merriest of musical extravaganzas, "Isle of Spice," will remain in Boston for a short time longer. The engagement was to have ended on July 30 for the show was booked o open for a long run at the Majestic theatre in New York on August 1st, but so great has been the success of the new edition de luxe which was put on, a week ago Monday, that B. C. Whitney realized it would be the height of folly to withdraw his brilliant summer show from Boston. Therefore, by an exchange of dates, he managed to postpone the New York House, 9 rooms, 6 Chester st., Wollaston; $18 opening and to prolong for a short time the House, 9 rooms, and stable, 1551 Hancock st., Boston run. Right royally has the public welcomed the regal new edition of "Isle of Spice" which begins the fourth month of its engagement at the Globe theatre next Monday. The audiences during the past week have been the largest since the show opened and their enthusiasm has been even greater than that which Wharf at Quincy Neck. the old edition provoked. In a word, it seems 5 Acres Land, Pond st. to be a generally accepted verdict of the press Stable, Coddington st., $5. and public that the new "Isle of Spice" is as Land at Quincy Neck. much better than the old as it is possible for any new edition to be. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees at bargain prices will be given next week.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

A revival of "Hazel Kirke," the famous do nestic drama by Steele Mackaye that had such a remarkable success when first produced in New York years ago, will make the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre next week. This play has not had a Boston performance in three years and its great popularity will without doubt again be shown in its coming Castle Square pre sentations. When "Hazel Kirke" was first played by the stock company at this theatre the Dunstan Kirke was William Humphrey and he will again be seen in this great character in next week's performances. Additional interest attaches to this revival from the fact that Miss Lillian Kemble makes her re-entre in it, appearing in the title part. She can safely anticipate a cordial welcome from the Castle Square patrons as she gained instant favor in her recent short engagement with the company.
